D. A. R. ELECTS EIGHT TO FILL VACANT POSTS

Honorary Vice President General Race Will Continue Today.

MRS. HOOVER LOSES BATTLE FOR PLACE

Massachusetts Woman Leader of Candidates in Election.

Child Pictures World Court as Merely Attorney for League.

Eight triumphant candidates swept the D. A. R. Congress election last night to win the coveted posts of vice presidents general leaving, Mrs. Theodore Jesse Hoover, of California, sister-in-law of President Hoover, among the three who also ran.

Heading the victorious candidates was Mrs. James Charles Peabody, of Massachusetts, with 1403 votes. After her, in succession, came Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Hart, of Missouri; Mrs. Martin L. Sigman, of Arkansas; Mrs. Francis Cushman Wilson, of New Mexico; Mrs. Charles Herbert Carroll, of New Hampshire; Mrs. David C. Caldwell, of the District of Columbia; Mrs. Matthew Brewster, of Louisiana, and Mrs. Ralph Everist Bristol, of Utah. Mrs. Bristol, coming from a State which had only three votes in the Continental Congress, was a immediate victor over Mrs. Hoover, defeating her by a majority of 36 votes.

Mrs. Stockey Elected.

Mrs. Lyman B. Stockey, of California, was more fortunate than the other candidate from that State, and was elected reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution by unanimous vote.

The defeated candidates for the office of vice president general, besides Mrs. Hoover, were Mrs. Newton David Chapman, of New York, and Mrs. Grant Everett Lilly, of Kentucky.

In the race for honorary vice president general, in which Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, of Tennessee, and Mrs. Eliza Ferry Leary, of Seattle, Wash., competed, there was no election. Both candidates failed to receive the necessary two-thirds of the 1,690 ballots cast. Therefore, a new ballot will be taken this morning before the congress recesses at noon to permit the general observance of the sacred three hours of Good Friday.

Excitement Is Intense.

Intense excitement prevailed in the congress last night, when, at the opening of the evening session, the weary group of tellers who had been counting the thousands of ballots since the polls closed yesterday afternoon, headed by their chairman of tellers, Miss Katherine Nettleton State regent of Connecticut, appeared in the aisle of the hall.

"The tellers are in! The tellers are in!" was the word that ran like wild fire through the assemblage. Miss Nettleton mounted the rostrum and read her official report. Applause punctuated the announcement of each name. At the conclusion of the tellers' report, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general, thanked them for their services and the formal program of the evening was resumed.

The new officers of the society will be presented to the congress this morning.

Post Is Vindicated.

The results of the balloting bears out the prediction of The Washington Post made in Thursday's paper when the published list of the candidates believed likely to win tallied exactly with those who obtained the requisite number of votes yesterday.

The world court is only an attorney for the League of Nations, Richard Washburn Child, former American Ambassador to Italy, said in a speech in which he paid his respects to the forces of pacifism, pussyfootism and communism, which, he claimed, are seeking to shackle America.

"While there is a Hague, there is no hurry for a world court," exclaimed the former ambassador. "When we join a court," he continued, "let us be certain that it is a court unhampered by the mastery of any machinery of the old political internationalism."

Political formulas can not prevent war, Mr. Child declared.

The wars of the future will differ from those of the past. "We, who belong to the newer school of peace, building by economic means, instead of war prevention by political means,

Caldwell, of the District of Columbia; Mrs. James Charles Peabody, of Massachusetts. Mrs. Lyman B. Stookey, of California (lower extreme right), was elected reporter-general.

ROBINSON DEFENDS SAFEGUARD CLAUSE

Senator Eulogizes Part of Naval Treaty Which Is Most Debated.

PACT NEARLY FINISHED

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The text of the treaty negotiated at the London naval conference has been completed, with the exception of the preamble, and is now being scrutinized in the capitals of the world's five strongest naval powers.

It is hoped that the home governments will cable their approval of its terms and phraseology—already approved by their delegations here—to permit signing of the treaty next Tuesday. The hour for signing has been tentatively set at 10:30 in the morning of that day to permit the American delegation to sail for home on the Leviathan, if possible.

Interest in conference circles today centered entirely upon Great Britain's safeguarding clause which the Japanese delegation has accepted subject to Tokyo's approval.

This clause was the subject of a eulogistic statement today by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, who closely paraphrased the unpublished text in the first part of his pronouncement, which reads:

"The so-called safeguarding clause in the naval treaty will provide in general that if, during the term of the treaty, requirements of national security of any of the three powers (Great Britain, Japan and the United States), whose auxiliary vessels are

Chicago Bandits Steal Five Sacks of Air Mail

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Robbers tonight held up a mail truck en route from an air field to the postoffice and escaped with five sacks of registered air mail. The mail had just arrived by plane from Green Bay. Two automobile loads of robbers participated in the holdup. The value of the loot was not determined.

Police received notification of the holdup from the driver, who telephoned the news. They did not have his name. He said the robbers drove his truck to the western limits of the city and there released him. He found a telephone and gave the alarm.

Captive's Release Sought by Friends

Heitter Acquaintances Use Newspaper Medium in Quest.

Rockford, Ill., April 17 (A.P.).—Friends of Louis Heitter today published in the Rockford Register-Gazette an open note asking that Mr. Heitter's kidnapers open negotiations with them for his release.

The note said the friends were acting in good faith. It asked the supposed kidnapers to obtain from Mr. Heitter the names of his friends and to get into touch with one of them. Authorities still held to the belief that Mr. Heitter was the prisoner of professional extortionists. He was last seen late Friday afternoon.

A note signed by Mr. Heitter, though not in his handwriting, was delivered to one of his friends. It stated he was held for ransom of $50,000 and indicated his life was in peril if the sum were not raised.

F. H. SMITH CO. PUT IN HANDS OF RECEIVERS

Court in Buffalo Holds Capital Firm Engaged in Bonding Fraud.

$1,550,000 ISSUE ON MORTGAGE CITED

Charge of $5,000,000 Embezzlement Plot Is Faced by Pitts.

FORMER CHAIRMAN FREE HERE ON BOND

Warrant Is Served on Him, Alleging He Ignored Jury Subpena.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 17.—Justice Samuel J. Harris, in Supreme Court this afternoon named the following receivers for the F. H. Smith Co., of Washington, and the Fairfax Apartment Corporation of Buffalo, which operates the Fairfax Apartments at 715 Delaware avenue in Buffalo:

George D. Crofts, treasurer of the University of Buffalo; William J. Hickey, lawyer and chairman of the cities committee in the State Senate, and Stanley G. Falk, member of the law firm of Falk, Phillips, Twelvetrees & Falk.

The bond of the three receivers will be $100,000. For compensation the receivers will be entitled to not more than one receiver's commission, to be divided among the receivers as the court shall determine.

The announcement followed a ruling by Justice Harris that fraudulent advertising was employed in floating a $1,550,000 bond issue to refund a first mortgage on the Fairfax Building. The suit was brought by the State of New York under the Martin act, the so-called "blue sky law," governing stock frauds.

Bonds Issued on Mortgage.

The case was tried last November before Justice Harris in equity part of supreme court. The apartment house was built in 1926 and was first called Cleveland Hall. In that year there was placed upon it a first mortgage of $1,200,000 on which bonds were issued and offered for sale by the F. H. Smith Co.

Later the Fairfax Apartment Corporation changed the apartment house into an apartment hotel and in

TORCH SLAYER DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Henry Colin Campbell Close, Killer of Bigamous Wife, Is Stoical to End.

'GOOD-BYS' ARE IGNORED

Trenton, N. J., April 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—With a last request that his body be cremated, Henry Colin Campbell Close, torch slayer of his bigamous wife, Mrs. Mildred Mowry, was executed at the State prison here tonight. Close was strapped in the electric chair a few minutes after 8 o'clock. The first shock was applied at 8:04. Three minutes later he was pronounced dead.

As Close, a gray-haired, shrunken man of 60, walked from the death cell to the execution chamber, other condemned men called "good-by" to him. He made no reply, but with a guard on either side and one following him, he marched directly to the death chair where Robert Elliott, State executioner, strapped him in place.

Mrs. Elizabeth Close was one of the last visitors to see her husband in the death cell tonight. She talked with him for almost a half hour and wept when she was led away. Principal Keeper Stone said that Close had received a letter from his wife earlier in the day.

The condemned man made no special requests for his last meal. He ate heartily, however, and requested only that he be let alone. The Rev. Dr. John G. Gourley, prison chaplain, walked with him for some time during the afternoon, but did not accompany him on the walk to the death chair.

He died as Henry Campbell Close but the wife who survives him knew him as Henry Colin Campbell and her three children, who are also his, will be reared in Elizabeth, N. J., as Campbells, an alias.

Close, right up to his meeting with Mrs. Mowry through a mail order matrimonial house on August 28, 1928, lived hard and during frequent intervals very well. In 1926 he made $25,000 as an advertising manager for a Chicago firm. In 1927 a real estate

FREEDOM IS URGED FOR 29 FISHERMEN

Ocean City Merchants Look to Capital for Relief of Rum Stevedores.

CHIEF FAVORS PAROLE

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Ocean City, Md., April 17.—The usual off-season lethargy that grips this seaside resort was very much shattered today with the town leaders squarely divided into two factions.

The issue was based on the plight of the 29 Ocean City fishermen who now are in jail here on a charge of smuggling.

Out of work and broke, the fishermen turned stevedores for a night last New Year's eve and unloaded a rumrunner. They were arrested, branded as smugglers by the Government, and lost not only their freedom, but the money the rumrunners had promised them. And now their wives and children are wondering how they are going to get along without their support.

G. W. Rounds, proprietor of the Del-Mar-Va Hotel, favors telling the world about the dilemma of the fishermen and their families, and so does Dr. Washington Purnell, proprietor of the Atlantic Hotel.

"It is a ridiculous situation," says Mr. Rounds. "Here are 29 men loafing and eating at Government expense, while their wives and children have to struggle along without them. Nobody is being benefited. Why not let the men do what they want to do, fish by day and return to the jail at night? I hope you fellows in Washington will be able to do something about it."

Granville Cropper, the postmaster, violently disagrees with these two. He is in favor of paroling the men, of course; everybody here is. But when it comes to publicity, that is something else.

"No good can come of it," he says. "Why not leave well enough alone, and let our representatives in Congress continue their efforts. Anyway, only a few families are in distress."

This last statement of Postmaster Cropper brought a quick and vigorous

PAIR RELEASED FROM CUSTODY AFTER GRILLING

Prosecutor Asserts Case Has Gained Strength as Result.

BOTH ARE LOCATED IN VIRGINIA HAMLET

TELEGRAM TO IOWA OBTAINED BY ORDER

Man Known to Have Shown Jealousy of Navy Clerk Still Sought.

Release of Miss Mildred Sperry and Miss Olga Skinner from custody was announced by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth at 11:30 o'clock last night at the Arlington County courthouse after both had been questioned for four hours. He said the two women were free, but that they probably would be questioned again today. He declared that the investigation had been strengthened considerably by information supplied by the pair.

Incarceration of Miss Mildred Sperry and Miss Olga Skinner in the Arlington County Jail last night for further questioning after a lengthy grilling in the Arlington County Courthouse upon their return from Mountcastle, Va., marked the most sensational development in the Mary Baker murder case since the body of the Navy Department employe was discovered last Saturday morning in a culvert bordering Arlington Cemetery.

"I intend to hold these two roommates of the slain woman until I am convinced that they have told all they know in this case, or until I obtain more complete information from them," declared Sher. Howard Fields, of Arlington County, who entered the case yesterday when he returned with the pair after they were taken in custody at Mountcastle.

Regarded as cardinal witnesses in the case, the two were discovered in the little Virginia town 30 miles south of Richmond, at the home of Miss Skinner's aunt, Mrs. George Blackwell, by Commonwealth's Attorney William G. Gloth and three other investigators.

Grilled Several Hours.

Upon the arrival of the group at 7:30 o'clock last night at the Arlington County Courthouse, Miss Skinner and Miss Sperry were questioned for several hours behind closed doors by Commonwealth's Attorney Gloth, Sheriff Fields, Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and other members of the Washington homicide squad, and Department of Justice operatives.

The sheriff also made public the fact that two men from his office had left the county in search of a man in connection with this case. He said he expected them to return today.

During the progress of the quizzing last night, Robert J. Allen, former Washington policeman, who figured in the famous McPherson case, told Sheriff Fields that he knew who murdered Miss Baker and that he would "give the police until Friday afternoon" to solve the case. He declared he had been conducting a private investigation for four days, and that he had positive information that Miss Baker was attacked in a house, where part of her clothes were left.

Near midnight Wednesday police were without any clews as to the

Parker Confirmation Is Considered Doomed

Watson and Republican Chieftains Agree in Conference That Little Hope Remains for Approval of Hoover Choice for Supreme Court.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

There was a rather definite opinion in senatorial circles yesterday that Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, will not become a member of the Supreme Court to which he was recently appointed.

Senator Watson, Republican leader, met with seventeen Republicans from the border and doubtful States at luncheon and the situation was thoroughly canvassed.

Later Senator Watson announced that he would ask that Judge Parker be called to appear before the Senate judiciary committee, which probably will report out the nomination Monday. The result of the meeting yesterday also will be that the President and Judge Parker will again be acquainted with the situation, but there is probably nothing that can be done but to let the nomination come to the Senate floor and be defeated.

There was agreement on all sides that defeat would be the outcome. Senator Watson earlier in the day had conferred on the matter with Mr. Hoover, who is regarded as still standing by his appointee.

The administration forces would like nothing better than let the matter stay in committee, but the Democrats want it to come out. If the administration forces could maneuver to postpone consideration until after the elections they would do so, but even that is beyond their power.

The judiciary committee is understood to stand eight and eight on the question. Such a vote Monday would, of course, keep the matter in committee for awhile, but a Democrat will probably vote for a favorable report in order to get the matter to the floor.

Considerable feeling has been worked up by those regulars who intend to vote against confirmation because they are up for reelection and are afraid of the home fires that have been started.

They are bitter because they do not want to be put in the light of opposing the President and yet they are afraid to vote with him. They are bitter that such a condition to put them in this position should exist. In times past it has been more dangerous for an administration senator to oppose the President than any other action he might take. Support of the President is usually an administration senator's stock and trade.

If the President were real nice he would remove these senators' embarrassment by withdrawing the nomination which would, of course, leave the President "holding the bag" and which reveals the unselfish nature of the senators.

But the President has nothing like this in mind. It is understood that at yesterday's experience meeting some of the senators wanted Senator Watson to go back and ask the President to withdraw the nomination. The leader is understood to have told them to go and make the request themselves.

Senator Watson incidentally was a White House breakfast guest at which the case was discussed. And Wednesday he had a luncheon conference

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Olga Eide Edwards, who came out of the West thirteen years ago a young girl with glittering dreams of theatrical stardom, but who only acquired luxurious tastes that were eventually to lead her into trouble, today was convicted of attempted extortion. The extortion charge was brought by the wealthy, middle-aged business man who gave her her first glimpse of the material satisfactions that money could buy.

With a slight smile playing about her lips, she heard each of twelve jurors today solemnly say he believed her guilty of having threatened to whereabouts of Miss Skinner and Miss Sperry. A call came from Fredericksburg, Va., that the two girls were seen in a hotel at that place. Commonwealth's Attorney William G. Gloth, with three other investigators, went to the place yesterday.

Girls Gave Fictitious Names.

It was learned in Fredericksburg that the girls had come from Mountcastle, Va., 30 miles south of Richmond, on Wednesday night. On the hotel register they gave their names at Fannie Herr and Mary E. Fritchey of Philadelphia.

Employes of the hotel, the Princess Anne, at Fredericksburg, said that they remained Wednesday night, leaving yesterday for Mountcastle. It was learned that two long-distance telephone calls had been made by the girls. A telegram was also sent to Miss Skinner's brother in Mooreland Iowa.

It read: "Mildred and I are doing well, but hounded by reporters. If they should locate you, answer no questions. And give no pictures. Please get in touch with Hugh Sperry and tip him off. OLGA."

Phone Calls Traced.

Mr. Gloth went to Judge S. W. Coleman and obtained an order for the surrender of the telegram, which had been refused by the telegraph company. Telephone calls made by the girls were also being traced at the local exchange and at Richmond.

When the operatives arrived, the girls had disappeared. They discovered that they had gone back to Mountcastle. All went to the home of the relative and brought the girls back to Fredericksburg, where they remained for more than an hour while their correspondence was being checked. At 5:30 o'clock they left for a destination believed to be Arlington County courthouse or Washington.

While this was occurring, Inspector William S. Shelby, at a press conference, admitted that he did not know exactly where the girls were. "I have an idea where they might be," he said. Prior to this time he had insisted that he knew where they were and could summon them.

Tip Given Wednesday.

The tip regarding their whereabouts was given on Wednesday night.

Establishment of the place where the girls had been stopping has made police inquire into the identity of those who visited the Lyon Park home on Wednesday night. Several of the neighbors saw persons in the house. Their number could not be learned. From convenient spots they were observed busying themselves about the place.

This incident resulted in the belief that the two girls might have returned. Finding them in Montcastle yesterday dissipated this theory. Police are still showing interest in discovering who the persons were at the house and what their business was.

Letters, Photos Scanned.

Early yesterday the group of investigators gathered behind the doors of Superintendent of Police Pratt to pore over the letters and photographs found among the personal effects of the girl.

In the group at the conference were two Department of Justice men, Lieut. Kelly and Detectives Charles Weber, Joseph Waldron, George Darnell, Clarence Talley and Thomas Sweeney.

Later Lieut. Kelly and other detectives conferred with Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, and J. B. Reed, District chemist. The presence of the doctor and the chemist indicated that the police are making an analysis of the blood on the stained garments. Those analyses will be checked with other evidence gathered Tuesday night. If the blood found on the man's clothes is classified as similar to Miss Baker's, an arrest will likely follow.

New Arrest Proves Futile.

A man arrested yesterday in the Georgetown section was released. He entered a rooming house at N near Thirty-fourth street. The mistress became alarmed when the man, apparently in a nervous condition, asked for a dark room. He told her that he had had no sleep in several days.

Police were called. At headquarters his story was checked and proved to be true. Luggage found at the house was examined.

Inspector Shelby is now concentrating his search for the slayer of Mary Baker on one man. After eliminating a number of her acquaintances from suspicion, he said yesterday that vitally important evidence has been uncovered.

City Combed for Suspect.

This man, who is believed to have attended a housewarming party at the Lyon Park home of the girls on March 31, is being sought throughout the city.

All yesterday Lieut. Kelly and a group of detectives from the homicide squad made many trips through Washington in an effort to find him. His name is known to The Post. Pursuing a different lead, a Post reporter had uncovered evidence which was turned over to the police. Inspector Shelby's request that this information be withheld from the public lest it militate against the chances of apprehending the man, is being kept.

The man is known to have been familiar with many women. At times he was seen to display a consuming jealousy when an undue attention was shown his women friends by other men. If the police are able to place him among the guests at the housewarming party at the Lyon Park home of the girls on March 31, it is thought that the identity of the murderer will be established.

Jealousy Flared Then, Is Belief.

It is the theory of the police that the break between Miss Baker and the slayer occurred at the party. On that night, it has been learned, Miss Baker showed marked attention to another man. On the supposition that the slayer was among those present, it is the theory that a break ensued between the couple which was climaxed with the finding of her shot and beaten body in a culvert near the Arlington Cemetery.

Several acquaintances of the man have been questioned by The Post. They have been unable to shed any light regarding his recent actions. Lieut. Kelly has been checking his movements. Late yesterday afternoon he said that the police were close upon him.

On Wednesday night Inspector Shelby told The Post that the lead had been the "hottest yet" and requested that full details be not published.

Bloody Clothes Found.

Some blood-stained garments have been found by the police.

Inspector Shelby has not exhausted every clew. Many new leads have come to the surface, he said, and something very definite has been uncovered. All theories have been examined. Many have been discarded. Others are being reviewed.

A canvass of stores where firearms are sold has resulted in several leads. None is thought to be of value. Many colored men are known to have bought firearms. Notwithstanding the apparent futility of checking all these persons, the homicide squad refuses to make a cursory investigation and is delving thoroughly through all the information.

OLGA EIDE EDWARDS.

BLACKMAIL GUILT FIXED ON WOMAN

Olga Edwards Found Guilty of Trying to Extort Huge Sums.

SENTENCE IS DELAYED

"expose" Nathan L. Amster as the father of her 6-year-old son, Lee, unless he acceded to her demands for money.

Then, a little dazed, she followed courtroom attendants away, to be fingerprinted and jailed awaiting her sentence, which is to be passed April 25. The penalty is from two and one-half to five years in prison. The jury recommended clemency. It had deliberated all of last night and until noon today.

Got $200,000 in 13 Years.

Amster, who said he gave Olga in the thirteen years he knew her nearly $200,000, was not in court. Neither was Lee.

Amster had testified he had given the woman the money, first in a spirit of philanthropy and to help her get started on the stage, and later, until he finally rebelled, because she threatened to tell his wife and the world that he was the father of Lee.

All through the stormy months since Miss Edwards' arrest last fall, after she had accepted $500 in marked bills from Amster's secretary, she has insisted that Amster is Lee's father.

Lee, whose babyhood was passed in luxuriously appointed hotels and apartments, is now in the care of the Children's Society, a ward of the State. His future now depends on what action a civil jury takes on Amster's suit to have the terms of a $100,000 trust fund he created for the boy—under threats by Miss Edwards, he testified—made null and void. The suit is pending.

Woman Denies Threats.

The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon. The defense had rested earlier in the day with the completion of the testimony of Miss Edwards, its lone witness. She denied she ever threatened Amster and insisted contributions he made to her during the thirteen years they were acquainted were given of his own free will.

She alleged that Amster was the father of her child, born six years ago, and which he urged her to have.

James D. C. Murray, Miss Edwards' attorney, alleged in his summation that Amster was "the victim of his friends" and would not have brought the extortion action against Miss Edwards voluntarily. He charged the action was brought primarily to break an agreement under which Amster had settled a $100,000 trust fund upon Miss Edwards and the boy.

West Virginia Girl Kills Self After Love Quarrel

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 17.—Sheriff H. A. Zickefoose, of Upshur County, was today notified of the suicide of Miss Acie Long, 20, of Alton, near Buckhannon, following a quarrel with her fiance, Sterling Tenney, Alexander school teacher, whom she accused of paying attention to a Buckhannon girl.

After the quarrel, which occured when the couple were out walking together, the girl returned to her home and drank poison, dying soon afterward. The sheriff decided an inquest was not necessary. The victim was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Long, of Alton.

promotion he had undertaken failed and his income was cut to practically nothing.

It was then that Close turned to marriage by mail as a way out of his financial dilemma. Time after time on the witness stand in Elizabeth last June, as he was making his last fight for life, and losing, he insisted that he had sought not a bride but a business partner from either of two matrimonial agencies. But he found a bride, one with $1,000 to offer him, and he married her.

The paltry $1,000 did not serve to rehabilitate his finances as much as he had hoped and he found himself incumbered rather than helped. And so he decided upon the plan of murder and destruction of the body of Mrs. Mowry by fire as the way out.

It was on the morning of February 24, in 1929, that a body charred almost beyond identification but with a few scraps of clothing and evidences of a bullet wound, was found in a meadow near Cranford, N. J.

Shortly thereafter Close was arrested and charged with the murder. He was brought to trial in oyer and terminer court in Elizabeth less than four months later. Twelve jurors filed into the courtroom June 13, and the foreman handed up a verdict of guilty without recommendation for mercy.

Henry Colin Campbell Close saw and heard and remained the imperturbable defendant he had been throughout the trial. His loose lips hung open as they had for days, his sparkless eyes stared at nothing, and it seemed as if this man had no emotion and was incapable of registering fear. And so, on February 3, his end was pronounced and his conviction affirmed by the court of errors and appeals in Trenton, N. J.

Former Allegany Sheriff Succumbs

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 17.—David Walker, 79, former sheriff of Allegany County, and a native and lifelong resident of Cumberland, died today after a week's illness. Mr. Walker was for many years prominent in politics. He was elected sheriff in 1889. He served on the water board before it changed the source of the city's water supply from the Potomac River to Lake Gordon, and was a member of the board of election supervisors for Allegany County during the administration of Gov. Lowndes.

The death of Mr. Walker leaves Frank L. Fisher the only surviving charter member of Cumberland Lodge, No. 63, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks. He filled the office of esquire in the lodge for many years. Mr. Walker was also an Odd Fellow. He was a life-long member of Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church.

He is survived by his widow, four sons and five daughters.

denial, and it came from those most concerned — the fishermen-prisoners themselves. A spokesman for the 29 read off a list of ten families, which, he said, are in real distress. And unless something is done in a hurry, he said, the others will be just as badly off.

The prisoners are lodged on the top floor of the fire engine house, the jail being too small to house them. Guarding them is the chief of police, Robert Allen. He, too, wants to see them paroled, and for two reasons—one humanitarian, the other selfish.

First, he wants to see them out so they can support their families; second, he wants them out so that he can go to work. Chief Allen has a well he wants to dig, but a man can't do that with 29 prisoners on his hands.

Delegate Added To English Tour

Virginians to Be Guests of Trade Groups on British Trip.

Richmond, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—Richard Armstrong, of Hampton, has been added to the delegation which will tour England in June representing the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, it was announced here today by J. Gordon Bohannan, president of the State chamber.

The Virginia delegation will leave Richmond May 26 and beginning June 1 will be entertained for a month by English trade organizations. The Virginians were invited to England by the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, the Federation of British Industries and the Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom.

The party will be composed of J. Gordon Bohannan, of Petersburg; Col. A. B. Carrington, of Danville; Richard Hampton, of Hampton; Gen. S. G. Waller, of Front Royal; J. R. Gilliam, jr., of Lynchburg; Richard Crane, of Westover; Julian H. Hill, LeRoy Hodges and J. Scott Parrish, of Richmond; S. Heth Tyler, mayor of Norfolk, and Junius P. Fishburn, of Roanoke.

Lynchburg Country Club Directors.

Lynchburg, Va., April 17 (Special).—Directors of Oakwood Country Club have elected A. M. Campbell, jr., president for the coming year. Other officers are: Vice president, F. K. Williams, and secretary-treasurer, B. T. Smith.

INDICTMENT GREETS ARRIVAL

MEMORIAL CHAPEL FUNDS DISCLOSED

BIDS NOW ADVERTISED

The advertising of bids yesterday afternoon for the construction of the Walter Reed General Hospital Memorial Chapel disclosed that already many gifts have been made for the nonsectarian chapel which is to be a memorial to "the men who gave their lives to service."

The Society of Gray Ladies began the drive for funds to build the chapel. Congress has appropriated $12,000 for the project. One of the largest private contributions was made by Mrs. Henry Rea, of the Gray Ladies, in the form of a tower to be called the James D. Glennon Memorial. The stone for this chapel has been donated by the Misses Elizabeth and Harriet Riley.

Princess Margaret Draper Boncompagni will give an organ in memory of Gen. William F. Draper, while Mrs. John W. Davidge has contributed a window in memory of her father and mother, the late Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks.

Other gifts for the chapel have been pledged by the following: Mrs. Herbert J. Slocum, marble floor and steps, for her husband, Col. Slocum; cross, vases and candlesticks, Mrs. Walter Reed, her son and daughter; windows, by Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay, for her father, and Chaplain Edward P. Easterbrook, for his wife.

The altar will be dedicated to the memory of Mrs. John A. Johnston, wife of Gen. Johnston, former District Commissioner. Graduate nurses of the hospital will also give a memorial.

Spring Presbytery Convention Closes

Lexington Group Pledges Continued Support to Church Schools.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., April 17.—Lexington Presbytery brought its annual spring three-day meeting to a close this afternoon at New Province Church, near Brownsburg. A special meeting of the Presbytery here will be held at the First Presbyterian Church on June 2.

Forty-four clerical members, 6 visiting members and 44 ruling elders constituted the official delegation to the sessions at New Province.

Among those addressing the Presbytery were the Rev. J. S. Baird, of Dallas Presbytery, and the Rev. P. H. Barrow, of Bluestone Presbytery. Representing the ministers' annuity fund, the Rev. S. B. Lapsley spoke in the interest of home missions; the Rev. W. E. Hudson, on Sunnyside Home for Aged Women, at Danville, the Danville Military Institute, the Orphans Home at Lynchburg and the Massanetta Springs Bible conference. Dr. A. L. Tynes, of Staunton, president of the board of Hampden-Sidney College, presented the school's claims and also those of Mary Baldwin College. The Presbytery will continue its support of both institutions, as it will of Davis and Elkins College, in West Virginia.

County Changes Health Guardian

Position Will Be Placed on Full-Time Basis by Commission.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., April 17.—Kent County will be the twelfth Maryland county to have a full time public health officer, through action taken by the board of county commissioners yesterday. Dr. Ralph G. Beechley, deputy State health officer for Kent and Queen Anne's Counties, will be formally appointed, it is believed.

The new officer will investigate the health situation from a maternity and infant mortality viewpoint, Kent County ranking among the lowest in the State with regard to the prevention of fatal disease in such cases.

Until a full-time dentist is appointed for the upper Eastern Shore counties, Dr. G. H. Dana, of Chestertown, will act as dental surgeon. Next week Dr. Hines, who is secretary of the Kent Medical Association, and Dr. Frank W. Smith, of Fairlee, will attend the annual meeting of the Maryland Medical Society at Osler Hall, Baltimore, as delegates from the local institution.

BACKWOODS PUPILS CALL ON PRESIDENT

Western North Carolinians Are Awed in Presence of First Lady.

CAPITAL SIGHTS ENJOYED

Pupils of the moonlight schools of western North Carolina last night held a testimonial meeting, that smacked strongly of the religious revival services for which the South is famed, in the auditorium of the Interior Department.

Their faces glowing with the day's experiences, which included chats with the President and Mrs. Hoover, 150 rugged mountaineers, whose ages ranged from 16 to 68, told a packed house what the night schools had meant to them.

One gray-haired mother spoke of the happiness that had come to her when she first learned to read letters from her daughter. A white-haired gentleman recalled how inaccessible and inadequate were the mountain schools of his boyhood.

Capital Sights Enjoyed.

"We only hope that everybody will have as good a chance to learn as we have and there will soon be night schools all over the land," said one of the more youthful pupils.

As a climax to their "Pilgrim's Progress" testimonial, the pupils sang under the deep-throated leadership of C. H. Bartlett, Asheville police commissioner, who, with a number of teachers and club representatives, accompanied the pilgrimage here by buses.

Despite unfavorable weather, the mountaineers saw many of the sights of the Capital, about which they read in their adult primers, and are planning on seeing more today. Many of them had saved their meager earnings for months to make the trip, and they refused to let their enthusiasm be dampened by a chill spring rain.

They presented enough homespun material to the President and Mrs. Hoover to make suits for both when they called yesterday afternoon. A picture primer, a work of art on which she had spent many hours, was given to the Chief Executive by Lizzie Smith, 24 years old.

"This is for you and your wife," said Mrs. Pallie Farlow bluntly, as she handed over the homespun cloth. The President thanked her and asked her to write her name for him.

Mrs. Hoover, because of a cold and a fall the day before, had announced she would be unable to see the visitors. At the last moment she relented, however, and summoned them. For several minutes she talked to her awe-struck audience from her couch on the value of education and their feat of learning to read and write at an age when many better minds begin to decline.

Impressed by President.

"The President impressed me more'n tolerable," commented J. G. Rymer, 68-year-old farmer. "It was like a dream come true," said another pupil.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morriss, director of the Buncombe County night schools, where the fight against illiteracy had its inception in 1919, told President Hoover that to arouse enthusiasm for the pilgrimage to Washington, the grown-up pupils had been writing "I shall go to Washington" and "I shall see the President," instead of the conventional "I see the cat."

The interview with the President and Mrs. Hoover was largely made possible by Mrs. Marion Butler, wife of the former North Carolina senator; of the Colonial Dames and leaders of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Federation of Women's Clubs.

$100,000 Damage Suit Filed in Alleged Crash

Anna E. Coburn, of 627 C street northeast, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against the Carry Ice Cream Co., seeking to recover $100,000 for alleged injuries said to have been suffered September 1 last, in an automobile accident in Prince Georges County, Md.

Through Attorneys Paul B. Cromelin, Bolitha J. Laws and William A. Coombe, the plaintiff tells the court that the defendant's agent violated several traffic laws and was negligent in the operation of the company's truck. The plaintiff asserts she was a passenger in the automobile which figured in the collision with the truck.

Blast Victim Taken to Hospital.

Severe burns about the body received two weeks ago near his home at Indian Head, Md., by James Smallwood, 48 years old, necessitated his removal yesterday to Providence Hospital, where attendants last night reported his condition as fair. He was said to have been working on a bridge when an explosion in a small quantity of gasoline ignited his clothes.

SMITH RECEIVERS NAMED IN BUFFALO

BONDING FRAUD IS CITED

refinancing the project certain trustees received a trust deed to the premises which was to become a first and refunding mortgage to the amount of $1,550,000.

Under the trust deed there was to be issued to the Smith Co. bonds to that amount, $350,000 of which were to be returned to the Fairfax Corporation. The sum of $1,200,000 remaining was to be sold or exchanged so as to refund the $1,200,000 mortgage.

Appraised by Capital Man.

The Smith Co. was made the depository and the Attorney General contended that the advertising of the bond sale violated the law. A temporary injunction against the sale of bonds was obtained.

Pertinent points in the selling talks were the statements that J. R. Ingham & Co., Buffalo, had appraised the property at $2,250,000 and that Philip M. Jullien, described as "an experienced architect of Washington," had put the value at $2,245,000.

Justice Harris points out that Mr. Ingham wrote to the F. H. Smith Co. stating that the figures he had given was qualified and protesting against the unauthorized use of the appraisal in sales operations without setting forth the qualification the Ingham Co., according to the original appraisal, had based its figure upon the estimated returns from "a going apartment hotel."

Opinion of Court.

It appeared from the evidence that of the original issue of $1,200,000 only $673,000 remained outstanding and that there had been marketed of the $1,500,000 issue the sum of $526,700. The court refers to the appraisal made by Ingham as "more or less a cursory one."

Justice Harris continues: "Summarized, the valuation of the property of the Fairfax Apartment Corporation of Buffalo, which the defendant would have the court find as a basis for the issuance of $1,500,000 worth of bonds, would be physical values of not more than $1,400,000 (and in the court's mind less) plus expenses of promotion and financing and hopes for the future. This is a type and nature of the investment presented by the defendant, F. H. Smith Co., Inc., on behalf of the defendant Fairfax Apartment Corporation of Buffalo."

The court says it arrives at the conclusion that the defendants committed fraud in that they "concealed from the public, to whom the bonds were offered, the fact that the appraisal was largely based upon intangible assets including hopes for the more or less distant future, which hopes might be dissipated by poor business, poor management or many other eventualities which can occur in the conduct of a hotel.

Pitts in Washington.

"The Court grants a permanent injunction against the advertisement and sale of the bonds herein referred to."

In conclusion, Justice Harris states: "The Court is of the opinion that, in order to give full force and effect to the relief intended by the Martin act, it is proper to appoint a receiver for each of the defendants and to give such receivers the power to take title to the property, books and accounts and papers of the Fairfax Apartment Corporation of Buffalo, and the F. H. Smith Co.

G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., to face a charge of embezzling $1,136,000 of the company's funds, Pitts, Samuel J. Henry, former president; C. Elbert Anadale and John H. Edwards, jr., were indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $5,000,000 and to conceal assets and books of the firm.

Pitts Held in Contempt.

Pitts came to Washington from Florida, where he has been for the past several months and had to renew his bond. He was scheduled for arraignment before Justice William Hitz, but his attorneys, Lambert & Yeatman, filed pleas in abatement, attacking the validity of the grand jury which returned the indictment.

At the same time Pitts was served with a warrant charging him with contempt for failing to appear to answer a subpena before the grand jury.

Mr. Pitts immediately made bonds of $110,000. His bond was allocated $100,000 on the original embezzlement charge, $5,000 on the contempt charge, and $5,000 on the new embezzlement charge. The bonds were posted by Milton Kronheim and Patrick F. O'Connor, professional bondsmen, through the agency of Bernard German.

Faces Other Indictments.

Pitts, Henry, Anadale and Edwards have been under indictment for the past several months on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with the company's operation. Frederick N. Zihlman and Daniel R. Crissinger, former Comptroller of the Currency, also are under indictment on the same charge.

Pitts is now under bond on that charge and is attacking the grand jury that returned that indictment through pleas in abatement.

Pitts also is under indictment on a perjury charge in connection with the failure of the Hamilton Hotel Co.

Dog Knows Master On Telephone Wire

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 17.—C. D. Garland, Roanoke, Va., is owner of a pekingese dog who knows his master's voice over a telephone wire with 200 miles intervening. The dog was stolen from Garland a week or so ago and was located here today in the tent of Ezzie Smith, a palmist, who has been taken back to Roanoke to face charges of stealing the dog.

With Garland at the Roanoke end of the telephone line and the dog at the Winchester police station end, the animal barked when he heard his master calling, and then pranced around the room hilariously. Police decided the evidence was sufficient to hold the palmist for Roanoke police.

Smith claimed he purchased the dog from New York tourists near Harrisonburg, Va. Finding the dog here ended a search over many parts of the State by detectives, and Garland's loss also had been broadcast by radio.

COUNTY POLICEMEN GET SALARY RAISES

Under New Plan Fees for Arrests Will Revert to Treasury.

APARTMENT TO BE BUILT

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 809. Clarendon, Va.

The County Board of Supervisors in special session yesterday morning voted to increase salaries of county police from $125 to $150, effective July 1. The increase takes from the police officers all fees resulting from arrests. The fees are to go into the county treasury.

The request of Sheriff Howard B. Fields for permission to appoint another police officer at a salary of $125 monthly was granted by the board.

J. C. Spaulding, chairman of the board of directors of the Arlington Investment Corporation, owners and developers of the Waycroft Subdivision, presented a 90-day note for $9,175.78, covering all indebtedness to the county for the installation of the water and sewerage connections within the subdivision. The note was accepted by the board.

Ignoring petitions bearing 165 names of residents of Lyon Park and Ashton Heights opposing the granting of a permit to J. C. Bose for erection of an apartment house at the corner of Pershing drive and Spruce street, Lyon Park, the board granted the permit upon motion of B. M. Hedrick, supervisor from Arlington District.

Henry C. Morris, vice president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, urged the board to adopt the zoning ordinance as recommended by the zoning commission.

While the board made no definite reply it was indicated that the zoning ordinance will be adopted within a short time, perhaps at the next meeting on April 29.

Upon motion by Supervisor B. M. Hedrick the county school board was requested to have the books of the board audited to show all expenditures resulting from the last school bond issue, prior to calling a special election for another bond issue for schools. The motion further provides that the audit be made by an expert accountant and not by the State auditor.

The board awarded the following contracts for motor trucks: The White Co., two trucks, total cost, $10,290; the Arlington Motor Co., two Ford trucks, cost, $2,430, and to the American LaFrance Motor Co., four trucks, cost, $19,784.

The Arlington Rotary Club held its luncheon meeting yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club, with Dr. R. N. Sutton presiding.

President Sutton was elected delegate to represent the club at the annual district conference at Richmond, Va., May 8 and 9. Plans were completed for the club to attend the meeting in a body.

The club voted to accept the invitation received from the Alexandria Rotary Club to have its band take part in the benefit play to be given at Alexandria the evening of April 25. The proceeds will go to the Day Nursery at Alexandria.

The executive committee of the Parent-Teachers Association and other organizations making a study of school needs and plans for the proposed bond issue will hold a dinner meeting tonight.

Chairman Orr stated that the meeting has been called to complete plans for circulation of petitions to the Circuit Court for a special election on the bond issue.

The county public schools closed yesterday and will remain closed until Tuesday morning for the Easter holidays.

The Clarendon Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

The officers of the Arlington County Civic Federation have been extended an invitation to attend the meeting.

Church Merger Opposed By Roanoke Presbytery

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., April 17.—The Roanoke Presbytery, before the conclusion of its spring meeting here this evening, went on record as being opposed to the proposed merging of the Southern Presbyterian Church with the United Presbyterian Church. The General Assembly was petitioned not to consolidate.

The sessions were chiefly devoted to routine. An appeal for larger endowment of Hampden-Sidney College was voiced in the presentation of A. B. Carrington of the report on education. The delegates this evening visited Hughes Memorial Orphanage near here.

Danville Woman Made Hospital Superintendent

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., April 17.—Miss Mattie Jones, supervisor of Memorial Hospital, has been appointed superintendent of Anne Penn Memorial Hospital at Reidsville, N. C., which is soon to be opened. The announcement was made by Dr. T. W. Edmunds, of this city, who will manage the 50-bed institution.

Miss Jones graduated from Edmunds Hospital in Danville in 1925 and four years later became assistant superintendent of that institution. She became supervisor at Memorial Hospital when Edmunds Hospital was merged with it.

BONDING SUIT WON BY MOUNT RAINIER

Prince Georges Court Ruling Will Permit Public Improvements.

WORK HAD BEEN HELD UP

Consummation of the plans of Mount Rainier for the laying of concrete streets and sidewalks was made possible yesterday by a ruling handed down by Judge Joseph C. Mattingly in Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro. The judge held that the act of the 1929 Legislature giving the town the right to borrow an amount equal to 8 per cent of its assessed valuation is valid. Judge Mattingly indicated that he would dismiss the taxpayers' suit brought by Rufus E. Milor and Henry J. Mulholland through Attorney Charles B. Calvert, which asked an injunction preventing the town from issuing bonds to pay for the construction work and from paying any town funds to several construction companies which had already started work on part of the project. The mayor and town council and the contractors were named jointly as defendants in the suit.

Contracts for $64,727 with the firm of Jarboe & Houghton and $60,210 with the Fred Loomis Construction Co. had been let and most of the work specified in them carried out when the suit was filed. A Baltimore firm had agreed to purchase a bond issue of $130,000 to finance the work but declined to complete the negotiations until after the suit was disposed of.

The plaintiffs argued that the act authorizing the bond issue was unconstitutional.

In handing down the opinion the judge took occasion "to state that while the citizens might not always be right that it is a healthy sign when acts of public officials are subject to such close scrutiny by the taxpayers and tend to keep the public officials from careless administration of the people's affairs.

Defense attorneys were State Senators Lansdale G. Sasscer and Walter J. Mitchell, Corporation Counsel Bird H. Dolby and John S. White.

Banks and most of the public offices of the county will be closed today in observance of Good Friday, which is a legal holiday in the State of Maryland. Schools closed yesterday and will not reopen until Wednesday. The county police court will not hold its regular session at Upper Marlboro today, but all cases have been held over until next Friday. Circuit Court also has recessed until Monday.

Members of the Hyattsville Volunteer Fire Department will elect delegates and alternates to the annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association at a meeting to be held Monday night. The State convention will be held June 11 to 13 in Baltimore.

Capital Women Named As Beneficiaries in Will

Two residents of Washington and a resident of Alexandria, Va., are beneficiaries under the will of Miss Elizabeth McCalmont Wilson, former Washingtonian, who died March 6 at Franklin, Pa., leaving an estate of "approximately $4,000,000," according to a petition for probate filed yesterday in New York Surrogate's Court.

Mrs Elizabeth McCalmont Freer, of 1927 Biltmore street northwest, according to the will, receives jewelry and $5,000. Miss Mary M. Jacques, of the Portner, receives $5,000, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson Rowe, of 134 Virginia avenue, Jefferson Park, Alexandria, receives one-fourth the residuary estate. They are listed as cousins.

Lynchburg Warehouse Burns; Loss, $10,000

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 17.—Burning of a storage warehouse belonging to Metal Products Co. caused a loss early this morning of more than $10,000, which is only partially insured. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Several hundred new and second hand automobile tires were in the flames, which were so hot that the track of the old main line of the Southern Railway buckled and telegraph wires were melted.

College Alumnae Officers Named.

Lynchburg, Va., April 17 (Special).—Mrs. J. Bolling Jones has been elected president of the Lynchburg Chapter, Randolph-Macon Woman's College Alumnae for the coming year. Other officers are: Vice president, Mrs. Robert Whitfield Miles; corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. H. Williams, and treasurer, Miss Martha Hancock.

JUDGE SUMMONED TO FACE DRY CHARGE

COMMENT IS DECLINED

Selma, N. C., April 17 (A.P.).—Charged with violating the Federal prohibition laws, Judge N. A. Sinclair, of the North Carolina Superior Court, has been summoned to appear before United States Commissioner I. W. Massey here Saturday for a preliminary hearing.

Commissioner Massey said today a warrant for Judge Sinclair's arrest was sworn out by C. S. Coats, a Federal prohibition agent, who found a pint flask of whisky when he searched the jurist's baggage on March 30.

The warrant now is in the office of United States Marshal E. C. Geddie, at Raleigh. Ivan Byrd, chief deputy, said Judge Sinclair had been summoned over telephone and said he would appear before the commissioner Saturday.

Judge Declines Statement.

At Goldsboro, where he is presiding over a term of Wayne County Court, Judge Sinclair declined to comment, saying he had no statement of any kind to make.

United States District Attorney W. H. Fisher also refused to make a statement except to say that his office is "investigating the matter." He was reached at Newbern.

Prohibition Agent Coats, acting on information which he said he received from Williamston, where Judge Sinclair had just adjourned a term of Martin County Court, stopped the automobile in which the judge was riding from Williamston to Sanford on Sunday afternoon, March 30.

Search Reveals Bottle.

A search of Judge Sinclair's baggage revealed a pint bottle containing a quantity of liquor. The judge was not arrested, but proceeded on to Sanford, where he professed ignorance of the whisky and charged a "frame-up."

Later, William H. Everett, of Williamson, asserted he had "planted" the whisky in Judge Sinclair's luggage as a "practical joke."

Coats, however, reported the matter to District Attorney Fischer's office and later swore out the warrant. Judge Sinclair was then summoned to Saturday's hearing.

New Department Given To Memorial Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Elkins, W. Va., April 17.—Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins, widow of Senator Stephen B. Elkins and daughter of the late Senator Henry G. Davis, has donated an entirely new obstetrical department to Davis Memorial Hospital here, including equipment valued at $1,000.

Her father and mother were founders of the hospital, which is named in memory of her brother, who lost his life while cruising on the African coast. Mrs. Elkins recently returned from Tucson, Ariz., where she spent the winter with her sister, Mrs. Grace Davis Lee.

PRESIDENT HOLDS PARLEY ON NAVAL CONFERENCE PACT

limited are, in the opinion of that power, materially affected by new construction by any nation whose auxiliary program is not limited by the treaty, that power will notify the other of the amount and kind of building it requires. Thereupon those other powers shall be entitled to make a proportionate increase in the same category or categories."

That the situation which gives rise to this cause is the great stumbling block in the way of successful application for five years of Rapidan limitation figures has long been evident. British comment today makes it probable that, failing agreement on the French building program, of which there is no sign, the Rapidan figures in at least one category are obsolete before the treaty is signed.

This is admittedly the meaning of a paragraph in the British "white paper" just laid before Parliament. "That figure of 150,000 tons of destroyers for the British commonwealth of nations," reads that government document, "must be conditional on an agreement destroyer and submarine strength of European powers represented at the London conference. This will be the subject of further negotiations with the powers concerned."

Since there is authority for stating that as a result of the outcome of this conference and speeding up of Italian building plans the French intend to accelerate rather than retard their 100,000-ton submarine program, failing the miracle of an accord, it is obvious that Great Britain is now serving notice that the Rapidan figures will not do for destroyers. It is known that the admiralty intends to build 50,000 tons of these craft in excess of the treaty.

Moreover, in certain circles, where these facts have become generally known in advance, it is believed that Italy intends to take advantage of the battleship clause in the treaty to lay down two or possibly three new battle cruisers of great speed, of 23,000 tons each.

Viewpoint of Italians.

These would keep within the limit of 70,000 tons allowed for capital ships not built under the Washington treaty of 1921-22. The Italians will claim these ships are a reply to Premier Andre Tardieu's announced one or two French battle cruisers.

Great Britain, however, has bound herself under the treaty now completed to build no more capital ships for five years. She can not, therefore, retort in kind to the contemplated construction of ships which in theory can sink any British ship except the Rodney and the Nelson and run away even from those two dreadnaughts.

The safeguarding clause, however, does permit Great Britain, in the event of alarm at continental building, to construct as much additional tonnage as she thinks necessary in auxiliary classes, and it is known that the new capital ships of France and Italy, if built, will greatly disturb the admiralty.

Senator Robinson's statement defending the wisdom of the United States in agreeing to the safeguarding clause, if read in the light of the situation outlined above, becomes more clear. The United States, he says in effect, can not take responsibility for defending Great Britain in case she should find herself outbuilt and not permitted to make defensive arrangements under treaty limitations, and so in that case the Rapidan figures will have to go overboard.

Text of Statement.

Senator Robinson's statement said: "Since the limitation of armament is a voluntary process which no sovereign power has the right to enforce on another, it is wise in principle to enter into this arrangement, for by so doing we avoid responsibility for insisting that any other nation must have its hands tied in possible emergencies."

"This clause does not follow Article XXI of the Washington Treaty, which I objected to when it was entered into, on the ground that it might entangle us in European naval problems and policies. While it is to be hoped that no situation will arise under which any of the three powers may find it necessary to increase their tonnage of auxiliary vessels, prudence calls for provision for such a contingency.

"If a real emergency should arise, I should want the United States to be free to act without consent of others and of course we must concede the same right to them. It is desirable that those who limit their means of defense should feel safe in that limitation. Otherwise they would not continue the process of limitation."

Statement in Commons.

Commander J. M. Kenworthy was told by Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden in the House of Commons today that the safeguarding clause is not intended to apply to any particular "fleet or fleets." This was in answer to a question directed at First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, but passed on to Mr. Snowden, asking whether the clause meant British adherence to the two-power standard in Europe."

Mr. Snowden's official reply seemed to many members of the House at variance with the facts; but it was privately suggested later that the answer is strictly accurate, since the safeguarding clause refers to no particular fleet or fleets and could be invoked by Great Britain should Spain, Turkey—or Switzerland—become a naval menace during the life of the treaty.

Man Is Acquitted In Highway Death

Loudoun Jury Holds That Auto Other Than Alvin Clark's Killed Victim.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., April 17.—After hearing witnesses for two days in the case of the Commonwealth versus Alvin Clark, 21 years old, of Wheatland, who was indicted in the October term of circuit court of Loudoun County on a hit-and-run charge, the jury this afternoon returned a verdict of not guilty. The jury was out about 10 minutes.

It was alleged that Clark ran over Clarence Slack, 35 years old, of near Hamilton, in this coutny, who was found dead about 6 a. m. August 25 near Hamilton Station. It was brought out at the trial that another car, the identity of the driver not being known, had passed along the road where the body was found at an earlier hour.

It was also proved by witnesses that Clark passed over the road where the body was found between 2:45 and 3 o'clock that morning. It was also brought out that women were in the car which struck Slack, and in Clark's car there was only one other man, Robert Rabold, of Purcellville.

RASKOB MENTIONED IN WET FUND INQUIRY

from these people for the association's drive against the dry law.

The letter, purporting to have been written last November by W. P. Smith, of Philadelphia, a vice president of the Antiprohibition Association, to Joseph R. Hamlen, of Boston, said letters were being sent to "some large contributors to the Democratic and Republican campaign funds last year" and that Mr. Raskob was signing "for the Democrats."

"We are writing to some of our directors at the present time," the letter said, "in an effort to secure the balance of our budget by the end of the year and also to some large contributors to the Democratic and Republican campaign funds last year.

"The latter letters are being signed by Mr. Lammot Du Pont for the Republicans, and Mr. John J. Raskob for the Democrats. I inclose copies of both letters for your information—these letters being slightly different for the Republican and Democratic parties."

Mr. Raskob testified recently before the lobby committee that he had contributed $65,000 to the organization and that one of its purposes was election of representatives favoring repeal or modification of prohibition laws.

It was read while the committee was questioning Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, for the second day, concerning the activities of the organization in advocating repeal of the dry laws.

Mr. Curran, who was directed to reappear today for further questioning, said he did not know the letter had been written. It was read by Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, just before adjournment and the witness was questioned only briefly.

Curran Is Questioned.

Questioned concerning finances of the organization Mr. Curran told the committee that more than $1,000,000 would be needed this year to carry on its work. It expended $427,213 last year.

A letter he had written to Percy S. Straus, of New York, last January, which was placed in the record, said the chief plan in impressing upon Congress that the country was "mostly wet" would consist of holding State-wide referenda similar to those conducted last year in Wisconsin and previously in Montana, Nevada and New York.

Mr. Curran asserted that these States, and also Maryland, already were in "revolt" against prohibition and that this year's campaign would begin in Massachusetts and extend to other States "as fast as we can reach them."

People Against Dry Law, Claim.

Reiterating that the people of the United States were 3 to 1 against prohibition, Mr. Curran said that the present Congress was 3 to 1 for prohibition and it would do no good to "lobby" in Washington.

"Congress hasn't caught up with the people yet," he asserted, adding that he thought it was a good thing because it would insure that another "mistake" on prohibition would not be made.

"This is the dryest Congress we have ever had," he said, smiling at the four lobby committee members present, three of whom are dry.

"But," he added, "this is the bottom of the hill. This is the turning point."

Says Congress Has Retrograded.

"So you don't see that any progress has been made in Congress for prohibition?" asked Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, a dry.

"No," Mr Curran replied. "There has been retrogression."

At the outset of the hearing Mr. Curran charged that some prohibition agents did not fully represent the facts in making reports concerning killings in which they participated.

He said they made reports to "save their own skins" and that Assistant Secretary Lowman, of the Treasury Department, in charge of prohibition, "faithfully reflects that subordinate's report which is partisan and not complete."

51 Are Indicted For Poisoned Rum

Sale of Jamaica Ginger That Caused Paralysis Is Alleged.

Cincinnati, April 17 (A.P.).—Two indictments, involving individuals and ten firms, were returned today by a Federal grand jury for the alleged sale of Jamaica ginger that resulted in 300 paralysis cases here among persons who used it as a beverage.

The indictments charged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Twenty overt acts were contained in the first indictment and 36 in the second.

Among those indicted were Austin E. Dolan, Boston; Harry Gross, Boston; Irving S. Wolfe, Altoona, Pa.; George Hennigan, Marion, Ind.; P. W. Whitehurst, Corinth, Miss.; Hill Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Walter Anderson, New York; J. Carr Boyd, Brooklyn; Sam Wheeler, Johnson City, Tenn.; Henry Berger, Marion, Ind.; S. A. Hall, Brooklyn; Abraham Michaels, New York; John J. McVeigh, New York; Hub Products Co., Inc., Boston, and James B. Rowan, Marion, Ind.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 4:55 p. m. to noon today.

Audit committee favorably reported the Blaine resolution calling for investigation of Government leases on postoffice buildings.

Passed a bill to give preference, under existing immigration limitations, to aliens needed by American employers for special work.

Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, charged Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., with seeking to form a "world-wide radio trust" through business affiliation of the General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and the Radio Corporation of America.

Vice President Curtis appointed Senator Vale (Republican), Vermont, to take the place of Senator Bingham on the campaign funds investigating committee.

Passed and sent to House the Walcott bill to appropriate $2,876 for James R. Sheffield, former American Ambassador to Mexico, expended by him in remodeling the Government's embassy building in Mexico City.

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, appearing before the lobby committee, charged that some of the reports by Government agents of prohibition slayings did not fully represent the facts.

Chairman Overman, of the judiciary subcommittee, said he would make a report to the full committee Monday on the House bill to transfer prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:55 p. m. to noon today.

Approved the independent offices supply bill carrying $553,523,116.

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, appeared before the rules committee and suggested that all deported communists be placed on some stipulated island in the Philippines so they "can practice communism all they want to."

Representative Hope (Republican), Kansas, introduced a bill authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate all phases of crop insurance.

Postoffice committee approved the revised Watres bill to authorize the Postmaster General to let air mail contracts on mileage instead of poundage basis and to permit passenger air lines to transport mail.

Lyman E. Wakefield, vice president of the First Bank Stock Corporation, of Minneapolis, appearing before the banking committee, testified that there was no danger of elimination of banking competition in the Northwest through development of group banking.

Representative Swing (Republican), California, introduced a bill authorizing the construction of a veterans hospital in southern California at a cost of $2,000,000.

Brickbats & Bouquets

—By JAMES HAY, JR.—

TAKE it from the campaign scouts: the Hon. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen is, politically speaking, the champion Mexican jumping bean of Jersey.

This bean, by the way, leaps from side to side of any line, question or issue with such dazzling rapidity as to produce the illusion that, though legless, it can straddle with all the gayety, grace and agility of a riding master.

Mr. Frelinghuysen, who was known as "Jovial Joe" while he was in the Senate from 1916 to 1922, has developed the ingenuity of the jumping bean, according to his political opponents, as a result of the importance of the liquor question in New Jersey and his ardent desire to beat Dwight W. Morrow for the nomination in the primary next summer and so return to the delights and dignities of the upper house.

* * * *

"BUT Frelinghuysen," said one of the Morrow supporters who was in Washington yesterday, "is up against a tough proposition. When he was in the Senate before, he was an outspoken dry and voted accordingly. What he is now, remains to be seen. He hasn't said, and we believe that he'll disclose his present stand on liquor only after Mr. Morrow has come back from London and stated his."

Less than a month ago Douglas G. Thomson, chairman of the Morrow primary campaign committee, speaking with that charming, not to say brutal, frankness which characterizes one politician when craving the downfall, doom and dissolution of another, joyously declared:

"I've heard that Mr. Frelinghuysen has already written fourteen statements on the prohibition question, trying in each to see how many votes he could appeal to, and tearing them all up as so many b ad jobs. He'll eventually issue a statement which he considers most expedient at that particular time."

* * * *

OTHER reports are that the gentleman with the alleged quick-leaping talent will ultimately turn his back on his legislative record as a dry and come out either for repeal of all Volsteadism or for modification on the ground that the law, which looked grand at first blink, has proved itself a failure.

On the other hand, Mr. Morrow himself has shown no unseemly haste in juggling the two-edged sword of prohibition in his bare hands. He has made no campaign pronouncement about it, and his friends go no further than to say that he can be depended upon to advocate something constructive which would let the dry States remain dry as they are and the wet States have their liquor.

At this writing the betting odds seem to be that, as soon as Mr. Morrow makes his revelation—which is confidently expected to be of some degree of wetness despite the dryness of the Administration—Mr. Frelinghuysen will come out with something still wetter.

But who can predict the eventual landing place of a gentleman credited with the acrobatic oddities of a Mexican jumping bean?

SENATOR ROBINSON PRAISES SAFEGUARD CLAUSE IN TREATY

hearings at which naval authorities here as well as the naval men who attended the conference will be given full opportunity to be heard. Views privately expressed in naval circles yesterday were almost without exception adverse to the pact.

Representative A. Piatt Andrew, of Massachusetts, member of the House naval affairs committee, reflected naval opinion, including the opinions of members of the general board of the Navy, in a statement issued yesterday highly critical of the treaty. An official British white paper has given details which until yesterday were not known to the naval experts.

Senators Are Noncommittal.

Senate leaders, including Mr. Borah, told the President they would be inclined to study the text of the treaty sympathetically. But these senators will not commit themselves to support the pact until they see precisely what the treaty contains. This was made clear to the President and to acting Secretary of State Cotton, who explained the present situation in detail on the basis of reports received from the American delegation and discussed the matter at the President's direction with Senator Borah at the White House.

Mr. Borah is understood to feel that a single sentence incorporated in the treaty at the last moment may completely alter the situation. He is not willing to pass judgment without seeing the text.

On the basis of information so far available the treaty is not regarded as having brought about reduction and the limitation provided for is not a definite limitation, as Great Britain insists upon reserving the right to disregard the limitations in case France carries out her naval building program. Mr. Hoover has been informed that the British admiralty will not agree to the pact unless Great Britain remains free to build beyond the stipulated limits without the consent of any other power.

Held Elastic Limitation.

The same right to build beyond the treaty limits is accorded to the United States and Japan. Thus the three-power pact is regarded by Senate leaders as bringing about an elastic limitation to be measured by future contingencies and not measured by the actual figures of limitation appearing in the pact.

But it is by no means certain that the Senate will seriously object to this sort of elastic limitation. Senator Borah, for example, will probably not regard such a provision as adversely affecting the United States. Senators who favor a strong and adequate naval defense may be inclined to see an advantage in a provision which warns the United States not only to keep the Navy up to treaty level but to be ready at any time to build beyond the figures of the pact.

President Hoover told his callers that he has not yet decided when he will send the pact to the Senate. Senator Borah is quite willing to assume the responsibility of dealing with the treaty before Congress adjourns this summer. But Mr. Borah wants to have the treaty promptly disposed of, one way or the other. If it is submitted before adjournment. The fact that the date of adjournment might have to be postponed beyond June would not deter the senator from Idaho from seeking definite action.

Adverse to Delay.

It is understood, however, that Senator Borah and others are distinctly adverse to any program whereby the pact would be submitted to the Senate at the fag end of the present session and allowed to remain on the doorstep of the foreign relations committee until December. If the President desires action before June, the Senate leaders hope he will send the pact to the Senate without delay. If the President does not desire action before June, it is hoped by the Senate leaders that he will delay submitting the treaty until December.

The reticence of Senate leaders to discuss the treaty pending its official completion did not check discussion in naval circles. A British white paper, giving detailed figures, caused consternation to naval officers, with few exceptions. According to the Navy view, America has fared very badly all along the line and the American delegation has made sacrifices far beyond anything ever reported in press dispatches during the progress of the conference.

In battleships, there is no parity, and Great Britain is permitted to keep the superdreadnaught Rodney, while America's contention for the right to build a similar ship and thereby obtain a semblance of parity has been abandoned under pressure, according to naval authorities.

Sacrifice in Cruisers.

In cruisers, America's contention for 21 8-inch-gun cruisers was sacrificed by an agreement to build only 18, and now it develops, according to the official British white paper, that America has agreed to build only 15. This is taken in naval circles as unwelcome confirmation of previous rumors that Japan forced Secretary Stimson to sacrifice 3 more cruisers as a price for the Reed-Matsudaira agreement. The British white paper states "United States undertakes not to complete more than 15 8-inch-gun cruisers before 1935." Altogether, it is difficult to find genuine support among American naval experts for the pact, although certain particular officers have been willing to indorse whatever the State Department desired in this instance.

Representative Andrew, member of the House committee on naval affairs, yesterday issued a lengthy statement highly critical of the pact.

After referring to "the feeble output of the conference" he states:

"The world had been misled to hope for much more sweeping achievements than it was within reason to expect. When Premier MacDonald invited the other governments to participate in the conference he grandiloquently referred to it as a 'disarmament conference.' Under present conditions it could not have been anything of the sort. He and others spoke as if great reductions in naval expenditures were going to flow from it. This was also an impractical and Utopian dream."

Hoover to Order Five Cruisers.

Representative French (Republican), Idaho, said yesterday that President Hoover is about to order the first five cruisers in the present program under terms of the treaty. Under the cruiser construction bill passed a year ago by Congress, the fifteen cruisers would have to be laid down within three years.

The first fiscal year in which the first three would be started is nearing a close. It will be recalled that the President last year announced that work on three of the cruisers would be suspended.

As chairman of the naval appropriations subcommittee, Representative French is in close touch with President Hoover. He said the second allotment of five cruisers would be laid down a year hence in accordance with the program of construction authorized.

Dry Agent Freed In Slaying Trial

Jury in Lynchburg Acquits Man Who Says He Did Not Mean to Kill.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 17.—V. O. Smith, State prohibition agent, was acquitted early tonight of killing J. B. Cox in August, 1928, while the latter was allegedly transporting liquor. The jury was out 45 minutes.

Smith testified that he did not intend to shoot Cox. Mrs. Cox, widow, testified that her husband was not in the habit of carrying firearms. Smith and W. A. Farmer, jointly indicted with him, have testified that they found a pistol on Cox's person after he was dead.

C. H. Gilliam, former patrolman testified that he saw Farmer and Smith chasing Cox's car and that they passed him in Main street at a speed of 70 miles an hour. Farmer testified that Carl Cox, brother of the dead man, told him that his brother had gone for a load of liquor, but Cox denied this.

know that the wars of the future may differ wholly from the old concepts of war," he continued. "Today Russia does not declare war on England. She stirs up trouble within China and India just as she would if she could stir up trouble for us in Mexico or Nicaragua."

That a gain has been made in the navy parley at London was admitted by Mr. Child. Yet parity with another naval power, he said, cannot be more than a pretence when a superior merchant marine can be converted into ships of war.

Conditions in Russia.

Conditions in Russia, and the effect they are apt to have upon other countries, were graphically pictured by two speakers last night. The first address was made by Princess Cantacuzene, granddaughter of President and Mrs. U. S. Grant, and the other was by the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University.

Dr. Walsh assured the delegates that they had no apologies to make for their campaign in behalf of national defense. He deplored American observers who visit Russia and see it only superficially and come back to sing the praises of the Soviet without seeing the darker side of the picture.

The people of Russia look to America with gratitude, Princess Cantacuzene declared, because we have not recognized the tyranny which today holds them down. "The people of Russia will look to us for aid when they come from under the yoke of the tyrant," she declared.

Called False Doctrine.

"The Soviet government is not Russia," said the princess, "but it is a bloody heel of terrorism that reigns there, attacking the home, the church and even the childhood of the land. Nowhere else in the world are there such bands of criminal children as the Bolsheviki and Soviet have developed in Russia.

"It is the same forces that are trying to keep the real idealism and patriotism in Russia that come to this country to undermine our churches and our homes by preaching false doctrines to our schools and our women's clubs."

The princess, who spoke as an American woman and as a Daughter of the American Revolution, praised the stand the society is taking in fighting these forces.

Many D. A. R delegates joined with the Children of the American Revolution in paying tribute to the late Mrs. Rhett Goode, chaplain general of the D. A. R. and president of the C. A. R., yesterday afternoon when a molded stone was placed in the fabric of Washington Cathedral in her memory.

Procession Is Spoiled.

Due to the inclement weather the procession of C. A. R. from the Peace Cross to the north yard of the cathedral could not be held. The procession formed in the south cloister aisle of Bethlehem Chapel and the patriotic ceremony took place in that chapel. At its conclusion a small group of national officers of the C. A. R. and members of Mrs. Goode's family were taken on the main floor of the cathedral, where the stone was made ready for the placing with appropriate ceremonies.

A memorial address was delivered in Bethlehem Chapel by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington. The bishop told of Mrs. Goode's devotion to her country and her Christian spirit and impressed upon his youthful hearers the lessons of her life. Tributes were also paid to Mrs. Goode's memory by Mrs. Percy Quin, national president of the Children of the American Revolution and Mrs. Fred T. DuBois, honorary national president of the same society. The Salute to the Flag was led by Graeme Smallwood, jr., and Sidney Hayward recited a patriotic poem. Members of Mrs. Goode's family and close friends witnessed the stone placing.

While the three or four hundred C. A. Rs and D. A. Rs present were taken on a pilgrimage through the Cathedral chapel, wreaths were laid on the tombs of the late President Woodrow Wilson and Admiral George Dewey in Bethlehem Chapel.

Epic of Service.

The arrangements for the memorial ceremony were made by Mrs. Clayton Emig, of Washington, formerly national organizing secretary of the C. A. R.

The epic of D. A. R. service to the country was further unfolded yesterday when more national chairmen of committees organized in each State division gave their annual reports. The greatest ovation of the day was given Mrs. William Sherman Walker, retiring vice president general from Washington State, when she made her report as national chairman of national defense. The applause continued for at least five minutes and at the conclusion of Mrs. Walker's report, upon the demand of delegates, the paper was ordered printed and distributed among the members of the Continental Congress.

Mrs. Walker corrected the oft repeated charge of the pacifists that the cost of defense amounts to more than 80 per cent of Federal expenditure. Mrs. Walker claimed that only five and a fraction cents out of every tax dollar go for providing national defense.

Confuse War Cost.

"Some confuse the cost of past wars with the cost of national defense," declared Mrs. Walker. "This should not be done, for in addition to the public debt the cost of past wars include pensions, the care of veterans, their dependents and their hospitalization."

The speaker also refuted the claim that the Army and Navy want war. That the D. A. R. still stands for a "navy commensurate with America's past, present and future," was reiterated by Mrs. Walker in vigorous paragraphs opposing any undue limitation of armament in the present state of world affairs.

Filipino graduate nurses are to be sent to the United States for further training through the funds of the Caroline E. Holt scholarship fund committee, it was reported yesterday through its chairman, Mrs. Harold S. Dickerson, State regent of China.

Child Character Training.

Character training of children through arousing their patriotic ideals was set forth as an aim of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic, an organization for children affiliated with the D. A. R. This report was given by Mrs. Ike Barton McFarland, chairman. Mrs. McFarland said that the youth of today "can be a firebrand of disaster or it may be a torch of enlightenment," according to its training.

She advocated the formation of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls groups as a means of counteracting the activities of subversive groups for juniors.

"Communists, radicals, reds, atheists, young pioneers and whatnot are continually on the alert to enlist the interest of school children as well as college students," Mrs. McFarland declared. That Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general, is deeply interested in the work of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic was asserted by Mrs. McFarland.

Erection of Monuments.

In her report as chairman of the national committee of old trails roads Mrs. John Trigg Moss, of St. Louis, Mo., told of the erection of twelve pioneer monuments along the national highway from coast to coast. These pioneer monuments representing a heroic figure of a pioneer woman with her children at her knee are being carefully preserved by chapters of the D. A. R. in communities where they are located. The nearest one to Washington is at Bethesda, Md.

Praise of the new code for motion pictures, recently announced by Will H. Hays, was pronounced in the report of Mrs. Richard Russel, of Hollywood, Calif., national chairman of better films of the D. A. R.

To Receive Souvenirs.

Mrs. Russell announced that as a reward of good work in reviewing films, subchairmen of the committee in the six geographical divisions would receive souvenirs donated by famous screen stars. Among those available for these awards and which are now on exhibition in Memorial Continental Hall are the whip used by Douglas Fairbanks in "The Taming of the Shrew;" the pewter goblet from which Lawrence Tibbett drank in "The Rogue Song;" a silken blue writing pad donated by Gloria Swanson, a silver cigarette case from Maurice Chevalier, a corsage of flowers worn by Mary Brian and a brooch given by Laura La Plante.

In conclusion the report stated that the committee had received splendid cooperation from the motion picture producers in Hollywood. More than 20,000 reviews were made by D. A. R. observers throughout the country and sent to the committee.

More than 125,000 manuals for immigrants were distributed to foreigners entering this country, through the D. A. R. last year, Mrs. Myra Hazard, chairman, reported yesterday afternoon. The manual has now been translated in Yiddish. Each member of the D. A. R. will be assessed 10 cents during the coming year to pay for the publication and distribution of the Manual for Immigrants. The splendid total of $113,317.10 was contributed by D. A. R. chapters to the cause of patriotic education last year, according to a comprehensive report made by Mrs. Charles E. Herrick, of Illinois, chairman.

District Aids Move.

The District of Columbia contributed $3,717.80 of this amount. Sixteen chapters sent boys to training camp at a cost of $10 per boy and gifts of new sweaters, stockings and other clothing were sent to every pupil at the Blue Ridge Industrial School.

The D. A. R. Congress took a firm stand against the commitment of this country to "entangling alliances" operating to limit full liberty or decision in international affairs. When a resolution to that effect was presented by Mrs. Robert J. Johnston, chairman of resolutions, it was passed amid cheers without a dissenting vote.

Other resolutions adopted included those recommending April 3 as American Creed Day, and another petitioning the commission arranging the Yorktown sesquicentennial of the Battle of Yorktown in October, 1931, to designate one day as "D. A. R. Day."

A number of other resolutions have been presented to the resolutions committee, which meets early each morning to consider them.

One hundred and ninety-four broadcasts have been made by the D. A. R. through radio stations during the last year. This statement was made in a report read yesterday by Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, chairman of radio.

To Observe Good Friday.

Today being Good Friday there will be no session of the D. A. R. Congress from 12 to 3 p. m. At 3:30 p. m. Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general, accompanied by many of the delegates, will make a pilgrimage to Arlington to place a wreath upon the Tomb of America's Unknown Soldier. Mrs. Stephen Abbot, of Utah, will be chairman of the pilgrimage, and serving with her on the committee is Mrs. Donald McCrae, jr., president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Tonight the speakers will be Alfred H. Haag, director, Bureau of Research, United States Shipping Board, who will speak on "The Merchant Marine," and Frederick William Wile, whose subject will be "Impressions of the London Naval Conference."

The graves of 1,372 Revolutionary soldiers were located last year under the auspices of the committee of the Preservation of Historic Spots, it was

Double Murder Frame-Up Bared

Alleged Confession Says Two Were Urged to Rob Bank, and Shot Dead.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 17 (A.P.).—A. P. Boyt, a barber, confessed today, the district attorney's office announced, that the killing of two Negroes who attempted to hold up the First State Bank of Polytechnic last week was a frame-up by four white men in a plot to collect a $5,000 reward for dead bank bandits.

Boyt and John Alsup, former policeman, are charged with the murder of the Negroes, Will Tate and George Terrell. Alsup was one of the men implicated in the statement made by Boyt at the district attorney's office. Two other white men are under arrest.

Last Thursday the Negroes rushed into the Bank at Polytechnic, a suburb, with drawn guns and shouted to the employes to hold up their hands. Alsup, who had been employed by the bank as a guard on a tip that the bank was to be held up, opened fire and shot down the Negroes. Subsequently the Bankers Association announced that the slayer of the Negroes would not be rewarded inasmuch as the Polytechnic Bank had not contributed to the reward fund.

Ad Club to Honor City Heads.

The Washington Advertising Club will honor the two new District Commissioners at its Tuesday luncheon at the National Press Club. George Akerson, secretary to President Hoover, will be the chief speaker.

Philadelphia Member Heads Dames Society

Mrs. Percy Schelly, of Philadelphia, has been elected president of the National Society of Dames of the Loyal Leagon, it was announced yesterday following the concluding session at the Willard Hotel.

Other national officers elected are: Mrs. Logan Tucker, senion vice president; Mrs. Wellington Q. Hunt, of Detroit, junior vice president; Mrs. Isabella L. Thompson, of New Jersey, recorder; Mrs. Charles O. Cook, of Detroit, treasurer; Mrs. Frank B. King, of Washington, registrar; Miss Edna B. Ruby, of Indiana, historian; and Mrs. Samuel Reber, of New York, chancellor.

Police Hunt Missing Boy.

Police last night were asked to search for Rex Roadhouse, 15 years old, who disappeared from his home, Barcroft, Va., April 7.

The boy wore a gray suit and a gray cap when he disappeared.

CONFERENCE DENIES LACE TARIFF BOOST

Senate Increases Rejected and Article Returns to Old Rates.

SEVEN MORE DECISIONS

(Associated Press.)

Senate increases in duties on narrow laces, against which popular demonstrations were staged recently in France, were eliminated from the tariff bill yesterday by the Senate and House conferees, who all but completed the settlement of differences between the two legislative branches over the rate sections.

After concluding work on the sundries schedule and reaching agreements on half of the free list, the conferees returned to the sugar schedule and accepted the Senate increases in levies on maple sugar and syrup. These provide for a rate of 8 cents a pound on maple sugar, now dutiable at 4 cents; and 5½ cents a pound on maple syrup, also now taxed at 4 cents.

By rejecting the Senate rates on narrow laces, the conferees restored the existing levy of 90 per cent on all laces. The Senate increase, sponsored by Senator Hebert (Republican), Rhode Island, would have raised the average ad valorem protection for the lace paragraph to more than 125 per cent.

Contending the "threat of higher lace duties made France very angry" and induced the French Parliament to enact in retaliation yesterday higher levies on American automobiles, Representative Clancy (Republican), Michigan, in a statement, said the conferees should be congratulated by the American automobile industry for their action in killing the Senate enactment."

That the conferees will finish their task in a week or ten days was predicted yesterday by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader. Of the hundreds of rates considered by the Senate and House groups, only seven have been reserved for future decision. Most of these will be voted upon by the House before final conference action. They affect Cuban raw sugar, cement, casein, lumber, shingles, silver, and cigarette books and paper.

NOTES OF THE D. A. R.

Mrs. John Leonardy, State regent of Florida, was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday. Mrs. Leonardy is a member of the law firm of Leonardy & Leonardy, of Sanford, Fla. She is also a member of the tax commission of Florida—recently appointed by Gov. Carleton. Mrs. Leonardy and her Florida delegation have their headquarters at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Amos P. Colborn, a page from Upland, Calif., has been designated by the American Legion of California their representative to place a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery today. The ceremony will follow the placing of a wreath by Mrs. Hobart, president general. Mrs. Colborn also will place a wreath in the name of the Auxiliary Post, Unit 112.

Mrs. William G. Wheeler and Mrs. Fred L. Volland, chairman and vice chairman of the lost and found committee, report finding and returning 57 varieties of lost articles. The list includes about everything from a diamond-set platinum watch to odd gloves of every hue, length and size.

Mrs. Jessie Waldo, of Janesville Chapter, Janesville, Wis., is a descendant of the same Revolutionary ancestor as Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mrs. G. W. Wallace Hagner, chairman of program, might fill a volume about dreams that have come true, could also relate interesting stories about the trials of a chairman planning and carrying out a three-times-a-day program to run six consecutive days. That such a program should be diversified enough to please women from every nook and corner of the country, at the same time, confined to the objects of the society in whose interests they are assembled in Washington in annual conference "during the week of April 19th" (the date of the Battle of Lexington), is a task in itself.

To have the President of the United States on such a program, and to have him interested enough to remain on the platform during the entire evening thereafter, was a tribute to her success.

Mrs. William Mason Harris, regent of Manhattan Chapter, New York City, presided at the annual chapter dinner. Guests of honor included National Chairman Mrs. James S. Stanfield, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, Md. New York State chairman included Mrs. Arthur W. Arnold, Mrs. Flora Knapp Dickinson, Mrs. William H Pouch and Mrs. F. Bradley Reynolds. Other guests included Mrs. Emily S. Lyon, of Williamsport, Pa.; Mrs. Audley K. Leon, New York City, and Miss Helen King, of Montclair, N. J., who was one of the pages. Manhattan Chapter members attending the Congress are Mrs. Solomon de Solo, Mrs. Henry M. McDowell, Miss Lulu A. Lawrence, Mrs. Lewis S Leonard, Mrs. Thomas B. Lowere, Mrs. Pirie MacDonald, Mrs. Edith D. Rowe and Miss Minnie B. Wade.

Mrs. John Campbell, honorary vice president general, of Denver, and the State regent of Colorado, Mrs. E Thomas Boyd, of Denver, entertained at a delegation luncheon yesterday. The Colorado delegation will have a table at the banquet Saturday evening at the Willard Hotel.

The State meeting was held in the New Jersey room of Continental Memorial Hall on Wednesday. The number included, in addition to the State and national officers mentioned, Mrs. Gerald Schuyler, former national reporter general to the Smithsonian Institution of Denver.

Three sisters met here for congress. Mrs. George Buntin, Fort Harrison Chapter, from Terre Haute, Ind.; Mrs. Mary E N. Borden, Colonel Timothy Bigelow Chapter, Worchester, Mass. They are the guests of Mrs. W. E. Gillmore, wife of Brig. Gen. W. E. Gilmore, U. S. A., Washington, D. C., delegate from the Piqua Chapter, Ohio.

An outstanding figure in the Texas delegation is Mrs E J. Fellowes, curator of the San Antonio de Bexar Chapter of San Antonio, Tex. Mrs. Fellowes will be 80 years of age next month, but is more keenly alive to every interest than most of half her years. Mrs. Fellowes' father, George Wilkins Kendall in 1837 founded the New Orleans Picayune, which was for years one of the leading newspapers of the South. In 1841 he was a member of the Santa Fe expedition, and following the Mexican War during which he served as said to Gen. North, he served as a member of the expedition which surveyed the boundary between Texas and Mexico.

Mrs. Henry Lyne, of the Colorado Chapter, entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon at her home, Stoneleigh Court.

10 HELD AND 8 MORE HUNTED IN RUM RING

Atlantic City Syndicate Had Unusual Organization, Prosecutor Says.

SIX PLANTS OPERATED

Atlantic City, N. J., April 17 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Eight men are under arrest here, two are being held in Philadelphia and eight more are being sought in this vicinity as members of the Atlantic Highlands liquor syndicate which Linus A. Kelly, aid to Special Assistant Prosecutor Herbert C. Bartlett, of Atlantic County, today described as an "extraordinary high-powered modern business organization."

According to Kelly, who presented the evidence on which the grand jury yesterday returned the indictments naming the eighteen, the bootleg ring operated at least six plants with a capacity of 10,000 gallons of alcohol a week which wholesaled at $3 a gallon.

The organization was remarkably complete, Kelly said, including expert distillers, bottlers, mechanics and clerks and even "spotters," whose job was to select advantageous sites for speakeasies.

Those arrested here and released in $10,000 bail each are Morris Cotts, owner of the Acme Bottling Co.; Samuel Smoger, an electrician; Max Uretsky, described as "boss" of the outfit; John Gotthardt, another alleged principal; Mark Rose, proprietor of the Rhode Island Garage, Atlantic City; Samuel Ross, his brother, owner of the Rose Express Co.; John Davis, Negro laborer, and Frank Kotok, an alleged "spotter."

The two held in Philadelphia in $10,000 bail each are Isaac Klein, a tinsmith, said to have had a "contract" to make the stills for the various distilling plants, and Harry Levy.

Branding "B" on Wife Brings Man Jail Term

Chicago, April 17 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Lashed by jealousy, Andrew Bendik, 26, burned the brand "B" on his wife's hip and was before Judge Lupe today for the offense.

"He tied me to a bedpost and branded me when I was a little late in getting supper," she testified.

A police matron testified to the "B" on the wife's hip. Bendik was given three months in the House of Correction and compelled to turn over all his funds to his wife.

De Sibours Sell Plane By Abyssinians' Order

Nairobi, April 17, (A.P.).—After two months of an adventurous flight from England, the Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Sibour, who is the only daughter of Gordon Selfridge, American department store owner in London, have settled down on their farm in Kenya Colony.

They had to sell their plane in Abyssinia and travel from Djiputi to Nairobi by boat and train, the first time in four years they had used a train for transportation. They were allowed to enter Abyssinia in their gipsy moth plane on condition that they sell the machine, which they agreed to do.

Prisoner Denies Illicit Romance

Osborne Tells Jury He Shot Friend in Self-Defense; Contradicts Widow.

Batesville, Ark., April 17 (A.P.).—Calmly denying charges of an illicit romance with the wife of Maurice Osborne, a boyhood friend, J. P. Barber, 22, took the stand today in his trial on a murder charge and testified he shot Osborne in self-defense in the Osborne home at Cord last July 1.

His testimony was in contradiction to that given by Mrs. Norma Osborne, widow of the slain man, who, the State alleges, was intimate with Barber.

Barber said he went to the Osborne home that night to meet Maurice Osborne to discuss a hunting trip. Entering the kitchen door, he said, he saw Osborne holding an automatic shotgun aimed at him. Leaping at his friend, he told the jury, he reached for the gun, and in the scuffle it was discharged into Osborne's face. He denied he saw Mrs Osborne the night of the shooting.

John D. Rockefeller Leaves Florida

Ormond Beach, Fla., April 17 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller today left for his summer home at Lakewood, N. J., after spending more than four months at his Ormond winter residence.

Mr. R. C. Kirby Tells How Cuticura Healed Itchy Eruptions.

"Some time ago I began breaking out with small, red pimples. They bothered me at night, itching until I could hardly sleep, and when I scratched them it caused eruptions. They bothered me about two months.

"I tried several different remedies but was not successful until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them a few times, as per directions, the itching stopped, and in two or three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) R. C. Kirby, R. D. 4, Manchester, Tenn., June 28, 1929.

reported yesterday by the chairman, Mrs. James E. Caldwell.

Eight Given Pensions.

A marker, it was reported, was placed by the Captain Molly Pitcher Chapter of the District of Columbia on the grave of Leonard Cockendorfer, a Revolutionary officer, in this city.

Eight women, daughters of men who fought in the American Revolution, are given pensions by the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Benjamin L. Purcell, chairman of the committee on real daughters, told the delegates yesterday.

These real daughters, a living link between the D. A. R. and their heroic ancestors through whose valor they obtain membership in the society, include Mrs. Annie K. Gregory, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Adalia C. Hatch, of Massachusetts; Mrs. Frances W. B. Holbrook, New York; Mrs. Caroline P. Randall, New Hampshire; Mrs. Angelina Avery, Williamantic, Conn.; Mrs. Mary Pool Newsom, Miss Sara Pool, of Georgia; Mrs. Maria S. Allen, of New Lexington, Ohio, and Mrs. Helen M. Barrett, of Michigan.

ATTACK UPON THE SUPREME COURT.

Opposition to the confirmation of Judge Parker as an associate justice of the Supreme Court has reached the idiotic stage, to which all radical agitation always travels. Senators, who under ordinary circumstances would pass upon the nominee's qualifications, his character and his ability as a jurist, are listening to flimsy objections from agitators and radical organizations, backed by threats of defeat. It has become, not a question as to whether Judge Parker meets with the approval of a majority in the Senate, but what effect a vote for him will have on the campaigns in doubtful States.

A certain amount of opposition would be raised against any candidate President Hoover might name. The President would not choose a person who, in his opinion, would not uphold the Constitution and the laws of the United States. Some members of the insurgent bloc in the Senate are opposed to any one who could meet those qualifications. They want justices on the Supreme bench who will interpret the Constitution in accordance with the wishes of Congress. They deny the right of the court to set aside acts of the legislature which are repugnant to the Constitution. In short, their purpose is to nullify the Constitution and set up Congress, which they hope to control, as the court of last resort.

Opposition from this source does not reflect upon Judge Parker. This is the same cry that was raised with such futility against Chief Justice Hughes. It is really an attack upon the court itself and upon the judicial power. This clique should be frank and come out in the open and fight for the overthrow of the court. That is what it is trying to do.

There is no foundation for opposing Judge Parker as an enemy of labor. He complied with the law in the decision he rendered in the Red Jacket case. Yet it is being dissected years after it was rendered to find traces of a mental bias. This opinion was rendered under the threat of a serious emergency. A strike was in progress; human lives were in danger. The injunction granted by the lower court was sustained, not as a permanent policy defining the rights of labor, but to deal with a crisis. Only the most prejudiced mind could use such a document on which to judge the qualifications of a jurist. Let the whole of Judge Parker's decisions be subject to scrutiny and, if they betray a mental bias either for or against labor, the public will admit that he is not a fit candidate for the Supreme Court.

The charge that Judge Parker is biased on the race question, to such an extent that he can not administer justice, is palpably absurd. Yet it appears that some senators have worked themselves into a state of frenzy for fear that they would lose their places if they should vote to confirm Judge Parker. If senators are afraid to stand by their own convictions in voting for a nominee to the highest tribunal in the land, then the court is on the road to becoming what the radicals want it to be—a mere rubber stamp, to obey the dictates of Congress, even in violation of the Constitution.

It can not be that the Senate is afraid to place a judge on the Supreme bench who would obey the Constitution.

TARIFF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

The tariff conference committee is a safety valve of no small importance. Partisanship frequently defeats the purpose of tariff legislation on the floor of either chamber, because every one is confident that the conference committee will apply the rules of common sense which are ignored in the heat of debate. Casting a ballot with a loud voice to please constituents while secretly hoping that that vote will be nullified in conference is one of the commonest tricks practiced in Congress.

The case of hides, leather and shoes is particularly interesting, because a majority in the Senate recognized the need of protection on all three, yet voted to keep them on the free list. Four different votes failed to strike a satisfactory balance between duties on the raw materials and the finished products. Advocates on each side apparently realized that an equitable settlement in the Senate was impossible, and left the application of common sense to the conference.

The farmer needs protection against importation of foreign hides. The United States is losing its leadership in the cattle industry to South America because of its cheaper pasture lands. A duty is needed to equalize competition from this source. The boot and shoe industry is also meeting new competition, especially from Czechoslovakia. Cheap labor makes it possible to produce shoes and other leather goods cheaper abroad. It was obviously the duty of Congress to grant adequate protection for hides and leather and compensatory duties for shoes, gloves, &c.

But Senator Borah and other champions of the farmer felt that the manufacturers were demanding too much, and therefore sacrificed their own constituents to injure the shoe industry. This vindictive spirit failed to carry over into the deliberations of the conference committee, and the House rates on hides, leather and shoes have been accepted. Instead of ruinous competition for all branches of the leather industry, there will be protection for all. The committee is doing a good work in saving the radicals from their own excesses.

HUGE DISTRICT DEBT THREATENED.

Senator Capper's scheme for advancing Federal moneys for the municipal center project at 3½ per cent interest should be opposed because of the dangerous precedent it would set. The scheme would not relieve the acute financial distress of the District. It may be admitted that the center development is in the nature of an unusual undertaking—that the city will not be called upon to make a similar development for, in all probability, another 100 years. But other projects press for attention. The District has been held back in its development for several years. The time is approaching when larger budgets are to be expected, and larger budgets will mean increased taxes unless Congress sees fit to return to substantive law and abandon the inequitable and inadequate lump-sum appropriation.

If the Capper proposal becomes law the gates will have been opened to a huge debt. The $15,000,000 that would be advanced thereunder would earn interest during the life of the loan to a total of $4,200,000. The District would make an average annual interest payment to the Treasury of $280,000. No one can foretell what other projects would be forced on the District under a similar financial arrangement.

The five American cities most closely approximating Washington in population have an average net indebtedness of $52,600,000. Their average budget is approximately $32,000,000. Interest on their debt, figured at 3½ per cent, comes to better than $1,800,000 a year. On this basis, 5.6 per cent of their total budget must be paid out in interest. If an indebtedness approximating the average were superimposed upon the present District budget, annual interest charges, figured at 3½ per cent, would come to almost $2,500,000.

The District should be kept on a "cash and carry" basis. This can be done without raising taxes if Congress will cause the Treasury to assume the Government's fair share of the cost of the District government.

LANGUAGE OF TALKIES.

Ever since the talking motion pictures came into general use it has been evident that a decentralization of the industry was at hand. Silent films could be produced in America for the rest of the world. It was not difficult to create a foreign background in Hollywood for filming a picture, and the more popular American films could be shown around the world by the simple device of changing the language of the titles. But not so with the talkies.

Some of the American talkies have been reasonably popular in Europe, in spite of the incongruity of language, because of their novelty. Now that talking pictures are becoming routine entertainment, however, the French, Spanish, German and Italian people are demanding films in their own language. The American market in the immediate future seems to be generally restricted to the English-speaking world.

The hold of the American industry upon English-speaking people is tenacious. The film censorship board of Australia recently issued a report deploring the Americanization of that people by the talkies produced in this country. American talking pictures are popular because they are made to entertain. No other country has been able to give its people just the kind of entertainment they wish. No doubt American films will continue to be shown throughout the world if some plan can be devised for changing the language of the characters.

That is very difficult. It is generally agreed that, to be satisfactory, a French talkie must be produced in France, and so on. Will this limit the American industry's field, or will it mean the establishment of branches in Paris, Berlin and Rome? A group of outstanding producers are now in Paris studying the situation. The export film industry is at a crucial period in its development.

DISAPPEARING VILLAGES.

Modern civilization has not been kind to the country village. Here and there villages in exceptional locations have become the nucleus of industrial centers, but for the most part their evolution has been in the opposite direction. The deserted village is becoming a common spectacle in America.

Abandoned towns were once confined to mining regions and new railway routes. It was not unusual to find a "mushroom" town spring up and then wither away in the early days of Western colonization. But the sight of old-established agricultural centers disappearing from the landscape is a new phenomenon. It can only be explained by the changes that have come over the American people in recent decades.

A recent survey in six States of the Middle West shows that 62 to 80 per cent of small towns suffered a decrease in population since the 1920 census. Most of the others have made no progress, and the increase is often less than the difference between births and deaths. In some cases towns have entirely disappeared, while the population of the surrounding country has been substantially increased.

The ready answer that will be given to the question of cause is the flow of population to the cities. But other factors are much more important, for wizened skeletons of once flourishing towns may be found in prosperous agricultural regions. The sight of an abandoned grist mill, a decrepit school, a decaying church and a deserted blacksmith shop does not mean that people no longer live in this region, but that they no longer have need for those facilities which served them in former days. The country store has been forced out by easy access to the shopping districts of adjacent cities, the mediocre country doctor has lost his practice, the postmaster has been replaced by a rural delivery system, and the children are carried by bus to consolidated schools. With the amusements of the city available and radios in farm homes, what chance has a tiny country showhouse? Indeed, what function has the small community that once supplied its inhabitants with all the necessities of life?

Automobiles, radios, newspapers, &c., make it just as convenient for the farmer to live on his land as in a nearby town. The scant commercial and professional classes of the towns are being enticed into more lucrative and specialized fields. Cities are reaching out and greedily drawing them in. A country district is no longer rural; it is trade territory of some city. The village is vanishing from the economic picture and carrying small-town provincialism with it.

GERMANY'S NAVAL COMEBACK

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

At Versailles the allied nations imposed upon Germany a peace which was designed to reduce her to a second-rate power for half a century. Not only were Germans to be placed in economic bondage for an indefinite period, but they were to be rendered impotent from a military and naval viewpoint.

To find a parallel for such a peace of vengeance—for which Clemenceau declared he had been waiting 49 years—one must go back twenty centuries. Then Titus Flaminius, after beating Philip, of Macedon, at Cynos Cephalae, extorted a tribute of 1,000 talents and a promise that the Macedonian navy should not exceed ten ships.

The allies were a bit more generous to Germany, for she was allowed twelve, with a few torpedo craft. At the time of the armistice Germany was forced to give up practically all her effective surface craft and all her submarines. When the Versailles Treaty was signed the Germans gave up their remaining worth-while ships. They were allowed to keep the remainder—all, except for a few destroyers, ready for the museum. As a further limitation, only a few of these obsolete vessels could be kept in commission: Six very old predreadnaught battleships, six even older cruisers, twelve fairly good destroyers and twelve very old and small torpedo boats. No seaplanes, no naval airships and no submarines were permittted.

In order that there might be no possibility of expanding these forces in war, naval personnel was limited to 15,000, and of those only 1,500 could be officers. Officers joining the navy had to sign up for 25 years and sailors were recruited for 12. No reserve force in any form was permittted. Merchant sailors could not be given naval training. All reserve stocks of weapons, ammunition and equipment were destroyed. Apparently the splendid naval service which Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz had built up with such unparalleled efficiency had been destroyed with true Nelsonic thoroughness.

But, to avoid humbling Germany too far, some more kindly allied statesmen inserted article 190. This gave Germany the right after a period of years to build replacements as follows: Six armored ships of 10,000 tons, six light cruisers of 6,000 tons, twelve destroyers of 800 tons and twelve torepdo boats of 200 tons. Due to a singular lack of foresight the size of guns was not limited. Nor was the method of measuring tonnage defined.

Cheered by the possibilities of article 190, the Germans, like after Jena, went ahead in their seemingly impossible task of reconstructing a navy. First, they selected their officers from the great number who had distinguished themselves in the war. Then they raised the standards for their sailors to obtain the finest in the world. Finally, as a little money became available, they started to build the ships. First came the light cruiser Emden. She was a well-designed vessel of 6,000 standard tons, 29 knots and a broadside of six 6-inch guns. She was launched in 1925. By using standard tonnage, as defined at the Washington conference, this vessel and the others which followed were much larger than those contemplated by the signers of the Versailles Treaty.

During the next year six fine 800-ton destroyers took the water. They made 32 knots, mounted three 4-inch guns and carried six torpedo tubes. In 1927 two light cruisers, Konigsberg and Karlsruhe, were launched. These vessels were built with extraordinary care to get the utmost military value out of their tonnage. By electric welding and other expedients they were made far superior to the Emden. The speed was raised from 29 to 32 knots. Nine guns—in three triple turrets—can bear on either broadside. The number of torpedo tubes was increased from four to twelve. These vessels are beyond question the finest craft of their size in the world, and probably are superior to any 6-inch cruisers afloat. During the same year two more destroyers were launched. Their characteristics were similar to the 1926 type, except that the speed had been increased to 34 knots.

In 1928 the light cruiser Koln and four more destroyers slid down the ways. This completed the twelve destroyers which the Germans are allowed. In the following year the Leipzig made the fifth cruiser. Though they are allowed six, the last will not be built for the present. This summer the Ersatz Preussen will be launched. This is the first of the 10,000-ton "pocket battleships." Her six 11-inch guns and heavy armor will allow her to defeat with ease the 10,000-ton treaty cruisers, with their 8-inch guns and thin armor. Her speed of 26 knots will permit escape from every battleship. After the London conference is signed only three British battle cruisers will be able to run her down. The Germans plan to build four of these wonder ships—and later two more. What havoc these six vessels could make as commerce raiders—with only three ships in the world which can both run them down and beat them!

Thus Germany must again be considered as a naval power. Her fleet is compact and well balanced. Her ships are designed to perfection. Her officers and sailors are unsurpassed. Her merchant marine is winning the speed records. Yes, Germany has returned to the sea. And her navy has done what Americans most admire—it has staged a comeback!

KINGSHIP.

They mocked Him with a cruel crown.
They called Him "King" in bitter jest.
They placed on Him a scarlet gown
That royally He might be dressed.

They taunted Him that whole day long.
They gave Him vinegar for wine.
'Twas nothing to that thoughtless throng
That He was gentle and benign.

'Twas nothing that His lips let fall,
No word of hatred in reply.
A Roman king had cursed them all
In such a way condemned to die.

"Forgive them, Father," thus He prayed.
"They know not what it is they do!"
And in Golgotha's gloom and shade
Died nobler kingship than they knew.

Proper Courtesy to a Pedestrian Is the Kind You Expect When You're Afoot.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE are times in the life of every individual when he must make deliberate choice between doing right and doing wrong.

If his habit is to do right, and the right way is unmistakable, the choice is easily made.

But if the distinction between the right way and the wrong way is not clearly defined, his natural instinct of selfishness will urge him to choose the way that will serve his own interest and thus he will be tricked into doing wrong while convinced he is doing right.

The skeptic will say that right and wrong are clearly defined and one who chooses the wrong way does so for the sake of the profit and pretends innocence to soothe his conscience.

But there are times when right seems hidden in a maze of contrasting and conflicting interests.

Consider this classic example.

A poor woman buys a dollar's worth of sugar and offers an old silver dollar in payment.

The clerk, who is a collector of coins, keeps the dollar and takes another one from his pocket to place in the cash register.

Next day he visits a dealer in rare coins and sells the woman's dollar for $1,000.

Now, to whom did that profit of $999 belong? To the woman, or the clerk, or the owner of the store?

Your first thought will be that the clerk deserves the profit, since the woman got the dollar's worth she desired and the owner of the store got full value for his sugar.

But that is equivalent to saying wrong is right if the wronged party is ignorant of his loss.

The easy way to decide such questions is to try the shoe on the other foot—to reverse ownership of the vicious ox and the ox that was gored.

Suppose the woman had purchased one thousand dollars' worth of sugar and had offered in payment a bill that proved to be worth only one dollar. However innocently she practiced the deception, she would have been required to pay $999 more.

Since the owner of the store would in that case accept no loss, in the other he deserved no profit.

Or suppose the deception was intentional and the owner of the store, after vain effort to find the woman and recover his property, called on the clerk to make good the loss for which his carelessness was responsible.

The clerk would answer that he had acted as the owner's agent, without personal responsibility; and since he would not assume the loss if he accepted a bill worth less than its face value, neither was he entitled to the profit when he accepted a coin worth more than its face value.

The woman was entitled to $999 in change, for ignorance of values can not lessen property rights.

The way that offers a profit isn't right unless it would still seem right if the situation was reversed and the profit went to the other fellow.

THE ONCE OVER

SPRING.

The winter's dead beyond recall,
The daffydills are here,
The crocus lifts its lovely head—
And I've a thirst for beer.

All bleakness now is history,
Gone is the wintry taint—
I know it by the songs of birds
And by the smell of paint.

The milder, sweeter days have come.
And summer's on the make;
I've proof that's most convincing for
I've just stepped on a rake!

The sweetest time of year's at hand;
The thrush at sunrise cheers,
And nearly every man you meet
Has house paint in his ears.

A certain scent is in the air
That makes the season real;
My neighbor burns a pile of grass—
And cooks a rubber heel.

Ah, spring, my sweet, you can't fool me,
I know you from afar;
You bring the urge to dance, to sing
And overhaul the car!

The gentle season now has come,
The frosty days are o'er;
The lambs now gambol in the park—
And I must paint a door.

There's now an end to howling winds,
We're through with winter's tricks;
I know because department stores
Are selling baby chicks.

The balmy season has arrived,
These are the signs so true;
I have a head cold, sore throat, grippe,
Pneumonia and flu!

I know that spring is here at last,
I hear the robin pipe—
And I've the yearly vernal urge
To write this sort of tripe.

FAIR ENOUGH.

It is pointed out by Mr. Stimson that one great result of the naval parley will be to create better feeling between all major powers. In other words, no great country need have any fear that its navy won't look as convincing in the news reel as the fleet of some other nation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Chairman Wickersham Denies That Enforcement Commission Would Impair Right of Trial by Jury.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My attention has been called to an editorial in The Post of April 16 on "Trial By Jury," in which, reviewing the decision by the Supreme Court of the United States of the case of Patton vs. United States, which decided that a defendant on trial for felony in a Federal court may waive trial by twelve jurors, and consent to have the trial proceed with a less number, you say:

"In view of the Law Enforcement Commission's plan to have minor prohibition cases tried without juries, regardless of the defendant's wishes, the court's emphatic defense of trial by jury is the most interesting part of the opinion."

You thereupon quote some of the language used by Justice Sutherland in his opinion.

In another portion of that same opinion the learned justice says:

"It is not denied that a jury trial may be waived in the case of petty offenses, but the contention is that the rule is otherwise in the case of crimes of the magnitude of the one here under consideration. There are decisions to that effect, and also decisions to the contrary. The conflict is marked and direct. Schick vs. United States (195 U. S. 65) is thought to favor the contention. There the prosecution was for a violation of the oleomargarine act (24 Stat. 209), punishable by fine only. By agreement in writing a jury was waived and the issue submitted to the court. Judgment was for the United States. This court held that the offense was a petty one, and sustained the waiver. It was said that the word 'crimes' in Article III, section 2, of the Constitution, should be read in the light of the common law, and so read, it does not include petty offenses, and that neither the constitutional provisions nor any rule of public policy prevented the defendant from waiving a jury trial. The question whether the power of waiver extended to serious offenses was not directly involved, and is not concluded by that decision."

In other words, starting with the concession that trial by jury might be waived in prosecutions for petty offenses, the court extended that assumption to trial of felonies, and held that the right of trial by jury was conferred for the benefit of the accused, and might be waived by him. There is nothing in the decision which in the slightest degree militates against the recommendation made by this commission respecting the trial of "casual or slight violations" of the national prohibition act. In the first place, such offenses at common law were always triable by a magistrate without a jury, and are so triable today in many of the States. In the second place, the right of the accused to a trial by jury, if he demands it, is specifically provided for in the commission's recommendation. It is a perversion of the fact to refer to the commission's recommendation as in the slightest degree impairing any right which an accused has to trial by jury.

Some Hope of Making Portable Schools Safer—But Shacks Are Not Wanted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Again the power of public opinion backed by the press is demonstrated. At its last meeting the Board of Education adopted a report of its committee on buildings, grounds, and equipment, requesting funds for protection of portable roofs.

This will be pleasant news to every one, whether blessed with children of portable-schoolhouse age or not. When the committee's experts have done their work, the children themselves will no longer fidget every time a gathering darkness indicates a thunderstorm in the offing, and the children's parents can go about their daily work untroubled by thoughts of portables crashing down upon the children.

But what we really want is school buildings, not shacks.

Futile Wrangling of Wets and Drys Disgusts a Neutral.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to remark, seconded, I believe, by the great mass of sober-minded citizens, that in the futile wrangling over prohibition the wets and drys are alike pestiferous. Comes witness Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, and in answer to the question, "Do you intend to take up arms if you find it impossible to repeal the amendment otherwise?" says, "we will cross that bridge when we come to it." This statement is quite as brummagem as the dry ipse dixit of Dr. Clarence True Wilson to the effect that the search and seizure amendment is a constitutional barnacle.

President Curran's assertion that three-fourths of the American people are in revolt against the prohibition amendment and that it will be repealed in five years is also vainglorious. He would have struck nearer the truth if he had said that in the course of time there will be an evasive modification of the Volstead act.

NEUTRAL.

Jefferson Has a Statue Here, Besides a Shrine in Millions of Hearts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of the 15th instant, one of the inferiority complex Democrats has ruminated through almost a column on the circumstance that, as he erroneously states, there is no monument to Jefferson in Washington.

As one of the admirers of the combination of scholarship, fruitful in civic good, and aristocratic breeding exemplified in Jefferson, I believe he has just the monument he would like, not only in Washington but throughout the land—a shrine in millions of hearts.

What could marble add? But as a matter of fact, Congress ordered a worthy marble monument of Jefferson, which stands at the foot of the House of Representatives stairs, where it must be seen by all who pass.

SENATORS ARE WARY OF PARKER'S CHOICE

LITTLE HOPE REMAINS

with Chairman Claudius Huston about the case which shows that Mr. Huston instead of thinking about resigning is carrying on with his functions as national chairman.

Senator McCulloch, of Ohio, must have been an interesting talker at the experience meeting. He is just back from a five-day trip back home, and he had previously made no secret of the fact that the fires were very hot. And the fires being hot and the senator being opposed to the nominee anyway, why he would probably vote against him.

Without any definite understanding about the matter some senators who attended the meeting got the impression that there would be a procession of worried senators to the White House, and the report was that Senators Goff and Hatfield, of West Virginia, would start it. These senators gave indorsement to Judge Parker when his name was first suggested, but later developments have changed their attitude. It is understood to be their belief that the confirmation of Judge Parker means the loss of West Virginia.

If all the States are lost to the Republican party that the worried senators say will be, it is amazing that the Democrats do not decide unanimously to support the nominee, but they plan to do nothing of the kind. Political observers have been surprised, too, at the fear senators are showing, it being their experience that neither organized labor leaders nor leaders of the colored association can throw their voters to the Democratic party. But the senators who are wrought up insist that political observers just do not understand the extent of the present fire.

One veteran said: "I know skirmishes, but I tell you this is shell fire and nothing else."

Attitude Further Explained.

And it was this senator's attitude, too:

"Why should I be forced to go out to my State and explain away the yellow dog contract just because this former Southern Democrat wants to be a member of the Supreme Court. I have neither the time nor the inclination to do it."

This shows the feeling of some of the regulars. Judge Parker is not a Democrat, but a regular Republican. This senator's way of expressing himself, however, reflects the considerable feeling that the appointment of Judge Parker is not outstanding enough to justify them in putting up a dangerous fight.

Senator Baird, of New Jersey, was about the only one of the meeting who is not worried. The fire of the labor organization and the Negro association does not worry him in the least.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

DESPITE all the pessimistic news dispatches from London during the weary months of the naval conference, and despit scoffing at President Hoover's claim that the results of that conference will save the American taxpayers nearly a billion dollars in the next six years, it is generally agreed in Washington that the conference is going to be an asset and not a liability to Mr. Hoover, and perhaps even to the Republican party in the elections this year.

Naturally the Democrats are having a good deal of fun with the President's claims. It may be that he was wise in making them so high that they could stand a good deal of cutting down. He managed to make such a surprisingly large showing by the simple expedient of comparing the expenditures under the London agreement for the next six years with those which would have been made if the Geneva conference had succeeded in reaching an agreement on its high figures, and if Congress had made appropriations to put American strength up to those figures.

* * * *

OF course, these are two fairly large "ifs." As a matter of fact, the Geneva conference never really came within gunshot of an agreement. In the second place, if those high figures had been approved there is not a politician in Washington who sincerely believes that a majority of both houses of Congress would have voted sufficient appropriations to bring this country's Navy up to that status.

So the Democrats are making merry with the claim of nearly $1,000,000,000 saved to the taxpayers. But after all the tearing down of Mr. Hoover's figures is completed, or conceded as the case may be, it will be found that the saving is still very large to the American Treasury.

* * * *

SHORTLY after Ramsay MacDonald sailed back to London, following his talk with President Hoover up in the Virginia hills, the President in discussing the situation with friends, said that the only thing he was sure of getting from the naval conference was a holiday in battleship construction.

"But that alone will save the American taxpayers $400,000,000 in replacing battleships which under the terms of the Washington treaty would become obsolete in the next six years," he exclaimed.

Mr. Hoover wished for a great deal more, but it could not be said that he really hoped for more.

* * * *

SO far the Navy Department has not figured out accurately what the precise savings will be under the London agreement as compared with what would probably have been appropriated by Congress for replacements had the London conference not been held. It would not be exactly politic for the department to do that until it has been asked officially for the figures—not while the President is talking about the contrast between the London figures and what would have been the Geneva figures if there had been an agreement in Switzerland.

But a rough estimate made for the writer by naval experts, very unofficially, indeed, is that this actual saving will be greater than the amount really expected by Mr. Hoover before the Stimson delegation sailed—or four hundred millions in six years. It is a little greater because it actually includes more than the mere battleship replacements.

* * * *

ALREADY, of course, there is talk in the Senate of reservations to the treaty embodying the London agreement. Senators would feel that they were not exercising their duty if they voted to ratify a treaty in these days without reservations. It involves fine publicity for the senators making the speeches, and it does not offend any powerful group of voters back home.

But it is also a safe bet that if Senators Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Robinson, of Arkansas, come back to Washington ready to fight to approve the treaty they had a hand in making, it will get the necessary two-thirds majority after all the smoke has cleared away.

ALABAMA PRIMARY ESTOPPAL REFUSED

Supreme Court Upholds Rejection of Plea of Anti-Smith Faction.

HEFLIN REBUFF IS SEEN

Montgomery, Ala., April 17 (A.P.).—The Alabama Supreme Court, in a decision today, refused to estop the Democratic primary of August 12, from which the State committee had excluded as candidates Senator J. Thomas Heflin and others who failed to support the Democratic national ticket in 1928.

The court affirmed the decision of the Jefferson County Circuit Court denying a writ of mandamus to estop the primary as asked by Horace C. Wilkinson, Birmingham attorney, who was a leader of the anti-Smith forces in the 1928 election.

The State Democratic executive committee, in session here December 16, 1929, voted 27 to 21, to exclude from the primaries as candidates all who failed to support the ticket in 1928, either by voting another ticket or failing to vote, but did not restrict them from participating in the coming primaries as voters.

The court's decision was on the appeal of Mr. Wilkinson from a decision of a Jefferson Circuit Court dismissing his petition from an injunction to prevent the treasurer of Jefferson County from using public funds in conection with the Democratic primary in August.

Mr. Wilkinson contended that the election would be illegal because of the State Democratic executive committee's action in fixing different qualifications for voters and candidates in the August primary.

Senator Heflin has announced that he will run in the general election despite the ruling of the State committee. In addition to Senator Heflin, Hugh A. Locke, of Birmingham, gubernatorial candidate, who also supported Mr. Hoover, was affected by the decision.

John H. Bankhead, Jasper attorney, and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, are seeking the senatorial nomination in the Democratic primary. There are six aspirants for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

First U. S. Trained Nurse Succumbs

Linday Richards, Friend of Florence Nightingale, Expires.

Boston, April 17 (A.P.).—Miss Linday A. J. Richards, the first trained nurse in America and a friend of Florence Nightingale, died here today at the age of 89.

Born in Potsdam, N. Y., July 27, 1841, she was the first applicant and first graduate of the first school of nursing in the country, established by the New England Hospital for Women and Children in September, 1873.

After work in the Bellevue Hospital Training School, in New York, she visited European hospitals for study, and in 1885 went to Japan to organize a nurses' school. Later she returned to this country and directed schools in various American cities, including Kalamazoo, Mich. For the last four years she had been confined to the Northboro Nursing School, where she died.

Eight Die as Train Strikes Bus Party

Crossing Guard Commits Suicide, Believing Himself Responsible.

Valencia, Spain, April 17 (A.P.).—Eight members of a holiday party were killed today and sixteen injured in a collision between their autobus and a freight train near the Village of Samagrell, between Sagunto and Valencia.

Four of those injured were in serious condition. Aid has been rushed from Valencia, and the authorities have begun an investigation into the collision, which occurred at a grade crossing. The crossing guard, apparently holding himself responsible for the disaster, commited suicide late in the afternoon.

Witnesses said the driver of the bus apparently did not see the oncoming freight train until it was too late to avoid a collision. The train was partly hidden by a curve in the tracks and by rising ground.

Pan-American Plans Honors For Dr. Olaya

Envoy President-Elect of Colombia Hopes to Attend.

By JEAN ELIOT.

DR. ENRIQUE OLAYA, Minister of Colombia to the United States and president-elect of his country, will be accorded high honor at the concert of Latin-American music at the Pan-American Union on Easter Monday evening—whether or not he can reach Washington in time to attend. "The President's March," written for the occasion and dedicated to Dr. Olaya, will have its first presentation, played by the United Service Orchestra; and, should Dr. Olaya be present, he will be given a formal and official reception by the governing board of the Pan-American Union, of which he is a member. If memory serves, this is the first time a Latin-American diplomat has been elected president of his country while serving at Washington and ex officio attached to the board of the Pan-American Union, although others have achieved this high honor after leaving the Capital.

Arriving in New York on Sunday, Dr. Olaya will be at once involved in a round of ceremonies and festivities marking the official welcome to the President-elect of Colombia; and it is doubtful if he will be able to break away from New York in time to reach Washington for the concert. State Department officials, as well as the Charge d'Affaires of Colombia, Senor Jose M. Coronado, will go to New York to welcome the president-elect, who will be greeted with the 21 guns of the presidential salute. Senora de Olaya and her two pretty daughters, now at school in Baltimore, are also expected to be present at the ceremonies of welcome.

Queried by the State Department, Dr. Olaya has expressed a desire that while he lingers in Washington as Minister of Colombia he retain his diplomatic status instead of being given honors accorded the president-elect of a neighboring nation—at any rate until June 4 when his election to the presidency will be formally proclaimed in accordance with the constitution of Colombia. His wishes in the matter will be followed, although, should he leave for Colombia before that date, he will probably be accorded an official send-off. Thus a problem, which has been vexing authorities on official etiquette, has been solved to the satisfaction of all.

The Pan-American concert—to go back a bit—will be one of the most important events of the Easter season and will have brilliant attendance from the diplomatic, official and resident groups of Washington society. For the first time in history of the concerts of Latin-American music, given through several years under the direction of Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general and Mr. Franklin P. Adams, counselor of the Pan-American Union, the program will be broadcast over a short-wave length, picked up and rebroadcast to a dozen South and Central American cities. It will also be broadcast over a national hook-up including 52 cities in the United States.

With a half dozen compositions of famous Latin-American composers to have their first presentation, no less than six "first string" music critics from important nearby cities are coming to Washington to listen in. The guest artists featured with the United Service Orchestra are Senor Manuel Salazar, of Costa Rica, who sang with the Metropolitan Opera for four years and has since been winning plaudits at La Scala in Milan; and Senor Luis Delgadillo, of Nicaragua, composer-pianist, who will play some of his own compositions based on the indigenous music of the Western Hemisphere.

Nobil Donna Antonietta de Martino, wife of the Ambassador of Italy, heads the list of patronesses for a rare and distinctive sale of handwork of foreign make to be given for the benefit of the International Students Exchange on Wednesday, April 23, from 10 until 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Mary Stewart, 2200 Massachusetts avenue. WORK ON BRIDGE

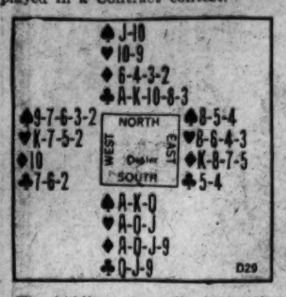
CONTRACT BRIDGE.

The following hand recently was played in a Contract contest.



The bidding was quite interesting. At one or two tables South bid only two No Trumps, believing that three No Trumps never should be called unless all four suits are stopped twice. At these tables North bid three No Trumps and that ended the Auction. At most of the tables, however, the South players realized the folly of requiring double stoppers in every suit when the hand has the strength requisite for a three No Trump bid (in this hand much more than the requisite) and has every suit stopped at least once, and these Souths started with a bid of three No Trumps. Perhaps some thought longingly of a bid of four, but that would not have been sound because the hand counts 26, and 27 is the four-bid minimum, and furthermore it is generally too dangerous to risk a bid of four unless all suits are stopped twice.

When three No Trumps was the initial bid, some Norths felt that such enormous strength in Clubs, facing a partner, who could bid three No Trumps and who consequently had Clubs stopped, must produce a slam, and those Norths jumped immediately to six No Trumps. At other tables the result was reached more gradually, but just as surely, as follows: North bid four Clubs, and South bid five or six No Trumps; when South bid six No Trumps that ended it; when he bid five North bid six Clubs and South six No Trumps.

North's four-bid over three No Trumps showed either the Ace or King of Clubs and a count of at least 9. While North's count for Aces and faces was only 8, he also had three Tens (ordinarily not reckoned in slam bidding); but his five-card Club suit headed by Ace-King-Ten fully justified a slam invitation.

Seven No Trumps actually was made because two adverse Kings were shut out; but that was a matter of good fortune, the North and South cards did not justify a bid of seven.

THE PLAY.

With a Spade led and won by South, a Club led by South was overtaken by North and then the Diamond finesse tried. When that won, a second Club was led for a second overtake, followed by a second successful Diamond finesse. After that, all was easy. The third overtake of the Club was followed by the running of North's two remaining Clubs and the discard of South's Queen and Jack of Hearts, and then a third Diamond lead for a third finesse and an obvious grand slam.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who receiveu copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

Art Interprets the Mode

Red and white crepe marocain, the skirt and jacket are; and the blouse white satin. And they call it a "tailleur fantaisie." (Courtesy Heim, Paris.)

Paris, April 17.

If you've been wondering about the stocking question for the summer months, the answer is this: The assortment of beiges that have been popular for several seasons still prevail as the most complimentary color for daytime wear, both for tailored and dressy costumes.

The dull gun metal and sheer or lacy black are going to be seen in greater quantity than ever, for the reason that they are so fashionable with black or with navy blue, both of which are indisputably the predominating costume colors for daytime wear. And black being as popular as it is for evening, these sheer black and gun-metal stockings will often make their appearance formally.

The cool, refreshing pastel shades for summer frocks and ensembles of flannel, of linen or shantung will often be "stockinged" in matching pastel shades, pinks and pale yellows and blue and orchid. White still prefers an off-the-white shade of stocking, pale beige or cream or very light rose-beige. No more of the violet sunburn pink, of course. And I have in mind one entire pink costume, hat, frock, coat, stockings and—sure as you're born—shoes, all matching, and the nicest part of it is that if you're a fragile blonde, you can wear it, or if you're a ruddy, ever so healthy brunette, you can wear it!

Paris is still stepping out in the sheerest of sheers, even if modestly long skirts are playing hide and seek with Miladi's ankle. The note of elegance, you know——

A red and white crepe marocain afternoon suit caught my eye the other day at the Maison Heim, and I thought you might like to see what the couturier, who says he isn't a dressmaker, has been up to lately. A white satin blouse, a ribbon of the material put on as a corsage, as it were, and you have the story!

• • • •

You can do all sorts of tricky things with oilcloth and linoleum when somebody makes an illustrated leaflet for you telling you what they are. We have made such a leaflet, and it's called "Dolling Up Your Kitchen." Better send that envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

Even if you aren't interested in kitchens these days, you may be some day—or maybe you have a girl friend who is, who won't be lucky enough to see the announcement of this fascin-at-ing leaflet.

And we don't overlook the lady who cooks in the kitchen, either. Some kitchen-ish beauty notes for her in this same leaflet.

• • • •

And then an Agnes hat of black satin with horsehair embroidery in front caught my eye, so I decided to dress up the pretty pen-and-ink lady in it and have her hold an odd black suede bag that I saw somewhere, with a ruffle of the suede and border of gold with which to clasp it.

The weekly Dare fashion letter, we want to remind you again, appears exclusively in the Capital in The Sunday Washington Post.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

MR. BURTON HOLMES, the travelogue artist, finished his Lenten series of lectures at the National Theater yesterday. No sooner had he completed the talk on Venice and the Alpine regions of north Italy than he packed his bags and was on his way to New York, there to catch a steamer for Europe. There he will make new filmings for his next season of travel revues. The man is traveling all the time; traveling to take the pictures, and traveling to show them—before the American public; wonder if, when he retires, he wouldn't like to travel about a bit?

• • • •

WAS a time when it looked as if travelogue was on the way out; that other forms of entertainment, including the motion picture, had surpassed the combination lecture and travel reel. This past season has been one of the best ever enjoyed by Burton Holmes in 37 years' activity in the concert halls. Just another paradox, like talking machines becoming more popular after the perfection of radio; candles selling in greater number with the birth of the electric light, and ice companies declaring extra dividends after the arrival of electric refrigeration.

• • • •

FOR the tenth successive season an edition of George White's Scandals is on the way to town. Mr. T. D. Bonneville, manager of Poli's, is having the old S. R. O. sign dusted off preparatory to the opening of the latest Scandals on next Monday night. While some of the old familiar faces will be missing from the platform this year—Tom Patricola, Ann Pennington and several others—there will be the inimitable Frances White heading the funmakers, and she, undoubtedly, is one of the best comediennes on the stage.

• • • •

WITH Scandals opening against them, the National Theater Players find the first opposition in Washington since "Journey's End" went West—to grow up with the country. With Poli's dark for five weeks hand running this winter, it had to be the luck of the National Theater Players to meet stiff opposition during their opening week—"Journey's End" got started here. However, the Players are not worrying a bit. Even with the throes of Holy Week upon them, their business has been nothing short of phenomenal. Next Monday—Easter Monday, by the by—practically every seat in the house has been sold. So the Easter-egg rollers, those who come here from out of town, will have great difficulty in seeing the revival of Otis Skinner's successful play, "The Honor of the Family."

• • • •

MR. SYLVESTER POLI, lessee of Poli's Theater, having announced from New Haven, his home town, that he will fight the Government on its proposal to tear down the historic old theater on the Avenue, recalls the opening date of that house, back in 1884. The present manager, Mr. Bonneville, was telling his mother about the dreadful happening about to take place, the demolition of Poli's. "I remember very well," she said, "taking you to see the first performance of the Emma Abbott players in Poli's. You were only 1 year old—and you cried so hard I had to leave the playhouse."

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

THE SHASTA DAISY.

ARE you familiar with the shasta daisy? If you have one let me make some practical suggestions as to its care—and if you haven't, this is the right time to get it. Six plants will in a short time multiply and fill up quite an amount of space in your garden. The shasta daisy is quite hardy and requires only a minimum amount of care.

It must be planted in strong sun. Before planting the seed test the soil with litmus paper to see if it is acid, as this perennial will not do well in acid soil. The litmus test is one that every amateur gardener should learn to use. It is quite simple and sure:

Buy 10 cents worth of litmus paper from any drug store. Then scrape away the surface soil in the ground in the bed in which you are about to sow the seeds. When you have removed the soil to the depth of about three inches take out a cupful. If the soil is moist do not add water. If dry, moisten it with pure water (preferably rain-water). Then put a strip of the litmus paper into the soil and let it remain there for five minutes. Then carefully remove it. If the blue paper becomes decidedly pink it indicates a decided acidity of the soil, and lime must be added to sweeten it.

Add the lime one week and plant the seed a week later. It is a good plan to test in this way all the soil in your garden in the early spring.

Sow the seed of the shasta daisy on a dull day. Should the weather be unusually cold, as it sometimes is in the spring, cover the young seedlings with a layer of paper at night. After they are an inch high they will be able to take care of themselves, but it is best to take this precaution at first.

Should you care, the second season, to increase your number of plants, this variety can be easily grown by root division.

One advantage of the shasta daisy is that it is especially good for cutting purposes. The blooms stand very erect and some flowers are 3 or 4 inches across. When cut and kept in fresh water they last for days. A clump of these blossoms will bloom the entire summer. They do better if kept regularly watered, but will do very well even when they are left to depend on rain.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF APRIL 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, from 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Invigorating influences will be in force on this date, and a great deal will be accomplished. It is an auspicious time to ask for favors from those of influence. Failures are not foreseen for new undertakings begun on this date.

The child born on this April 18 will have an industrious, energetic nature, and it will strive to make something of itself. It will be cheery, wholesome and whole-souled. It will have a good eye for details, and considerable patience to work them out.

If you are still at the bottom or first rungs of the ladder, do not blame "circumstances," your "luck," or "the others," but yourself! It is because you are inclined to meet your difficulties half way, and are afraid to bite off as much as you can chew. You have to be "egged on" to do things—you need outside stimulation. Instead of pulling up on your own weight, you wait for a boost from behind. You do not grasp your opportunities when they are presented to you—you wait for that vague "some day," which is never. It is difficult for you to stake anything on an act of faith, and it has been said that no one has ever achieved anything who has not at some time or other staked everything on faith.

If you be a man, your love fancies are more giddy and less firm, and sooner lost and won than those of the women born on this date. People of either sex, when seen under the microscope of a daily life together soon bore you. You are rather inclined to court new friends, and to forget (for the time being) old ones.

There is considerable envy and jealousy in your nature. You like to feel that you are "it," and you can not look kindly upon the glories or good fortunes of others. You suffer a great deal of false pride.

Successful people born April 18:

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PLANTS DO NO HARM IN SLEEPING ROOMS.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

The belief that plants should be removed from sleeping rooms at night is entirely without foundation, according to Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific work in the United States Department of Agriculture. In many hospitals it is a regular practice to remove flowers and plants from the rooms at night, because it is thought that in some ways they are injurious to the patients.

Instead of plants being harmful, they are beneficial, says Dr. Woods. During the day they give off oxygen and moisture and take up carbon dioxide. At night these processes slow down and small amounts of carbon dioxide are given off, but a whole greenhouse full of plants would not give off enough carbon dioxide to injuriously affect the composition of the air.

The only occasion for removing plants and flowers from sleeping rooms is in the case of poisonous plants and in cases of people who suffer from hay fever. In these cases, Dr. Woods explains, plants and flowers to which the patient is sensitive should not be in the room at any time.

Lent Closing Is Marked by Many Events

Social Season Is to Be Resumed Next Week With Vigor.

This event will take the form of an unusual rummage sale which will be held at 1013 D street and will be under the auspices of the Womans' Army and Navy League, of which Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, wife of the chief of staff, is president.

The sale will be conducted each day from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Mrs. Lutz Wahl is chairman and will be assisted by the members of the league and others who give evidence of their interest in the organization and the club by their generous interest and help.

Any donation of articles of clothing, furniture, toys, fresh flowers, cakes, candies, &c., will be welcomed and may be delivered to 1013 D street after today.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond are expected to return to Washington from Europe early in May. They left town several months ago for a trip to South America, after which they crossed to Europe. They have recently completed a three weeks' stay in Seville, Spain, visiting the Ibero-American Exposition.

Mr. Connally to Speak to Texas Society.

Senator Tom Connally will make a short address at the San Jacinto Day celebration of the Texas Society tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in the rose room of the Washington Hotel, according to an announcement by Mr. Eugene Black, president of the society.

Mr. Gilbert Fraser, of San Antonio, Tex., who won first place in the District of Columbia in the Atwater Kent audition this year, will give a short musical program. Mrs. C. Raymond Wire, daughter of Representative Guinn Williams, of Decatur, Tex., will give a reading on San Jacinto.

The members of the D. A. R. from Texas who are attending the conference in Washington will be the honor guests and it is hoped that every one will be present to meet the Texans who are in Washington.

The Dixie Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold its annual spring card party for the benefit of its educational fund at the Mayflower Hotel Wednesday, April 23, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Ralph W. Howell, general chairman, has assisting her Mrs. W. R. Cole, Miss Margaret Daniel, Mrs. J. S. Tomlinson, Mrs. W. L. Hazard, Mrs. Frank Eliot and Mrs. Cora Settle.

A partial list of those who have taken tables for the party is: Mrs John T. Marchand, Mrs Arthur S Williams, Mrs. C. B. Walters, Mrs Rosa M. Mulcare, Mrs. E. B. Berry, Miss Bertha Marsh, Mrs. E. B. Gilberson, Mrs. Robert Lee Ettenger, Mrs L. Whiting Estes and Mrs. Ralph W. Howell.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewnings, jr., are passing the Easter holidays in Detroit as guests of Mrs. Chewning's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Couzens.

The Booklovers of the Young Women's Christian Association, under the direction of Miss Alice Hutchins Drake, will present their annual spring musicale at the Y. W. C. A. Building, at Seventeenth and K streets, on Monday evening, April 21, at 8 o'clock, when all music lovers are invited to be their guests.

The program will be given by three well-known Washington artists whose custom it has been for several years to appear in a musical recital at the Booklovers Hour in the spring. Miss Helen Augusta Colhoun will be heard in three groups of delightful dramatic readings; Mrs. Helen Turley, contralto, will give two groups of songs, and Mrs Chester Adair, composer and pianist, will accompany Mrs. Turley.

Capital Visit Will Be Made By Mrs. Peary

Widow of Explorer to Stay in Washington With Daughter.

Mrs. Robert E. Peary, widow of Rear Admiral Peary, will arrive in Washington on Monday to be with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stafford, through the spring and will probably remain in the East until autumn. For the last year Mrs. Peary has spent most of her time in Washington State with her son, Mr. Robert E. Peary, jr., who is an engineer with the Bethlehem Steel Co., and whose first job has been the building of a bridge across the Columbia River. Last summer Mrs. Peary, whose home was in Washington for many years, visited Mr. and Mrs. Stafford, but it was at their summer home in Maine and her friends in the Capital have had no opportunity to see her for over a year. Mrs. Stafford, who was Miss Marie Peary, was known through her childhood as the "Snow Baby," having been born beyong the Arctic Circle when Mrs. Peary was with her husband in the early stages of his exploration of the Far North.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Thurston have issued invitations for a reception on Sunday to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Thurston came to Washington fifteen years ago from Dublin, Ga. They have taken an active part in the activities of the Georgia State Society and Southern Society. Those assisting at the tea table will be Mrs. Walter F. George, Mrs. H. Wallace Witcover, Mrs. Theodore Tiller, Mrs. S. Gordon Green, Mrs. Robert E. Lee Hall, Mrs. Julia O. Autmann, Mrs. Mahlon C. Masterson, Mrs. C. B. Gwynn, Mrs. Lucile Ellis and the Misses Winona and Jessie Thurston, daughters of the host and hostess.

The reception will be given at their home, 4419 Illinois avenue, from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Horse Show Planned For Tomorrow Afternoon.

The Sixteenth Street Highlands Horse Show will take place tomorrow at 2 o'clock. The Horse Show grounds are located between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, one block north of Montague street northwest. There will be seven classes for which prizes and ribbons will be given for each class.

Among those planning to show are Miss Elizabeth Jackson, Miss Elizabeth Martin, Mrs. A. D. Court, Miss Margaret Cotter, Miss Betty Couzens, Mrs. P. M. Andrews, Mr. H. T. Cole, Maj. William Grimes, Maj. and Mrs. George Patton, Mr. George Plummer and Mr Harold Rust, jr.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ami, Ottawa, have returned from the South and will make a prolonged stay in Washington. As usual they are making their home at the Hotel Grafton.

Vallee Asserts Song Needs "You and Me"

Work of Building Up "Deep Night," Creating Demand and Then Marketing It With Publishers Described by Composer.

$100 for Reviews of This Story

Readers of The Washington Post may earn prizes after reading "Vagabond Dreams Come True," the life story of Rudy Vallee, by submitting brief reviews of the story. For the best review submitted The Post will pay $50; for the second best, $35, and for the third, $15.

Punctuation and grammar will not count as much as the idea expressed in the review. Any reader of The Post is eligible to give his or her opinion of the story.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Building Up the Song.

One of the psychological factors in a successful song is that it should deal with a great amount of "you" and "me;" all of us love to see the words "you" and "me;" all of us love to see the words "you" and "I" because then the song holds a personal interest for us. I began:

"Deep night, stars in the sky above—"

This might seem a bit illogical due to the fact that the sky was supposed to be entirely dark and deep, but here I took an author's license, as I did in the next line.

"Moonlight, lighting our place of love."

Then the rustic sound that would be quite in keeping with this setting.

"Night winds seem to have gone to rest——"

Followed, as he looked at her,

"Two eyes brightly with love are gleaming."

And then the words I thought would come from the lips of the lover, or even of the girl.

"Come to my arms, my darling, my sweetheart, my own;
Vow that you'll love me always and be mine alone."

And back to the description that gives me the greatest feeling of satisfaction,

"Deep night, whispering trees above,
Kind night, bringing you nearer, dearer and dearer,

Began Singing It at Once.

I began singing the song almost immediately. We had played the melody as a regular fox trot, but it took several nights before we realized that it must be played quite slowly in order to get these lyrics easily in. I started giving it quite a play over the radio, putting it in practically every program.

I worked on this theory, that if an unpublished song held any merit, by featuring it continuously over the air I would be able to bring attention to it, especially as the publishers or their scouts listen in to all radio programs to note the absence of their own tunes as well as the inclusion of new and odd tunes. In this assumption I have found I am quite right.

There sprang up quite a demand for "Deep Night," so much so that several big publishers called me up about it.

Of course, what may seem to be an unusual demand for a new tune may really be quite exaggerated, since a most peculiar thing takes place when a tune is liked over the radio. The individual who likes it may go to one of the local music stores and ask for the tune there. Supposing the tune to be unpublished, or in the process of printing, the store will not have it. The individual then usually goes to the remainder of the music stores in the town or city, receiving the same reply at each store. Let us assume that five stores are visited. All five will call up their jobber, who will probably be in all five cases the same man; the jobber will receive five orders for that tune and it will appear that five different people wanted it, when in reality only one person has asked for it.

Demand Appeared Genuine.

Therefore, when a jobber reports an unusual demand for a song I do not allow it to influence me too much, unless it is quite obvious that the demand is very, very great. In this case the demand seemed to be fairly genuine, and the publishers very much in earnest.

I wrote Henderson to send me the verse melody which he had not given us the first time. A few nights after it came some boys from the South visited me and asked for some form of manuscript of the tune to take back with them; so while my band was playing I sat down and wrote out my first verse.

This was considerably more difficult than the chorus, inasmuch as I felt I had to get something that would lead up properly to the thought of the chorus. Naturally I thought of twilight and began,

"Shadows are falling,
And night is falling,
This is the time for love,
Day has just ended,
The moon has descended,
Lighting the sky above.
Day seemed so long, dear,
Waiting for you;
Moments seemed years to me;
Daylight has lost you,
And night time has brought you.

Accepts Tea-Dance Job.

Several days after this Henderson himself came to New York and I accepted a tea-dance job at the Lombardy Hotel, simply to keep him with me as I admired his work so much; thus I lengthened my working day from eleven to thirteen hours, but I enjoyed playing with Henderson a great deal.

He seemed to feel that the show tunes which Fields, Rogers and Hart were writing were just what the public wanted. He liked the simplicity of the lyrics of "My Heart Stood Still," and suggested to me that I should rewrite the lyrics of "Deep Night" to make them more "matter of fact," like the lyrics of "My Heart Stood Still;" that is, something to the effect: "I took a walk and sat down, I stood up and walked some more"—lyrics that were very occidental, very modern and unaffected. But he did not seem to realize that he had created a melody that "matter of fact" lyrics would not suit. Rather was there a depth and a somberness to the melody that required lyrics of that nature.

He may not have seen my point then, but today I think he realizes that the lyrics I fitted to his melody were most suitable and appropriate.

I featured "Deep Night" as never before and finally we began the rounds of the publishers who were interested in the number. We found ourselves in the unique position of having a song that was greatly desired. Whereas the average amateur song writer, as we both unquestionably were, never gets any further than a stereotyped refusal from some office boy, we were, on the contrary, conducted to the private sanctum of the head of the firm himself, where we sang the song for him.

All Offered Inducements.

The three big firms we visited all offered varying inducements to leave the song with them. One man who had seen no merit in the melody of the song the previous spring and who, a month before, had turned down both "Deep Night" and "Vagabond Lover," now offered one cent more per sheet copy than any other publishers; but he antagonized Henderson by feigning indifference when he really greatly desired the tune.

Our decision to leave it with the publisher who received it was influenced by what we term the mechanical end of the tune. There are tunes that sell because they are easily playable and also pleasant to listen to, but "Deep Night" is not one of these; rather it is a difficult tune to play, though a most agreeable one to sit and listen to while some one else plays it. The mechanical side of the question concerns the number of ways each phonograph company records the tune and how many piano rolls are recorded of it along with rolls for hurdy-gurdies, musical boxes and other mechanical means of production. For each record or roll the recording company must send to the publisher 2 cents, which are divided between the publisher and the writer.

This sum may sound insignificant, but when we reflect that some tunes are recorded on over 10,000,000 records and rolls, the resulting sum of $200,000, which is absolutely exclusive of the royalties on the sheet copies, is tremendous.

"Ramona" Netted Huge Sum.

"Ramona," for instance, was recorded nine different ways on Victor records, that is, three or four vocalists sang it, each on his or her own Victor record; it was recorded by an organ and three or four orchestras also made their own records of the tune. One of these nine ways, by a prominent vocal artist, reached a sale of 1,500,000 records. Each of the phonograph companies recorded it at least four ways, and when one considers the score or more of phonograph companies, large and small, with foreign record royalties, the returns from the mechanical end of the song were staggering. The song netted the two writers about $75,000 each.

Obviously, the publisher who keeps in close and friendly contact with the recording directors is the one who is best assured of having his tunes recorded in the greatest number of ways. The firm with whom we left "Deep Night" stood in very well with the record men.

Realizing that "Deep Night" was a tune to be listened to and not played, due to its difficult key signature and minor vein, we felt we had done the wisest thing, and in view of its many recordings on all of the records today, we know that our choice was a wise one.

I wrote the second verse when the printer was ready to go to press, and I feel that my lyrics of "Deep Night" adequately express this song.

Keeps All Records of "Deep Night."

I guess you can imagine the wonderful feeling it gave me when I stepped into the magnificent Roxy Theater in New York City during one of their lavish stage presentations and heard one of their great tenors render the song, verse and chorus, and saw the ballet dance to the strains of it. And now I add to that thrill my pleasure at hearing the records by various artists, including that gorgeous ensemble, the Victor Salon Orchestra.

These give me a permanent satisfaction that I will enjoy, I hope, later on when I am no longer in the fray.

I have every record of "Deep Night" recorded in the different ways that each phonograph company had it made, and I shall receive a great deal of happiness when I listen to these in later life.

I receive hundreds of manuscripts by mail in the course of a week. We do not solicit these and I do not really welcome them, because I have found that the average amateur writes what might be classed as just a fair song, a song with a melody that is acceptable but usually trite; by this I mean that there is no novel or unusual twist in the sequences of melody. Rather it is so plain that it fails to attract or hold the attention, which is the function of the melody in any song. As for lyrics, the words that most amateurs suggest for songs are entirely unsuited to the melodies; the meters are absolutely illogical and always too flowery and poetic. A successful lyric should, like the melody, suggest an unusual thought, not necessarily elaborate or deep, but one that fits the melody, arrests the attention, and either pleases the humor or, perhaps, has a tender meaning calculated to plunge the listener for the moment into a well of retrospection over some unhappy love affair.

"Vagabond Lover" Simple.

"Vagabond Lover" is a good example of a simple melody and a simple thought, but the lyric has two or three lines that make one stop and think. The lines:

"Some girls are quickly forgotten
And gone with the dawn of the day,
And some you remember
Like last glowing embers,"

are to my mind the heart of the entire piece. In them a philosophy is tenderly expressed, and the thought of "last glowing embers" brings an attractive vision of a fireplace and a man sitting before it and seeing in its flames the faces of the girls he has known. Unquestionably it is just the suggestion one derives from those lines that made the song, together with its easily singable melody, the most popular song in the entire country during the summer of 1929.

"If I Had a Talking Picture of You" is an example of a humorous song that has an entirely different appeal. In fact, the three boys who wrote this song are noted for the originality of the thoughts expressed in their songs.

Refuses All Amateur Offerings.

It is very risky for any one in my position to have very much to do with manuscripts from unknown persons. Most publishers are considered heartless by amateurs because they will not accept or consider their manuscripts, but these publishers have learned from bitter experience that these unknown composers sometimes submit manuscripts which they did not write themselves, and such deceptions have caused very costly legal entanglements.

It is so difficult to prove, in the case of amateurs, the true authorship of the song, that I have adopted the policy of publishers and steadfastly refuse to consider manuscripts from any one but a profesional song writer. I realize that I may be, once in a hundred cases, losing a really good song, because once in a while an amateur hits on both an unusual melody and a unique lyric, but not very often. Publishers have their own staffs of song writers who turn out more songs that the publishers need, and as it is, the few minutes I have between shows are practically always taken up listening to these profesional writers and their latest efforts.

CLASSIFIED SECTION
A $2,250 Sale Resulted From the Investment of $2.73
The Simmons Motor Co., were prepared to spend a considerable amount to sell a car for $2,250, but The Post representative did not advise the extravagant use of classified space. He explained that the new method of indexing and logical arrangement eliminated this necessity and caused each offering to be judged entirely on its own merits.
The advertisement as reproduced above was ordered on Thursday, March 27, to run for seven days, but after three insertions the car was sold on Saturday, March 29. Credit was allowed when the ad was cancelled and the cost for the three insertions amounted to only $2.73—approximately one-tenth of one per cent of the selling price.

Highlights of the World War

Well Worn, Too

We were on our way up to the front to patch up holes made in roads by German shell fire and had with us a detachment of colored troops as a labor battalion. When we arrived at our destination each squad was assigned a certain number of the colored troops and instructed to get to work.

Hardly had tools been picked up when the enemy started firing and big shells were whizzing past or exploding all around us. I gave orders to our men to lie flat on the ground to avoid flying fragments and one of the colored brethren offered a startling comeback when he shouted:

"'Deed, boss, I'se huggin' de groun' closer'n de "V" on a nickel."

JOHN L. CARROLL,

Yo, Ho! Me Lads

I joined the Navy during the war and was assigned to duty in the new building at the corner of B and Seventeenth streets. One frightfully hot day in the summer of 1918 I took my lunch over to Potomac Park, spread some newspapers to protect my white uniform and with my legs dangling at full length down the grassy slope at Seventeenth street, prepared to enjoy myself.

Suddenly I heard a stentorian voice behind me and turned my head to discover that a sight-seeing bus had stopped while the conductor was announcing, "A Yeomanette eating her lunch."

There was nothing to be done other than to go on munching while the whole bus load peered at the new exhibit with eager curiosity.

ISABEL B. SYPHER,

Thorouhly Deloused

I had been several weeks at the front, and one morning, after both sides had been playfully tossing things back and forth, I was sent to the rear in ambulance. My eyes and throat were masses of sores and I could neither see nor speak as a result of gas. I and my fellow patients in the ambulance made our first stop at the Verdun citadel, where, in the underground hospital, we were to receive preliminary medical care, be given a bath and have our clothes fumigated before being sent to the hospital.

We were told that our clothing would go to the fumigator in individual bundles, and that night as I lay in an upper berth on the Red Cross train I reached for my bundle that had been returned to me. Having no dependents when I went to war, I had over $1,000 in my possession and had pinned the amount in a pocket of my blouse. Suddenly remembering it, I fumbled through my belongings and found everything seemingly intact, my shirt, shoes, blouse, and even my wallet pinned the same way—but minus my money and gold watch.

Trying to attract some one's attention, I tumbled from my berth and down to the car floor, where I immediately passed out. When I returned to consciousness I heard some one remark "He will be next" and "it won't be long now," but when I tried to speak nothing would come from my mouth but a faint hiss or a high-pitched and painful cough.

Well, it has been a long time, and I sure could make good use of that money now, but being as I am denied the privilege, it has been my constant hope that some one did make good use of it.

JOHN POVA,
Member Disabled American Veterans.

Making the Point

While back in a rest area near Bar-le-duc I ran upon our division commander, and it happened that I had my hands in my pockets. I immediately withdrew them, glanced at my buttons to see that they were all buttoned properly, and prepared to give the "Old Boy" my best salute. Upon approaching him he stopped and gave me a hard stare and said: "Do you know who I am?" "Yes, sir," I answered.

"I think that you are an honest man, but a d—m poor soldier—do you know what I mean?" said he.

"No, sir," said I, and couldn't imagine what he was driving at.

"I think that you are an honest man because you had your hands in your own pockets, but a damned poor soldier for having them there—now don't forget that!" And I didn't.

Give 'Em the Marbles

On the morning of July 29, 1918, I witnessed one of the most spectacular sights of all my experience at the front. The Second Battalion of the 168th Infantry had advanced under great difficulties and under a severe machine gun and artillery fire to the crest of Hill 212, where we had a commanding view of the Valley of the Ourcq. To our right, a regiment of the Thirty-second Division was advancing to take up new positions and from our vantage point we could see their bayonets glittering in the brilliant July sunshine—all held at the position of high port.

Wave after wave they came on in perfect alignment although under a withering fire from machine guns and artillery. The German shellfire was accurate and severe and we could see men falling here and there as if they were toy soldiers, but still they kept on until their objective was won.

Men at the front learn to take a fair amount of shell fire philosopically, but it is doubtful if any more remarkable display of discipline under fire could be seen than that demonstated at this time.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

EDUCATION OF THE GREEKS.

THE first step in the development of Grecian civilization consisted in care of the health and promotion of bodily vigor. Mental training was a later stage. The superiority of Sparta somewhat antedated that of Athens. Sparta lifted itself by the bootstraps until it functioned on a plane superior to that of any other Mediterranean country.

They had one of the most compelling school systems that the world has ever known. Children were taken from homes and parents and their training for life was begun under the compelling control of the state. The training consisted exclusively in building up health and bodily vigor.

Their youths were large of frame, square of shoulders, heavily muscled, and skilled especially in games which require strength and endurance. No part of the schooling was devoted to training the mind or imparting knowledge. The young of both sexes were trained. Incidentally, the Spartans were eugenists. After a few years of this policy the Spartans stood head and shoulders above any people with whom they came into contact.

The Athenians took the Spartan system and, having first improved it, they developed it into the seed stage and then to decay. They made use of most of the Spartan methods, but they added mental training. However, females were excluded from the groups to be trained.

Up to a certain period of physical training and the development of fine bodies—great vigor and endurance—was the primary objective of training. Mental training was of secondary importance. It was just at the height of this period that Greece came into her glory. This was the age of the great men of Greece.

Forbes, in his study of Greek education, found that presently mental training began to have the right of way over physical training in the Greek schools. With this change the decay of Greece began. Presently their education was almost wholly by discussion and disputation, and physical training was assigned a position of minor importance. Grecian civilization by this time was well on its way toward eclipse. There were great philosophers and statesmen, but no successors for them were produced, and Greek vigor faded into a great fog of words. Professional athletics developed and the mass of the people became fat, flabby spectators of the games.

An effort to save the day by developing a State R. O. T. C. system was inaugurated. This lasted for several centuries and staved off the downfall of Greece, but it came too late and it was not enough. It was a good proxy for the system of building up the bodies of the children as the first consideration, but at most it was a substitute and it did not suffice.

BEST TIME FOR MILK.

M. L. writes: When is the best time to drink milk for one who wishes to gain weight? I am 15 years old.

REPLY.

The best time is just before going to bed at night and just before your afternoon nap. The best combination is a bowl of milk and crackers, though sugared rice is a good substitute for crackers.

PROBABLY CHANGE IN HABITS.

Mrs. M. P. writes: As long as I can remember I had very soft fingernails. They bent and broke under the slightest provocation, making them look ragged and ugly. A few months ago I married and since then have been doing my own housework and leading what would be called a very active life compared to the more or less sedentary one I led before. Now my nails have become tough and strong and are easily kept looking well. To what do you attribute this sudden change—work, diet or what?

REPLY.

Probably to your change in habits. We will add the marriage cure to our list.

JOHNSON SENDS JONES HOME FOLLOWING DISPUTE

TEN-GAME WINNING STREAK OF HILLTOP NINE TALK OF EAST

Philadelphia Clashes Off; N. Y. U. Next Test for Club.

RAIN again yesterday balked Georgetown's attempt to stretch its winning streak, the Blue and Gray being forced to cancel its games in Philadelphia with Pennsylvania and Drexel Institute. That ten-game streak now must stand until next Monday when it will either crack or lengthen as the Hoyas battle their old rivals, the violets, of New York University, on Washington Barracks field.

The early season performances of Georgetown's baseball team are the talk of the Eastern collegiate world. Some critics have intimated that Coach Red Smith's team should be on or around the top when the curtain comes down about six weeks hence. Nearly all agree that it is deserving of the record it now possesses—ten successive victories out of eleven games—and that it has a remarkably capable pitching staff.

This pitching staff, composed of Hal Poole, Bill Lomax, Harry Noznesky and Packy White, regulars, and Frank Baumann and Jack Coppinger, relief men, can rightfully claim the major portion of the credit due the team for its success thus far. The records will back them up.

Boast 4 Capable Hurlers.

It is doubtful if any other Eastern collegiate baseball team has a mound corps so capable. In Poole and Lomax, right-handers, and Noznesky and White, southpaws, Coach Smith has a four star flingers any one of whom could be expected to finish practically every game he starts.

Only twice in eleven games played to date has it been necessary for Smith to call on a relief pitcher. Poole was relieved by Baumann in the Davidson game, the first of the season, and Lomax pulled the rescue act in the Dartmouth contest, relieving Noznesky.

Baumann was charged with the loss to Davidson as the tying and winning runs were scored by the Wildcats after he took the slab. Noznesky was credited with the victory over Dartmouth, the Hanoverians being stopped cold by Lomax in the midst of a rally when they were trailing in the ninth inning.

Georgetown's Big Four has accounted for the entire victory string, participating in 92 2-3 innings. Baumann pitched 3 1-3 innings against Davidson, while Coppinger, who was used for trial purposes, hurled a total of 3 innings against Guilford and Drexel, both of which fell easy victims.

Regulars Have Yielded 67 Hits.

In 92 2-3 innings, the four regulars have yielded only 67 hits. They have struck out a total of 69 batters and walked 36, while hitting 4 with pitched balls and committing 3 wild pitches.

From a hitting standpoint, the value of the Big Four also is apparent, as in a total of 28 times at bat they have collected among them 10 hits for an average of .350.

As a team, Georgetown has a batting mark at present of .298. In 362 times at bat, the Hilltoppers have made 108 hits with a considerable sprinkling of extra base blows.

Following is a table of statistics covering Georgetown's pitchers:

Bucknell-C. U. Game Canceled, Due to Rain

Catholic University's baseball game scheduled yesterday with Bucknell was canceled due to rain. The Cardinals, who have won four, lost one and tied one in six contests to date, will idle until next Thursday when they are scheduled to engage Boston College in Brookland Stadium. Their 1930 record already excels that of 1929 in point of games won. Last year they triumphed only three times.

D. C. Women Golfers In Tournament Play

Women golfers will compete next Monday in the Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial Trophy tournament on the course off the Washington Golf and Country Club. Eighteen holes will be played, with handicap allowances, and prizes for low gross and first and second low net have been donated by Capt. Watson Miller. Low handicap players will start at 9 o'clock a. m. with the higher handicaps starting about 10 o'clock. The officers of the Women's District Golf Association request that intending contestants will notify Miss Elizabeth Brawner, secretary, Decatur 5438, in order that the club steward may know the number for whom lunch must be prepared.

Pinehurst Semifinals Postponed to Today

Pinehurst, N. C., April 17 (A.P.).—The men's semifinal singles and doubles tennis matches in the North and South tournament scheduled for this afternoon were postponed when rain which set in around noon today continued. The semifinals will be held tomorrow and the finals Saturday, officials announced.

Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. Marian Jessup, of Wilmington, Del., will meet in the final round of the women's tournament here tomorrow.

The methodical Miss Anderson crushed Miss Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, in her semifinal match today, 9—7, 8—1, while Mrs. Jessup was victorious over Miss Virginia Rice, Boston, by a 6—3, 4—6, 6—2 score.

The Richmond girl was slow getting started and after five games Miss Hilleary was leading 4—1. After winning the three consecutive games, Miss Anderson was forced into a deuce set, winning on the sixteenth game.

Intercollegiate Saber Title to Columbia U.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—For the third consecutive year Columbia won the Sabres title at the Intercollegiate Fencing Association championships today. Columbia won all five of its matches with New York University, Navy, Dartmouth, Yale and Army. Three of these, however, were decided on the basis of total touches after the four bouts in each instance had been evenly decided.

Yale's swordsmen won the epee championship with five victories and no defeats.

The fight for the saber title was strictly between Columbia and the Army. Army conquered New York University by 3-1, and Navy, Dartmouth and Yale eby 4-0 counts. Columbia beat N. Y. U. and the Navy, 3-1, and tied with Dartmouth, Yale and Army with two and two. In touches, however, the Lions nosed out Dartmouth 17-14; Yale, 17-15, and Army, 17-16.

In the epee division, the scores were: Yale 3, Ohio State 1; Yale 3, Army 1;; Yale 3, Cornell 1; Yale 4, Massachusetts Tech 0; Yale 4, Princeton 0; Army 3, Princeton 1; Army 3, Ohio State 1; Army 3, M. I. T. 1; Army 3, Cornell 1; Cornell 3, Ohio State 1; M. I. T. 4s, Princeton 0; M. I. T. 3; Ohio State 1; Princeton 3, Cornell 1; Princeton 4, Ohio State 0.

Gonzaga Nine Prepares For Game With Tech

In preparation for their season's opener on Monday, when they meet the Tech High Baseball Team, Gonzaga's diamond candidates will go through a short workout and practice game today at 4 o'clock on the Plaza Feld. The St. Joseph's Nine will furnish the opposition for today's drill.

With a veteran team on the field, Coach Orrell Mitchell is looking forward to a successful year for the Purple. Danny Fyne, ineligible at present, is expected back in the lineup in a week or two.

New Life Seen For College Baseball

Play Without Coach to Revive Game, Says Official.

Results of Experiment Awaited; Students Are Dubious.

By BRIAN BELL.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 17 (A.P.).—College baseball, suffering for years for a decline brought about by lack of interest, is now convalescent and soon may be restored to its former health and vigor, thinks Charles W. Kennedy, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Dr. Kennedy is sponsor of a plan to have coaches sit in the stands during college baseball games while their teams carry on, without benefit of their counsel on the bench. Much of the renewed interest in the college sport is caused by this innovation in the opinion of the Princeton board chairman.

"I am sure it will work out satisfactorily," said Dr. Kennedy. "I have not yet seen a game played under the new conditions, for Princeton does not open its league schedule until May, but the scheme has worked well in the few games in which it has had a trial.

"The plan of having the coach absent himself from the bench is a good thing for both undergraduates and coaches. It makes self-directed play by the students imperative, will teach them initiative and add to their ability to make decisions promptly.

Quick Thinking Taught By Baseball.

"Any one can decide a course if he can think it over, but action in baseball games must follow instantly on the heels of the decision. Confronted with a baseball problem there will be no chance to take it home nad sleep on the question. That is as it should be and college baseball players who go through games without a word of suggestion from their coaches must of necessity think for themselves.

"The coaches, too, are benefited, for they have long had to take too much blame for the performances of the players. If a game is lost it is held to be the coach's fault regardless of other events on the field in which the coach did not and could not take part. Now with the coach in the stand far from the field of play, he can not be blamed for something in which he was not directly concerned."

Byrd Douglas, head baseball coach at Princeton, cooperating heartily with the Princeton authorities in working out the plan, is waiting for the result of the experiment with interest.

"Yes, it provides an alibi for the coach," said the Nashville lawyer, with a smile, "and during the game now he has only one responsibility—finding a place to sit down.

Coach Thought of Going Fishing.

"At first I thought maybe to be entirely above suspicion during a game I should go oflishing, but then I decided that would not be so good, for I would want to see the mistakes, if any, made by the players. So when the leagues games are played in which I shall have no reserved seat on the bench I expect to seek out a place in the press box where I can find some one to talk to.

"In my opinion the players themselves will decide the success or failure of the experiment. The boys' reaction to the plan may write the final verdict, but I may be wrong about that."

Dr. Kenney, however, agreed with the coach. "Byrd Douglas is right," he said, "undergraduates are notorious conservative. They approach changes with suspicion and may be the last to appreciate the virtues we see in the plan."

Comment on Kozeluh Match Surprises Tilden

Beaulieu, France, April 17 (A.P.).—Both "Big Bill" Tilden and Karel Kozeluh, professional tennis champion of the world, expressed surprise today that their match yesterday had aroused comment as a possible violation of the rule against an amateur playing a professional.

They declared that no tennis rule had been broken as their meeting would be technically known as a "practice" match, just as most amateurs playing on the Riviera utilize club professionals for training.

Tilden said he had been playing a certain number of matches daily to keep in condition, but as the present tournaments are small he has been playing with W. F. Coen, the Kansas City star. Coen was away yesterday and when the center court here became vacant Tilden substituted with Kozeluh, who had come to the courts as a spectator, as the best available material for a workout.

The match developed into a grim battle, with the spectators deserting the first court to watch "Big Bill's" first encounter with the professional champion.

INDIANS BOW TO CHICAGO IN 10TH

Rally in Ninth to Tie Score, But Lose in Overtime, 8-7.

CHICAGO, April 17 (A.P.).—Donie Bush's White Sox staged a rally in the sixth inning of today's opener with Cleveland to score six runs and finally won out in the tenth, 8-7.

Willis Hudlin, Indian mound ace, and Harder were both pounded for eight lusty wallops in the healthy sixth, which netted six runs.

Horton Smith, Too Young For Home Town, Now Hero

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 17 (A.P.).—Those solemn advisers who admonished youth to seek fame and fortune far from the old home town can find no example in Horton Smith, who went away from here and made good on the famous fairways of the world.

The great golf stylist, whose tracts on the niblick, &c., now are accepted by the "ten million" as midweek gospel to be converted next week-end into beautifully envisoned parabolic flights dead to the pin, is back home, a hero to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith, and to his fellow townsmen.

The modest youth who was a caddie at the country club a few years ago at first tried to find success here, but he met a kindly rebuff, and to that perhaps he can attribute part of his golfing glory.

There is a story among the golf-minded—and they have become legion hereabouts since Horton first popped the ball far and accurately to win innumerable tournaments and championships and much cash—that young Horton, assistant "pro" then at the country club, wanted to be a full-fledged instructor right at home.

He confided his ambitions to John T. Woodruff, a widely known business man and pioneer golf course builder in the Ozarks. Woodruff deliberated and finally decided Horton, at 19, although a capable youth with possibilities, was not old enough to shoulder the professional duties at his new golf course.

Then Horton became a nomad, serving as professinoal at Sedalia, Mo., at Jefferson City for a short time and in Joplin at the Oakhill Club. Representing Joplin, he became a roving tournament pro and his name is a by-word to the international clan of mashie wielders and is known even to many who never exploded out of a sand trap.

So, while Horton is resting from the golfing wars and preparing by relaxation for his second European foray for gold and glory, the old home town is idolizing him, the companion and business partner of Walter Hagen and at present pro at Cragston, Ky.

He will stop at Joplin to visit Ren Smith, his brother and successor as professional at Oakhill, and plans to sail on the Europa April 26 to defend his French open championship and to try for a few British titles—just a boy who was too young and inexperienced to make good at home.

St. Joseph's, Celtics Open Series Sunday

The St. Joseph's A. C. Nine, winner of the Capital City League unlimited championship last season, and the St. Mary's Celtics, claimants of unlimited honors in this section for 1929, will open a three-game series at Alexandria Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Both Manager Frank Cinotti of the Saints, and Charley Corbett, of the Celtics, promise to have their best talent available for the opening game. The teams will complete the series during the season.

FRENCH STAR IN PIRATE VICTORY

Reds, Held Hitless for Six Innings, Bow by 7-1 Score.

CINCINNATI, April 17 (A.P.).—Larry French, Pittsburgh, almost entered baseball's hall of fame today as he pitched the Pirates to a 7-to-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

French held the Reds hitless until the seventh inning when Bob Meusel broke the spell with a single. But Cincinnati did not score until the ninth when Ethan N. Allen, the first batter, drove the ball over the left field fence for a home run. Previously no Red player had reached second base although French gave five walks.

The Pirates fell on Eppa Rixey, who was starting his eighteenth major league season, for five hits and four runs in the third inning and drove him from the mound. Johnson, Ash and Frey succeeded him, granting six more hits and three runs.

Steve Donoghue's Son Makes His U. S. Debut

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Pat Donoghue, son of the famous English jockey, Steve Donoghue, made his debut on American turf today, but it was not a victorious first appearance. The young English rider was up on Victor Emmanuel's Stalker in the second race of he United Hunts meeting at Aqueduct, but failed to finish in the money. The mile and one-half gallop over the brush went to Fair Class.

Tower Gains Semifinals In Mason-Dixon Upset

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 17 (A.P.).—The first major upset of 1930 Mason-Dixon golf championship was registered today in the semifinals match between Robert A. Stranahan, of Toledo, several times finalist, and Duane L. Tower, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., when Tower circled the course in 73 strokes and eliminated Stranahan 4 and 3.

Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., defending titleholder, went into the finals by defeating Percival Gilbert, of New York, 5 and 3.

In the Tower-Stranahan match, the youthful New Yorker hung up a row of birdies, par and an eagle. After a bad start which left him two down at the fourth he settled down and proceeded to regain the lead and forge ahead to stay in front all the way.

Ryerson was out in 37 to gain a three-stroke lead on his veteran opponent and found the machine-like play of the champion too much for him.

Pitcher Must Display "Proper Spirit," Says Manager.

Final Boston Contest Rained Out; Cronin Stars at Bat.

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, April 17.—Myles Thomas will be entrusted with the Washington pitching burden against the Athletics tomorrow in Philadelphia in the opening game of a two-game series, Manager Johnson announced tonight following the postponement of the series finale here with the Red Sox due to near-Arctic cold weather.

Bob Burke, who was slated to oppose the Red Sox today, will not be held over for the first Philadelphia engagement. Burke's side-arm delivery which he has added to his repertoire this spring, has made him rank poison to southpaw batters, but Johnson does not believe he is particularly efective against an assortment of right-handed hitters as boasted by the Athletics. Johnson plans to pick the spots for Burke and thus the assignment tomorrow has been given Thomas with Fred Marberry scheduled to face the Mackmen Saturday.

Brown Faces Yanks Here Sunday.

In Washington Sunday, when the Yankees will be met for the first time this season, Lloyd Brown will get a chance to show that his brilliant performance in the opener here was no fluke, with Irving Hadley coming back against the Athletics in the Philadelphia game Monday, after which the Nats return home for a long stay which will bring Boston, Philadelphia, New York and all of the Western clubs there before it ends.

Although Goose Goslin hit like a fiend in the exhibition series and showed that he was ready, he has been having trouble getting started since the pennant race got under way, having been credited with but two singles in twelve times up to date. Joe Judge, too, is having his usual trouble getting started this spring, his record being but two safeties, one a double, in eleven trips to the tee. Once this pair starts hitting, the Nats will look like an entirely different team—and there is hardly a doubt what both will start poling out safe ones 'ere long.

Meanwhile, Shortstop Joe Cronin is doing the bulk of the Nats' slugging, he having a record of four hits in nine times up, at which to point, among his safeties being a homer and two doubles. The "San Francisco kid" leads in driving in runs, with a total of five, and in addition is fielding in his very best form.

Johnson Counts Cronin Best of Rookies.

According to Manager Johnson, who has seen many players come and go during his long career, Cronin is one of the best prospects he has seen in years and he predicts that his shortfielder will prove to be the best youngster to be shown in the majors this season.

Last spring, it will be remembered, the Mackmen won fifteen of their first seventeen games with the Nationals. This is not worrying Johnson's men any, however, as all say, "well, this is another year," and are chock-full of confidence as they hike for the Quaker City tonight, where they will attempt to beard the Elephants in their dens.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

BOSTON, Mass., April 17.—The more or less trivial altercation of yesterday between Manager Walter Johnson of the Nationals and Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones grew from a molehill to a mountain overnight with the result that tonight Jones is on his way to Washington, while his mates are heading for Philadelphia. The pitcher has not been suspended and will not draw further punishment unless he continues to show what Johnson terms "not the proper attitude."

The incipient between player and manager flared when Jones lost his temper when not allowed to pitch to batters when he thought it his turn. He showed a flash of anger, was reprimanded by Johnson and an exchange of heated words followed, with the pitcher being told to go into the clubhouse and take off his uniform and threatened with being sent home.

Johnson Gave Jones Chance.

This latter action was not taken last night, however, with Johnson apparently willing to overlook it provided Jones made an apology. The two played the well known checker game in the hotel lobby here today, each waiting for the other to move, for more than four hours. Jones finally went to Johnson, but in an attitude which the latter did not like, hence he was told to get transportation home from Secretary Ed Eynon.

"I do not like the spirit shown by Jones," Johnson stated after talking to the player, "and told him so. I realize now that I was too easy with some of the players last season and let them get away with stuff like this and, as a result, did not have the best of discipline on the club. This season, things will be entirely different, and I do not intend to take anything off any of my players. If Jones works out at the Griffith Stadium when he gets home and approaches me in the proper spirit, I am willing to overlook this flare-up, but if he doesn't, I'm going to suspend him until he is in the proper frame of mind."

Jones Silent on Action.

Jones had no comment of any kind to make regarding Johnson's action, which apparently came as quite a surprise to him, except to say that he planned to work out and keep himself in condition.

Although Johnson's action in this case possibly may have been a little harsh, it no doubt will have a good effect on the other players, who will see in it a warning that they, too, had better tread the straight and narrow path. The bulk of the criticism of Johnson's managerial ability last season was based on the fact that he was too easy with his men and too prone to try to be "a good fellow" among them, for no one has questioned his knowledge of the game.

Tigers Rout Browns, 6-1; Whitehill Is in Form

Detroit, April 17 (A.P.).—Earl Whitehill held the St. Louis Browns to three singles, and the Tigers won their second straight victory of the opening series, 6 to 1, between showers, here today. The game was called after five and one-half innings because of a heavy rain which flooded the playing field.

Big Dale Alexander and Marty McManus hit home runs.

Alvin Crowder started on the mound for St. Louis and was relieved by Coffman after allowing seven hits and four runs in four innings. Coffman struck out three batsmen in the dark, but after he had walked Gehringer and allowed Alexander to hit his homer into the bleachers.

MUCKER BEATS PREAKNESS AND DERBY CANDIDATES

Dixiana Colt Wins by Nose At Graw

Swinfield, Fortunate Youth Trail in Everglades Purse.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 17. New York taxi drivers who need pointers in finding holes in traffic and splashing mud from curbs and puddles might take a look at Jockey Eddie Steffen and at the 3-year-old colt called Mucker which sported the red and buff silks of Dixiana in the Everglades Purse here today.

Steffen and his mount found a way from the rear to the front of the Everglades field and in going by plastered two high-stepping Preakness and Derby candidates with the best and thickest brand of No. 18 Maryland mud.

It certainly was a hard-luck race for Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield and S. W. Labtron's Fortunate Youth, each making their first start of the season and each proudly headed for the spring's greatest 3-year-old specials. Swinfield was driven down to odds-on, but was a distant third, back of Mucker and Guilford, which held on to the Dixiana runner when he came splashing along the fence with a shower of power no one could have guessed from a short and mediocre juvenile season.

Neither Guilford nor Mucker is nominated for the Derby or Preakness, but they put on a drive for the wire with a thrilling nose finish that electrified the crowd and was worthy of the best traditions of the sport. The two were deadlocked as they swept over the line, and only the judges could separate them. They gave the decision to Mucker, and this son of Sweep and Valley of the Moon paid $11. Guilford, one of the long shots in the race, paid $12.50 to place. Swinfield was beaten a length and a half for second place.

Fortunate Youth was next to finish, and then came Whileaway and Judge Dixon. The time was 1:14 2-5 for the 6 furlongs, good enough considering that the track was fetlock deep from heavy rains.

Guilford Gets Off In Front.

The start saw Guilford go right to the front, with Swinfield in close attendance and Mucker coming along rapidly to be a contender before the run up the back stretch was half completed. The red of Dixiana, described as being solferino, was mud-colored a few strides after the start, and so was every other silk jacket except Guilford's. Guilford's colors were scarlet. His dash to front looked like a flash of early speed and nothing more.

But as the far turn came and then the bend, and then the top of the stretch, with Guilford showing no signs of weakening, it became very necessary for those in back of him to do something. Swinfield made a bid, but it was not good enough. Fortunate Youth, too, was not good enough. Steffen and Mucker made the best bid of all and came charging along the fence to stride alongside Guilford. Guilford did not stop and the two came on in a welter of mud and water that doused the wave of railbirds who rushed to the fence to see if they could separate the two red jackets. They could not, but the judges could, and Mucker chalked up his second victory of the season, as he had been a winner at Bowie in his season's debut.

Strongheart Is First Favorite to Win.

The Walbri Farm's Strongheart was the first favorite to score here today when he won a nose decision from Bocaratone. Molehill was third and Stick Away fourth. Quackenbush put up a strong finish on the winner, overhauling Bocaratone at the wire. Bocaratone led at the first turn when Old Time went to the lead on the back stretch and appeared the winner until the last strides. The winner paid $3.40. The time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:50 flat.

R. Workman, by a good ride, made Tempter last to win the sixth race, beating Prairie Girl, a field horse, by only a head. Forest Lore was third. Time, 1:51 2-5. The winner paid $6.10. John W. Weber was the early pacemaker and Blue Darter went to the front but was displaced on the far turn by Tempter.

Battling on Outruns Man o' War Colt.

The Glen Riddle Farm won its first purse of the meeting when Battling On, an Oceanic—Maid at Arms 3-year-old colt, with McCoy up, led all the way in the first race, winning by four lengths and paying $24.50 for $2. The Palmwood Stable's Gunman, son of Man o' War, was second and H. P. Whitney's Angry, well back, third. Sweet Chance was fourth. Maid at Arms, one of the fleetest daughters of Man o' War, is the dam of Battling On.

The start was good, Battling On going at once to the front, and merely galloping to win. Thirteen started. Meltallen was one of the favorites. Maestro, which showed speed, folded up after 2 furlongs. The time was 1:15 for 6 furlongs.

Miss Dinwiddie Repeats At Long Odds.

Miss Dinwiddie, the Woods-Garth filly, which won at Bowie and paid $56 for $2, came back in the second race and won again, this time paying $26.60; Joseph Leiter's Prince Apollo was second and G. D. Widener's Leader, third. Vice, one of the J. P. Jones entry, was third. In a swift lunge or two Miss Dinwiddie caught Prince Apollo leaving the barrier and she was soon joined by Vice and the two fought out a severe duel, Miss Dinwiddie finally overcoming the Jones filly, when Prince Apollo came again and Vice tired. The time was 0:56 1-5 for 4½ furlongs. Leader paid $17.70 for third.

The track was so sloppy that none but superior mudders were getting anywhere as the first two races were being run. Favorites seemed unable to get in contention.

Dreana Lee, carrying L. M. Stevenson's colors and showing much improvement on a heavy track was good enough to beat the favorite, Shasta Pebble, three lengths in the third race. Four lengths back of Shasta Pebble, R. Pending's Ima Queen was third, a length and a half in front of One Cent, the fourth to finish.

The start was good. Ima Queen leading, closely followed by Calgary Kay, Sunsard and Dreana Lee. In the run down the home stretch Shasta Pebble made his run but faltered in the deep going. The winner paid $12.60. The time was 1:15 1-5. Eleven started.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS DINWIDDIE, $25.60, $16.20, $11.40; PRINCE APOLLO, $9.30, $6.10; LEADER, $17.70.

MISS DINWIDDIE, at home in the going, rushed into the lead, raced VICE into submission and drew away to win nicely in hand. PRINCE APOLLO, under hard urging, closed with a rush. LEADER, outrun for the first three furlongs, came with a rush in the stretch and was third in last stride. VICE displayed speed, but weakened badly at the end. FAST LIFE was well up in early part. STAR POLLY had speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:41. Off at 3:42½. Winner, L. M. Stevenson's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DREANA LEE, $12.60, $5.50, $4.10; SHASTA PEBBLE, $3.80, $3.10; IMA QUEEN, $16.00.

DREANA LEE, on the outside and at home in the going, came around field in the stretch, took lead and won going away. SHASTA PEBBLE, under very weak handling, closed gamely. IMA QUEEN displayed good early speed, but weakened in the final furlong. ONE CENT was taken very wide all the way. SUNSARD was almost knocked down just after the start. GIANT STRIDE closed a big gap.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400. The Everglades. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:11. Off at 4:16½. Winner, Dixiana Stable's b. c. RACING BODY BANS SEVEN JOCKEYS

Four Trainers Are Denied Licenses by Kentucky Group.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 17 (A.P.).—Seven jockey and three trainer licenses were denied by the Kentucky State Racing Commission last night on the eve of the opening of the Kentucky racing season here today. D. C. Connelly, Willie Pool, John Ryan, Jake Heupel, Thomas L. Luther, Walter S. Lilley and Andy Anderson were denied jockey's licenses. Trainer's licenses were refused Tommy Botts, George Gurd and Charles Sloan.

Luther was suspended because of alleged undue interference in the running of the Agua Caliente Handicap, won by Victorian. C. E. Allen, who was suspended at the same time, did not apply for a Kentucky jockey's license.

The commission agreed not to grant Verlyn Smith a license for the coming season. Smith was only 14 years old when he rode as an apprentice last year, the committee said, alleging he falsely attested he had attained the required age of 16. Applications of Charles Borel and Joe Dominick for jockey's licenses were tabled.

Action on several jockey and trainer licenses was deferred at the commission's first meeting.

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Apprentice Jockey Verlyn Smith, who has been refused a license to ride because he is under age, was one of the sensational young riders on Illinois tracks last season. The youngster booted more than 100 thoroughbreds to victory.

Smith began to ride successfully in New Orleans last winter, but the stewards there took up his license after they learned he was only 14 years old. The action of the Kentucky board indicated young Smith will have to wait at least two years before he can come back to the races.

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE UNLIMITED NINES ARE READY

Va. Teams Set Opening for May 4

District Group Plans Another Meeting Next Thursday.

Umpires Are Selected by Both Sections; Interest High.

TEAMS of the Virginia and District sections of the unlimited class of the Capital City Baseball League, sponsored by The Washington Post, last night completed preparations for the start of their respective seasons at meetings last night.

The Virginia teams set May 4 as the opening date and selected the Capital City Umpires Association members to officiate at all league games.

The District teams, which had previously designated May 18 as the opening date, chose the members of the district of Columbia Umpires Association to handle all games.

April 26 was set as the final date for teams to enter the Virginia section of the league and a meeting was scheduled for April 28 at the Jefferson District Fire Department building at Virginia Highlands at which time a schedule will be drafted. The teams voted t opost a $10 franchise fee on or before April 26.

Entries to Close April 26.

The Bauserman Motor Co., Ballston, Woodlawn A. C. and Jefferson District Firemen Nines will form the nucleus of the Virginia section of the league. Other teams will be admitted until April 26.

The District unlimited teams will meet again next Thursday night in the offices of the Municipal Playground Department in the District Building to arrange details for the assignment of playing fields. All teams contemplating entering the league are urged to attend this session, as all plans for the season will be completed.

A Prince Georges County section of the unlimited class will be organized next week. Preliminary organization of this section has been delayed, and teams in that section interested in the league will be invited to send representatives to a meeting in Hyattsville American Legion clubrooms next Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

This is the fourth section of the unlimited class planned, the Montgomery County, Virginia and District divisions having been organized.

Kentucky Fives Play Seven Extra Periods

Lawrenceburg, Ky., April 12 (A.P.).—Basket ball teams of two Lawrenceburg high schools thinks they are entitled to a niche in the hall of sports oddities.

They played seven extra 5-minute tournaments in a recent district tournament before Kavanaugh High broke a deadlock and won from City High, 28 to 21.

Regular time ended with the score 20-all. The first extra period was scoreless, the second resulted in a point for each five, and the next four were scoreless. City High finally got tired of the proceedings in the seventh extra period and Kavanaugh looped 7 points.

STAR NINE ELECTS.

Russel Thornton was elected treasurer of the Evening Star baseball team at its first regular meeting. The team will play the Lionel nine Sunday at 3 o'clock on the North Ellipse diamond.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 17.—The baseball game scheduled between the Alexandria High School and the Washington and Lee High School has been postponed until Tuesday, April 22. The game was scheduled for tomorrow but a number of the parents objected to the Good Friday date.

Coach Reynolds stated today that it would give him much more time to drill his boys and hopes to have them in excellent shape by that time.

The Del Ray A. C. will play Fort Humphreys this week on their home field.

The St. Mary's Celtics Basket Ball Team will be tendered a banquet Tuesday night by Albert Hurshman, local sportsman. Gold basket balls will presented to the players.

Greenbrier Cadets Beat Morris Harvey, 6-5

Special to The Washington Post.

Lewisburg, W. Va., April 17.—Greenbrier Military School staged a thrilling rally in the last two innings to day to defeat Morris Harvey, 6 to 5. Morris Harvey was leading, 5 to 0, at the beginning of the seventh, but Graham became wild and several passes, together with Carney's triple, gave Greenbrier two runs. The locals won the game in the ninth, when Anderson was safe on an error, Rusk took first on another error, Toney singled, scoring Anderson, and Rusk came in on a passed ball. Morris Harvey scored two runs in the seventh. The locals made three double plays and Carney hit two triples and a double.

However, they made seven errors, and Morris Harvey made six. Morris Harvey made six hits to Greenbrier's five. Batteries—Morris Harvey, Graham, Backus and Rogers; Greenbrier, Winters and Rush.

School Track Meet And Games Rained Out

Along with two scholastic baseball games, Eastern High School's track meet with Episcopal High of Alexandria, was rained out yesterday, marking the second successive day that the high schools have been forced to forego their outdoor activities. Eastern has arranged to stage the postponed meet next Tuesday, which will start a week of strenuous track activities for the Lincoln Parkers.

The entire Eastern Track Team, with the exception of the relay team, will perform against the University of Maryland at College Park a week from today. Coach Mike Kelly plans, however, to save his quartet for the Penn relays which comes off at Philadelphia the following day. At present it appears that Dolphin Weber will be chosen as the fourth man on the team to run with Chester Miles, Clow and Swope in the Pennsylvania classic.

GOLF
AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

What points should a player consider in selecting a mashie that will suit his style of play?

Answered by
LEO DIEGEL

(Canadian open, San Diego open, Massachusetts open, Metropolitan P. G. A. qualifying medal; P. G. A. Championship, 1928; tied for Long Beach Open, 1928).

The purpose for which the mashie is to be considered primarily should be considered first of all. If the club is to be used for recovering the ball from the rough and from heavy lies, it should be fairly heavy. For pitching a light narrow head is best.

The lie of the club should suit the player's stance for the ordinary mashie distance. Since the mashie is first of all a dofting club, one with the proper loft and not the mashie-iron type of blade should be selected. The prime object of the mashie is to get the ball up with sufficient cut to stop it when it hits the green. Therefore the well-lofted club is best.

NAVY TO TEST VIRGINIA TEAMS

Special to The Washington Post.

UNIVERSITY, Va., April 17.—Virginia's undefeated varsity and first year track teams meet the strongest competition in any dual meet this season when they face two Navy Teams at Annapolis Saturday afternoon.

Frank Wisner, who has been the Cavaliers' high scorer since Capt. Harry Flippin resigned from the squad, will be suffering from a strained back when Virginia opposes the Midshipmen. He will be able to run in the dashes, but he will be kept from the broad jump, which is his specialty, unless Coach Hahn changes his mind.

Against Virginia Tech last Saturday, Wisner ran the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat and the 220 in 21½ seconds. His back was giving him trouble then, and he was not at his best in the jump.

Football Linemen Score in Weights.

Dick Day, Bob Kimball and Hunter Motley, the trio of Cavalier football linemen who have been counting points in the weights, are preparing to enter the Penn relays in Philadelphia next week if they can come through to victory against Navy. Wisner will also appear on Franklin Field if his back gets in shape.

Against V. P. I., the Virginians made clean sweeps in the hurdles, for "Duke" Bryan has been winning these events which would normally be taken by Capt. Flippin.

Virginia has defeated both V. M. I. and V. P. I. since the outdoor season opened. Indoors the Cavaliers won a dual meet from Washington and Lee and took first place in the sixth annual Virginia invitation games.

The first-year track men have been doing even better than the varsity, and the youngsters trained by Archie Hahn hope to make a good showing against the Navy plebes.

Players to Be Named For Neighborhood Nine

The announcement of those who are to play with the Neighborhood House Senators will be made at 6 o'clock tonight at the Neighborhood House, 470 N street northwest. The team will be outfitted with new uniforms and equipment this year and will enter the senior section of the Capital City League. The team played in the senior section last year under the name of the Ty Cobbs.

From the following who are asked to be present at the meeting, fifteen will be chosen for duty this season: Davis, Deavers, Donaldson, Cumberland, Pugitt, Daley, Mockabee, Schwartz, Schlob, Courus, Robey, Reiley, Kramer, Regan, Thompson, McConkey, L. Flynn, C. Flynn, P. Donaldson, Pell, Miller, Prego, Schriver and Hudson.

STOCKS IRREGULAR IN VERY QUIET DAY

Fox Film, Loews, Radio, Western Union and Case Advance.

INDEX GAINS 1½ POINTS

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—With operations held in check by the three-day Easter closing, trading dwindled to the lowest levels in a month in today's stock market, and while price trends were confusingly irregular most of the day, short covering and rapid bidding up of several pool favorites gave the market a fairly strong appearance in the closing transactions. Total sales aggregated 3,940,560 shares, the smallest for a full session since March 17.

Much of the day's trading represented adjustment of accounts, in preparation for the three-day closing beginning tomorrow. Profit taking and lightening of long accounts sent the market lower in spots, particularly during the morning, but selling was fairly well absorbed, and bullish operations caused rather hurried retirement of short contracts in the last hour. Some of the high-priced and more volatile specialties were bid up rapidly, and several utilities, amusement and food shares were rushed to new high levels for the year. The price index of 90 leading shares showed a net gain of 1½ points, canceling yesterday's loss.

The weekly brokerage loan statement disclosed an unexpectedly large gain of $131,000,000. Owing to the irregularity of the market over the period covered, Wall street was inclined to interpret this as indicating that considerable distribution has been going on during the last week. The market had shown little concern over the publication of the figures after the close, however, in view of the fact that traders will have until next Monday to digest them.

Many Merger Rumors Heard.

Merger rumors continued to absorb Wall street. Rumors of discussions looking to a merger of Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward were revived, and there also was talk of a combination of Montgomery Ward and J. C. Penney, although this was discouraged at the Penney offices. The proposed merger of National Dairy Products and Kraft Phenix appeared to be close of consummation. Concurrent strength of Radio Corporation and Fox Film caused renewed talk of a combination of these interests, although the jump in Fox appeared to be largely a driving in of shorts, and part a reflection of publication of the plans to acquire the Radio interests of General Electric and Westinghouse Electric.

American Machine & Foundry, normally a wide mover, shot up 21 points to a new top at 274½. Ingersoll Rand mounted 16 and Vanadium 11 points. Fox Film sold up 5½, to 48, only 2 points from the year's high, and Radio, which was bought in large blocks, was sent up more than 3 points to within a fraction of the year's top. Case was in continued demand, rising 9 points to a new top.

Allied Chemical, Best, Corn Products, Electric Power & Light, Kraft Phenix, National Dairy, Loew's, Raybestos, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric and Western Union were among shares rising 2 to 7. United States Steel closed up about a point.

Coppers and Rails Drop.

Coppers were generally under pressure, reflecting talk that a further reduction in the red metal price may ensue. Several of the rails also sagged. Issues losing about 2 to 5 points included Anaconda, Boston & Maine, Brooklyn Union Gas, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Goodyear, Granby, Johns-Manville, National Lead and St. Joseph Lead. Continental Baking A declined 2 points to a new 1930 low.

Call money was fairly easy, reflecting the desire of lenders to place funds over the week-end. Renewals were unchanged at 4 per cent, and the official rate was later reduced only to 3½, but concessions to 3 were reported in the outside market. Foreign exchanges eased, with sterling again a soft spot, cables touching $4.86⅛, off ⅛.

Commodity markets were somewhat reactionary. Further bearish crop reports sent wheat and corn off about ½ to 1 cent, and cotton sagged a little in profit taking on yesterday's advance.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 17 (A.P.).—Prices of all grains were lower today, despite strong rallies at times because of preholiday evening-up of accounts. The chief dominating factor was authoritative announcement of complete drought relief in Northwest Kansas, where thousands of acres of wheat have been without rain for months. A forecast of heavy frost in parts of Kansas tonight had but little effect, crop experts asserting that no damage to wheat was likely to result.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ⅛ to ¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼ to ⅝c down, oats ⅜ to ⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Word of new rain falls in Northwest Kansas and other drought districts disheartened wheat bulls. Notwithstanding that one broker started the day with a million-bushel purchase, and the market tilted upward in consequence for a brief interval, general selling promptly set in, and a lack of aggressive support became evident whenever prices showed a tendency to bulge. Estimates that there were yet 2,000,000 acres of wheat in Kansas which have not had any rain received a good deal of attention, but failed to exert a lasting influence.

Liverpool dispatches telling of heavy selling there on orders from this side of the Atlantic counted to a noticeable extent in favor of wheat bears here, especially as the Liverpool market today made little response to yesterday's upturns on this side of the Atlantic. Besides, today's export business in North American wheat was relatively small, totaling only 600,000 bushels compared with 2,000,000 bushels the day previous. Adding to discomfiture of friends of higher prices was news that in some places in the recent drought section Southwest, the moisture supply to date now overtopped the record for last season. Norton, Kans., today reported 3.88 inches of rain since January 1 against 2.65 inches during the same period in 1929.

Departure from Chicago of the first lake vessel laden with corn helped give some strength to the corn market, but in the end was more than counterbalanced by wheat weakness and by progress of corn planting, with Iowa the earliest in years. Rains favorable for the new oats crop tended to ease oats values, responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 1.05¾@1.06¼; July, 1.06¾@1.06⅞. 1.13⅛@1.14¼; December, 1.14¼. Corn—May, 83¼@84⅜; July, 84¾@84⅞, 85⅜@85⅝; September, 85⅝@85¾, 86¾@86⅞.

BONDS AGAIN SLUMP IN NARROW SESSION

Only Amusement and Few Rail Shares Display Strength in Day.

CALL LOAN RATES DROP

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—The bond market ended the abbreviated trading week with prices still sagging. Trading was dull, however, and price movements consisted largely of the backing and filling which has characterized the listed market during the reaction from the March highs.

The averages showed a uniform decline and the composite figure for 30 bonds dropped three-tenths of a point to 99.4, just about midway between the high and low for the year. Sales were bolstered considerably by the activity of half a dozen issues, mostly of the stock feature type.

Money eased. Call loans dropped to 3½ per cent after renewing at 4, while 90-day accommodations were quoted slightly lower.

Amusement Bonds Rally.

Some of the amusement bonds staged a rally in the late trading on the strength of their companies' stocks. General Theaters 6s rallied 2½ and Loew's 6s, with warrants, rose 3½. Pathe 7s sank 1⅞ and Warner Bros. Pictures 6s, on the other hand, lost 1 to 2 points.

American Telephone convertible 4½s were held within comparatively narrow range by the fluctuations in the stock, closing a point higher on a large turnover. Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1950 and Reading Coal & Iron 6s traded briskly, the latter rising 1¾ net.

Investment rails were rather mixed, although small declines outnumbered the gains. Santa Fe general 4s, Baltimore & Ohio (Southwestern) 5s, Rock Island 4s, Pennsylvania gold 5s and Southern Railway general 4s eased ¼ to ½. St. Louis Southwestern first 4s, Union Pacific first 4s, Pennsylvania 4¾s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Erie general 4s, Pennsylvania 4¾s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Erie general 4s and Boston & Maine 5s improved somewhat. The decline in St. Paul adjustment 5s, which had been touching successive new lows, halted and the bonds showed a net gain of ¾. Hudson & Manhattan adjustment 5s rose 1.

Utility Group Eases.

Utilities were easy. International Telephone 5s, Kansas City Power & Light 5s, New York Telephone 4½s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s suffered losses that more than offset moderate firmness in Columbia Gas 5s. Detroit Edison 5s and a few others.

Bonds of the industrial description were quiet. International Mercantile Marine 6s, trading in unusual volume, closed half a point higher. Skelly Oil 5½s were strong, equaling their year's high of 96.

Obligations of foreign governments and corporations failed to maintain the lively pace set during the forenoon hours, but held firm. British 5½s rose a full point. German Republic 7s yielded ½. The market learned that the Kingdom of Denmark 6s and 5½s, both external loans, are likely to be replaced by 4½ per cent issues.

The market for United States Governments was dull, with the close slightly higher.

Curb Review

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Trading on the New York Curb Exchange dwindled to the usual preholiday proportions today, with the price movement irregular but generally upward. Flurries of selling swept through the market at intervals, but offerings were well absorbed, and most of the leaders closed around the day's high prices.

In the public utility group American Light & Traction issues, Brazilian Light & Traction, Electric Power & Light optional warrants, Sierra Pacific Electric, Southwest Gas Utilities and United Light & Power "A" moved into new high ground on gains that ran from 1 to nearly 4 points. Electric Bond & Share closed more than a point higher at 116½, and Niagara Hudson advanced to within a small fraction of the year's top.

Oils displayed a firm undertone, Cosden preferred jumping 5 points, while Vacuum and Ohio Oil preferred showed net gains of 1¾ and 1 point, respectively. Cumberland Pipe Line showed a net gain of 5 points at 65 after touching a few high slightly above that figure.

Morrison Electric touched a new high at 48 on reports that March sales showed a gain of 43.6 per cent over the same month last year. Fox Theaters moved into new high ground on reports that the Lowe's stock held by it would be sold to General Theaters Equipment at a price substantially above current market quotations.

International Cigar Machinery soared 14¼ points to a new high at 120 in response to reports of expanding earnings.

New York Investors and Mayflower Associates were the strong spots in the investment trust group.

Goldberg Stores, National Family Stores and a few other inactive specialties sold at new low prices for the year.

TRAFFIC DECLINES ON TROLLEY LINES

Loss of 2,000,000 Riders Is Shown by Railway and Bus Associates.

AUTOS SEEN AS REASON

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The one-time neighborhood pastime of trolley riding, which began to decline as the number of American automobile registrations started to climb, has entirely passed, while the volume of electric railway transportation is receding steadily, a situation plainly evidenced by some traffic figures just released covering railway lines of the Railway & Bus Associates and circulated by Associated Gas & Electric System.

A drop of more than 2,000,000 passengers in the number transported by these lines in the four weeks ended April 5 is shown, this loss being equal to 12 per cent when compared with the corresponding period of last year. The number carried during this interval was 14,838,644 against 16,803,378 a year ago.

It is quite significant that the losses during the final week of this period totaling 443,970 passengers, was equal to 11 per cent, indicating that the situation confronting trolley companies is becoming more acute rather than showing signs of improvement. The declining traffic is by no means localized nor is it confined to any particular line.

To Market 4,750,000 Radio Sets.

Some 4,750,000 radio sets and radiophonograph combinations will be marketed in 1930 by American manufacturers for domestic and export consumption, in comparison with 4,438,000 sets in 1929, according to estimates by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, in a current survey.

It states, "If this figure of 4,750,000 is attained, there will be approximately 12,000,000 modern sets in use as of January 1, 1931, as compared with an immediately available market of close to 20,000,000 wired homes in the United States, another 1,600,000 in Canada and probably still another million wired places where radios may be desired.

"Thus, disregarding the possibility of marketing more than one radio per home, and the potentialities of automobile installations, the available market for present-day sets is now only one-third saturated and will still be only approximately 50 per cent covered a year from now."

Gain in Incorporated Investors.

An appreciation of over 20 per cent in the market value of Incorporated Investor investments during the first quarter of 1930 was shown in a recently issued report to stockholders in connection with their regular quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents a share and a stock dividend of 2½ per cent both payable April 15 to stock of record March 21. At the end of last year, the market value of the investment was $40,559,385.50 and the cost value was $44,171,827.71. As at March 31, the market value was $48,733,500 and the cost, $43,976,010.39.

A. McC. Dunlop has been appointed assistant manager of the Washington office of Maynard, Oakley & Lawrence, members of the New York Stock Exchange. He was connected with the Washington office of Eastman, Dillon & Co., for a number of years.

The sixty-ninth meeting of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America will be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 11 to 15, inclusive. About 150 officers, governors and national committee chairmen, representing the larger investment centers of the United States and Canada, are expected to attend.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Gold Dust Fancied.

H. B.—What do you think of the following stocks: United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, Gold Dust, American Superpower? I understand that Gold Dust will pay off its bonded indebtedness.

Answer—United Corporation, a non-dividend payer, is highly speculative and has no attraction whatsoever as an investment. The other stocks named are all in the speculative investment class, being on the dividend paying list, American Superpower having recently made an initial declaration of $1 a share, while United Gas Improvement pays $1.20 annually. Gold Dust, which pays $2.50 yearly and will shortly retire $11,000,000 funded debt out of surplus, and without any new financing, looks the most inviting of this entire group, whether considered from a speculative or an investment standing.

Cities Service.

W. F.—Do you regard Cities Service as a good investment for a woman?

Answer—From an earnings and dividend standpoint, there appears to be no reason why a woman should not be a stockholder in Cities Service. The company in several lines of active business, and the stock at present carries a 30-cent cash and 6 per cent stock dividend, making it attractive. Earnings have been good over a period of years, and for the twelve months ended with February they established a new high mark. The stock may be considered a conservative investment worth holding.

Driver-Harris.

C. T.—A friend of mine is bullish on Driver-Harris. Can you tell me something about the stock?

Answer—Earnings last year were equivalent to $9.61 per share on the 91,220 shares outstanding, reflecting the 10-for-1 split-up. Profits compare with $2.10 a share in 1928 and $1.61 in 1927. Should 1930 prove only an ordinary business year, earnings, it is estimated, may amount to $10, and should certain developments mature they may be considerably larger. Profits for the first six months of 1930 are expected to be satisfactory and there are prospects that the $934,000 of outstanding bonds may be called this year.

Driver-Harris is engaged in the manufacture of chrome nickel and special alloys, and holds exclusive rights for the manufacture of P M G metal, a metallic compound to supplant tin and lead in hardening copper for making bronze. The stock holds excellent prospects of going on a dividend basis this year.

Neet; Stein.

D. G.—What information can you give me regarding Neet, Inc., and Stein Cosmetics, Inc. Are the two planning to merge?

Answer—Unofficial reports have it that a consolidation is being discussed, but nothing officially has been announced to date. Such a merger, however, would appear to be a logical one as both companies are practically in the same line of business. Last year Neet earned $6.14 per share on the class "A" stock, which is nearly four times the annual dividend of $1.60.

Arrangements were made recently to distribute the Neet product in Europe through Boots of England, one of the largest chain drug stores abroad. Nothing is distributed on Stein Cosmetics common, but earnings have been increasing for the last four years. Neet may be considered a speculative investment with fair prospects, while Stein Cosmetics must be regarded as speculative.

Remington Rand.

J. D. R.—What is your opinion of Remington Rand?

Answer—This stock would come under the category of a speculative investment, as dividends of $1.60 are paid yearly. Earnings for the year ended March 30, 1930, are estimated at $4 per share, which is considerably more than the dividend. Remington Rand is one of the leaders in the office equipment business, and the stock appears to have good prospects.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—Reactions in cotton today followed yesterday's sharp advances. Preholiday realising and liquidation sent the price of May contracts off from 16.15 to 15.92, or 16 points net lower. That delivery closed at 15.92. While the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 2 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 6 points to an advance of 13 points with the active months showing net gains of about 5 to 8 points right after the opening on covering, while there may have been a little buying on reports of large spot sales in Liverpool. The advance met considerable liquidation, however, and prices soon eased. Later, fluctuations were rather nervous and irregular. Moderate bulges met offerings, which were attributed chiefly to liquidation of long accounts and which seemed to come partly from New Orleans. The lowest prices of the day were touched in this trading when July sold at 16.04, or 17 points net lower, and the new October contract at 15.02 showed a net decline of 11 points. Closing quotations were a shade to 2 points the lowest on covering in the nearer months.

The large spot sales in Liverpool attracted considerable attention. Sales of all kinds there in the week amounted to 22,000 bales, which included only 4,000 bales of American. Recent cable advices have reported buying of Egyptian cotton in Liverpool for shipment to United States, and as the sales officially reported today included 15,000 bales for export, part of the business appeared to be for prompt shipment this side in anticipation of the proposed tariff of 7 cents per pound on staple cotton.

The weather details showed some further rains in the Southwest, which may have promoted a little selling of new crop months, but local traders doubt whether the recent rains have been sufficient fully to relieve the dry sections. The bulk of the day's trading was attributed to further technical adjustments or evenings up of commitments in preparation of the holiday and the May notices expected late next week.

Liverpool said continental buying and covering had been supplied by realizing in that market.

Port receipts today, 5,943; U. S. port stocks, 1,729,558. Exports, 13,548, making 6,128,473 so far this season.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 17 (A.P.).—A group comprising the United Light & Power Co., North American Light & Power Co. and the Lone Star Gas Corporation have concluded an agreement with the Missouri Valley Gas Co. which will result in extending natural gas service throughout central Kansas, eastern Nebraska and western and central Iowa, it was learned today. The Missouri Valley Gas Co. in which the Moody-Seagraves group has an important interest, is constructing a 24-inch pipe line from Stevens County, Kans., toward Omaha, Nebr., and it is proposed to extend a large-capacity line into the Texas Panhandle to tie-in with the large gas reserves in that area.

J. G. Benedict, of Wanesboro, Pa., was elected president of the National Metal Trades Association at the organization's annual convention today. He succeeds Harold C. Smith, of Chicago. Other new officers elected were Jacob D. Cox, jr., Cleveland, first vice president, and John W. O'Leary, Chicago, treasurer. New councilors include H. F. Wahr, Pittsburgh, and E. C. Bayerlein, Milwaukee.

Cotton goods were generally quiet, with gray goods prices slightly firmer. More interest is shown in fall draperies and wash goods for immediate shipment. Raw silk is dull and silk goods are selling at irregular prices. Moderate filling-in orders are reported in wool goods markets. Burlaps are firmer as a result of political troubles in Calcutta.

Gold imports at the Port of New York during the week ended April 16 totaled $110,000, all from Latin America. Exports comprised a $90,000 shipment to England.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

COUNCIL CONSIDERS COST OF ASSESSORS

Alexandria Body Faced With Approximate Expenditure of $28,000.

NURSE PRESIDENT NAMED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Two important matters considered yesterday by the city council were the respective amounts to be paid the board of assessors just appointed by Judge William P. Woolls, of the Corporation Court, and the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co., of Philadelphia, which company will make a scientific appraisal of Alexandria real estate. The fees to be paid the appraisal board will amount to $4,500, and the appraisal company will be paid $23,200. The work of the appraisal company will be to make a complete set of maps of the City of Alexandria, on a scale of 1 inch to 100 feet, and will show on these maps each lot, with its dimensions, as shown on the deeds.

They will show both the size of the lots and the owners' names from the deeds, and give to the city a complete record of all references, as to where they can be found in the court records. The maps will show the foot values of all streets, and these values will be set up by the board of assessors. In addition to the land values they will set up a schedule of values for building construction, and appraise every house and lot in the city. Permanent records will be left with the city, together with means whereby these records can be kept up to date. There will be a card record established, each property to have a separate card index.

Walter W. Pollock, president of the appraisal company, will be here tomorrow to go into the matter with the city manager, and complete plans for the work.

The matter of the employment of the appraisal company was taken up with the board of assessors, the members of which expressed themselves as being in favor of its employment. In this connection it was brought out at yesterday's meeting that the last assessment, in 1925, cost the city approximately $9,000, and this year the cost will be approximately $28,000. The area of the city is now about three times that of 1925, which will make the proportionate cost of assessment only slightly greater than in 1925. The work which will be done at this time will be of a permanent nature, and the card index system which will be set up will be available for the next and successive assessments, which are made every few years.

Other matters considered yesterday were the financial statement of the city for March; an application of A. C. Jeffries to lease a plot of ground adjacent to the municipal swimming pool on which he will install a miniature golf course, similar to the ones recently constructed in Washington, which was granted contingent upon a satisfactory agreement being reached with the city manager; application of John H. Coffman for the use of the North Rosemont station as a confectionery store, which was granted; application of Mrs. W. Cameron Roberts to have Thursday, May 1, designated as "poppy day," on which the American Legion Auxiliary would be permitted to sell artificial poppies on the street, this being granted, and an application of C. M. Sprague for a permit to replace an existing gasoline pump on his Pitt street premises, also granted.

Mrs. Virginia V. Thomas addressed a communication to the council, inclosing a map showing a proposed subdivision on Russell road between Washington avenue and Bellefonte avenue, and asking that the city install a sewer system. The city manager was instructed to notify her that a survey of the newly annexed territory is now in process, and that her application will be held in abeyance for the present and considered at such time as a reasonable solution can be found for the sewer problems of the entire territory.

Miss Irene Manley has been elected president of the Nurses Alumnae of the Alexandria Hospital, other officers chosen being Miss Myrtle Didlake, vice president, and Miss Margaret Barksdale, secretary and treasurer. Miss Manley and Miss Catherine Thornton were elected delegates to the annual convention of the Virginia Nurses Alumnae Association, which will be held at Virginia Beach next month.

J. M. Willis Named Head of Commissioners' Body

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., April 17.—James M. Willis, member of the board of commissioners of Talbott County, today was elected president of the association of county commissioners of the Eastern Shore at its semiannual meeting held here.

Theodore Hearne, of Wicomico County, was made vice president and P. P. Turner, of Talbott County, elected secretary and treasurer. The next meeting will be held the third Monday in October at Princess Anne.

Man Thought Lost at Sea 27 Years Ago Is Dead at 82

Son Identifies Maryland Hospital Inmate as Sailor Who Commanded Confederate Blockade Runners During Civil War and Fought Against His Father.

Norfolk, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—An 82-year-old seaman who died yesterday at the Springfield State Hospital, Sykesville, Md., has been identified as Bailey Van Wagenen, one-time Confederate blockade runner, who was thought by his family to have been lost at sea 27 years ago.

Identification was made by his son, Walter L. Van Wagenen, of this city, who notified the hospital that in addition to the name of the dead man being the same as that of his father, the description of the two men tallied exactly.

He said he and his mother, now a resident of Staunton, Va., had believed his father had drowned at sea in 1903 when the Maria Ashby, bound from a Southern port to Baltimore, went down off Cape Hatteras.

At the Maryland hospital it was said Van Wagenen was sent there in 1917 by Baltimore authorities. They could shed no light on how he escaped from the wreck of the Maria Ashby or account for the fact that he never had communicated with his family.

Van Wagenen was a sailor most of his life. When the war between the States began, he joined the Confederate navy despite the fact that his father had enlisted in the Union Army. The younger Van Wagenen was credited with commanding the first vessel to run the Union blockade at Charleston.

After the war, the father and son were reunited and together sailed the seas again aboard their own sailing ship which they had christened, Father and Son.

CONCLAVE IS OPENED BY U.S. ANATOMISTS

FORTY-SIXTH MEETING

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 17.—The forty-sixth annual session of the American Association of Anatomists opened this morning in the new medical school building at the University of Virginia, with more than 200 scientists from all over the United States and Canada in attendance. The meeting will last through Saturday.

Morning and afternoon the anatomists, histologists and kindred students of bodily structures listened to discussions of technical subjects. Classes were suspended in the medical school in order that the students might have the opportunity of sitting in. The visitors were guests of the University of Virginia tonight at a smoker in Madison Hall.

Josef D. Weintraub, of the Graduate School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, began the session this morning with a discussion of the architecture of the tunica media of arteries.

Restoration of the liver following its partial removal from white rats was described by C. M. Higgins and R. M. Anderson, of the University of Minnesota. S. T. Garber, of Princeton University, told of the metamorphosis of salamanders following the removal of their lungs.

Warren H. Lewis, of the department of embryology in the Carnegie Institution of Washington and Baltimore, showed a moving picture of normal cells. Other moving picture demonstrations presented today were by S. S. Apgar, of the University of Pittsburgh, and P. Lineback, of the Emory Medical School.

A hitherto undescribed insertion of the temporal muscle was described by G. J. Noback, of the department of anatomy, New York University, and the origins of branches of the axillary artery in whites and in American Negroes were treated by a paper by Mildred Trotter, J. L. Henderson, H. H. Gass, R. S. Brua, S. Weisman, H. Agress, G. H. Curtis and E. R. Westbrook, of Washington University, St. Louis.

A paper by W. F. Rienhoff, of the Carnegie Laboratory of Embryology and Surgical Hunterian Laboratory, Johns Hopkins University, gave a study of the lymphatics of the thyroid gland in dog and man. Two papers on the structures of malignant cells such as those from cancers and tumors were presented by Margaret Reed Lewis, of the Carnegie Institution.

James Watt Crawford, of the University of Toronto, reported a case of complete absence of the pericardium in a 52-year-old man whose heart was lying in the same cavity as the lung.

Flower Bed Contest Planned in Romney

Special to The Washington Post.

Romney, W. Va., April 17.—The Community Flower Garden Committee has plans well under way for a flower garden contest in which all the school children may participate. There is no set of rules governing the contest except that the flower plots must contain at least 15 square feet. They may be made any shape and any kind of flowers may be planted in them, depending entirely upon the taste and desires of the individual.

Prizes will be awarded as follows: First, $2; second, $1, and third prize, 50 cents. The flower beds will be judged on the basis of 100 per cent—50 for the care of the bed, 20 for especially beautiful flowers or plants and 30 for the beauty of the flower bed as a whole.

DR. PERRY DECLINES INJUNCTION FIGHT

PLAINTIFF IS CRITICIZED

Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, president of the board of Montgomery County Commissioners, last night announced that he will not contest the taxpayer's suit brought by William Van Ness in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, which asks an injunction preventing the doctor from drawing full time salary for his work as commissioner in charge of the Bethesda District. The doctor yesterday filed an answer to the suit.

Dr. Perry declared that although his counsel had advised him that the court of appeals had refused to hear a similar case on the ground that the taxpayer's interest amounted to less than $20 and the county records show that the taxes from Mr. Van Ness's property, which go to the payment of his salary, amount to approximately 32 cents, he does not wish to "have any contention in matters of this sort." He also declared that Mr. Van Ness has not paid his taxes for 1929—two of his four lots having been sold for taxes.

He stated that although he has actually put in overtime work for the county in the past two years as suburban county commissioner he has never held the financial aspect of the office in view but has served because he is interested in the orderly development of the section and the progress of his constituents.

"I was candidate for Commissioner not primarily because of my concern for the compensation that might come to me from the performance of my duties. I have for many years been a resident in the community in which I now reside. Its people have given me their confidence in the practice of my profession and I feel obligated to return to the community by way of public service whatever time and intelligence I can contribute in order that the community might receive the benefits to which it was justly entitled caused by its proximity to the National Capital and the consistent growth of Washington City into suburban Montgomery County.

"My service has been solely in the public interest and in no way for personal gain. By reason of the public confidence in my profession I can well live without any compensation as Commissioner and would gladly have served Montgomery County in the office I now hold even had it carried no compensation at all.

"Had Mr. Van Ness personally raised this question with me, I would have adopted the course of conduct which I have adopted and he thus would have been saved counsel fees, which, however, I doubt will be charged to him, recognizing as I do the names of his counsel, and it would not have been necessary for me in my own defense before the public to have called attention to the ridiculous basis of his claims as a taxpayer," the doctor declared.

Through Attorneys John E. Oxley, Edward Peter and Vivian Simpson, all of whom are recognized to be members of the antiorganization Democrats of the county who are waging war against the county Democratic organization of which Dr. Perry is a member, Mr. Van Ness filed suit to have an injunction issued barring Dr. Perry from receipt of the additional $50 per month authorized by law for full-time duty as county commissioner in the suburban area.

The answer to the petition was filed yesterday by Dr. Perry together with $1,050, the sum which had been paid to him for the past year and nine months for full-time work.

In Zion Episcopal Church, at Fairfax, the services will be at 11 o'clock in the morning, and at the Holy Comforter Church, in Vienna, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Dr. Paca Kennedy, of the Theological Seminary, will conduct both services. Good Friday services will be held in the Holy Comforter Church at 7:30 this evening.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, at Baileys Cross Road, will hold a special Easter service at 10 o'clock in the morning, and at 8 o'clock in the evening there will be a special evening prayer service, with Easter music by the choir. The Rev. Thomas H. Wright will conduct the services. This evening, Good Friday, at 8 o'clock the Litany of the Passion will be sung. Other Episcopal churches will conduct their services at the regular hour.

The Southern Methodist Church in Fairfax will hold Easter services at 11 o'clock, with special music and a reception of members. The Rev. L. B. Atkins will also conduct services Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Centerville and at the church at Pender at 7:30 o'clock that evening.

The Rev. S. Y. Craig will conduct services in the Fairfax Baptist Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and at Legato at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and at Jerusalem Church, at Fairfax Station, at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock

The Lewinsville Presbyterian Church will hold a second annual Easter sunrise service at 7 o'clock Sunday morning on the church lawn, with all the various denominations in the community participating.

The Catholic churches of the county will hold Good Friday services and the Easter masses will be sung at the regular hours. Musical selections incidental to the great feast will be sung by the choirs.

The Falls Church town treasurer's report to the last council meeting shows that $15,461.42 has been collected in taxes for this year, and $738.10 collected in back taxes. The loans from the bank amount to $7,500, receipts from permits, licenses and fines, $884. Other miscellaneous receipts and balances make the town's income at this period $25,685.01.

The disbursements were: Interest on school bonds, $1,715.50; retirement of school bonds, $1,000; running expenses for town school board, $2,500; street lighting, $646.36; payment of loan and interest, $7,582.55; salaries, $1,012.50, and other expenses, $2,450.38. There has been paid into the townsward accounts $5,764.32, which leaves a balance in the town treasury of $3,013.40. The accounts of the three road boards show a balance of $227.69 in the First Ward, $250.76 in the Second Ward and $736.39 in the Third Ward. The council placed $500 additional to the various wards, with 30 per cent to the first, 46 to the second and 24 to the third.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Lewinsville Presbyterian Church will hold its annual Easter chicken dinner tomorrow night in Dunham Hall, near McLean. Mrs. J. C. Storm is the chairman of arrangements.

The Mount Vernon Grange will meet tonight in Sherwood Hall. The principal topic of discussion will be the school situation in Mount Vernon District. The grange has invited teachers and former teachers to give their opinion on the present conditions and what would be the best course of procedure in a series of five minute talks. The questions and problems of consolidation of these schools will be given special consideration.

Miss Sara E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, will give a demonstration on the making of cookies to the 4-H Club at Lorton and a demonstration on the making of muffins to the 4-H Club at Potters Hill this morning. In the afternoon she will meet with the club at Fort Humphreys.

The Fairfax-Loudoun Epworth League Union will hold its annual election of officers tonight. The nomination committee will consist of Noble Poland, of Pleasant Valley; Virginia Lang, of Herndon; Elizabeth Berry, of Andrew Chapel; Mary Watson, of Forestville; William Ryer, of Ryon, and Clyde King, of Sterling.

Mrs. G. Ashley Money, leader of the Colvin Run 4-H Club, has arranged to hold a dance tomorrow night in the auditorium of the school at Colvin Run to raise the balance necessary to pay the costs of installing the electric range in the 4-H Clubroom.

The report of Miss Ida Jones, assistant collaborating epidemologist for Fairfax County, shows that nine out of sixteen physicians engaged in active practice in the county have reported. There was one case of scarlet fever in Vienna. In other parts of the county 6 new cases of whooping cough, 8 lobar pneumonia and 54 influenza were reported during the week. While not officially reported, it is stated that there is a small epidemic of mumps throughout the county.

During the past month, 913 cows in the Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association have been tested by C. F. Muddiman. Of this number, 132 produced over 40 pounds of butter fat, of which 17 were on the honor roll. The highest herd average was that of C. T. Rice, of Oakton, whose herd made an average production of 1,081 pounds of milk and 40.76 pounds of butter fat. The highest individual cow record was made by a cow named Willowmere Golden Penelope, owned by E. F. Salsbury, at Merrifield, which produced 1,305 pounds of milk and 36.16 pounds of butter fat. The herd of A. Schuerman, high herd for three consecutive months, is now in second place. The herd of Jenkins & Wilson is third and that of J. S. Barbour fourth. The total production of the association was 595,919 pounds of milk, which contained 22,991.3 pounds of butter fat, an average of 652.7 pounds of milk and 25.18 pounds of butter fat, per cow.

The signing yesterday afternoon of the minutes of the March term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court was the last official act Judge Howard W. Smith performed in the county prior to his resignation, which becomes effective tomorrow. The minutes of the other counties of the Sixteenth judicial circuit of Virginia have already been signed by him, it was stated.

Judge Smith's time will now be devoted to his campaign for the nomination for representative from the Eighth Virginia Congressional District in the Democratic primary that will be held in August.

Persons at the Fairfax Courthouse are now anxiously awaiting the announcement of Gov. John Garland Pollard as to the selection of Judge Smith's successor. There has been much speculation among the members of the legal profession during the last few days as to whom the governor will appoint.

Tourists He Sheltered Rob Auto Camp Owner

The height of ungratefulness is reported by Joseph Varin, who operates a tourist camp on North Washington street, Alexandria, by a man and his woman companion who stopped at his camp Wednesday night. The pair were without funds, but Mr. Varin, unwilling to have them stay out in the rain, gave them a place to sleep. When he arose yesterday morning and took stock of his possessions, he found that his visitors had departed, using the Varin car in which to continue their journey, and taking with them the bed Mr. Varin had allowed them to use.

"Was that nice?" asked Mr. Varin, in reporting his loss to the police.

ROANOKE TO BE HOST TO WELFARE GROUP

Virginia Boards of Supervisors Will Have Part in Conference.

PROGRAM IS GIVEN

Roanoke, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—Members of Virginia boards of supervisors, the governmental body which deals directly with local public welfare problems, for the first time will have a part this year in the annual Virginia conference on social work, which meets at Roanoke on April 23, 24 and 25. The supervisors will attend a special group meeting on the afternoon of the second day at which poor-relief, mental defectives, county jails and almshouses will be the principal topics for discussion. Miss Helen G. Taylor, of Richmond, field representative of the department of public welfare, will lead the discussion of poor-relief.

Frank Bane, commissioner of publice welfare, will present the subject of mental defectives and their care, and Arthur W. James, of the State department, will lead a discussion of county jail problems.

The conference begins next Wednesday evening, the first session to be featured by an address by Dr. J. T. Mastin, former secretary of the board of charities and corrections and Virginia's first commissioner of public welfare, who will speak on the progress of Virginia in the field of public and private social work during the last 40 years.

Thursday morning the session will be devoted to the work of the county welfare units—the juvenile and domestic relations court, welfare superintendents, county boards, probation and poor relief. At a luncheon Thursday Judge John L. Ingram, former police justice at Richmond, will discuss the social problems of the courts. Thursday night Commissioner Bane will speak on Virginia's public welfare program. Friday morning the work of various social agencies, including the Red Cross, Veterans' Bureau, American Legion, visiting teachers and others will be presented.

All sessions of the conference are to be held at the Patrick Henry Hotel.

FILM CENSOR SEAL PUZZLES OFFICIALS

END OF REEL FAVORED

Richmond, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—Somewhere on every roll of film that unwinds in a Virginia movie theater there must be a reproduction of the official State seal, and the board of censors is scratching its head to determine just where to put it, because practically all the pictures are talkies now, and a seal—certainly this sort of seal—has never been known to talk.

The newer pictures, Evan R. Chesterman, censorship board chairman, explained, start their sound sequel as soon as the title is flashed on the screen, and wherever the seal is placed there is going to be a break in the sound. Especially is this true of the type of talkie which uses film to project the picture and disc to reproduce the music or voices.

The State law says specifically that the seal must be shown, and about the only avenue of escape left for the censorship board is to tack it on the end of the film. In the old days, when movies were silent, it came just after the title, which seemed an appropriate place—the title bloomed forth on the screen, then the seal announced that the picture would be moral and upright, the spectator settled down more comfortably in his seat and the show proceeded.

By writing to censorship boards in other States, Mr. Chesterman has found that most of them are adopting the procedure that seems obvious here—allowing the seal to come at the end of the picture.

How to censor pictures without causing an undue economic loss to the producer is a problem which the Virginia movie board is constantly trying to solve. Sometimes when objectionable matter is eliminated a subtitle can be inserted; at other times it is necessary to strike out the whole scene, because the studio organization has long since disbanded.

"While we are mindful of the producers' position, at the same time they make pictures with full knowledge that they will be censored, and they can have no just ground for complaint so long as the laws are fairly administered," said Mr. Chesterman.

In a new book by Pare Lorentz, movie critic for a humorous weekly, the Virginia board of censors is called one of the most lenient in the United States. Later the author said the Virginia board administered 6,000 "cuts" last year, a figure which, according to Mr. Chesterman, it too large.

Virginia Princess Will Be in Play

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 17.—A play by one Virginia princess, with another Virginia princess in a leading role, will be the next offering of the Virginia Players of the University of Virginia.

Amelie Rives, the Princess Troubetzkoy, wrote "Love in a Mist," about the people who live in Albemarle County near her home, Castle Hill. When this comedy is given in Cabell Hall next Wednesday and Thursday, April 23 and 24, the part of Miss Sydney Rose Wynne, one of these young Virginians, will be played by Princess Amy di Cerami, of Taormina, Sicily, who is making her home near Charlottesville.

Others in the cast will be John Brooks, of New York City, as Gregory Farnham; Roger Boyle, of Washington, D. C., as Count Scippi Varelli; Robert B. Womble, jr., of Baltimore, Md., as Colin; Miss Marjorie McLachlin, as Diana Wynne; Miss Eleanor Gibson, as Annie Moore Wynne, and Mrs. Webb Angell, as Kizzy. All of the female parts are played by residents of Charlottesville or Albemarle County.

Herndon Accepts Post As County Prosecutor

Special to The Washington Post.

Welch, W. Va., April 17.—After declaring he would not accept the position under any circumstances, Judge I. C. Herndon, former McDowell County prosecutor, who recently resigned as circuit judge, has accepted temporary appointment as prosecutor.

The appointment was made by Judge G. L. Counts, recently elevated to the criminal court bench by Gov. Conley to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Judge James French Strother.

Girl's Skull Fractured When Hit by Horseshoe

Special to The Washington Post.

Elkins, W. Va., April 17.—Stella Detrick, 5 years old, was brought to Davis Memorial Hospital here in a serious condition after having been struck on the head by a horseshoe Tuesday, with which a little brother was playing.

Her skull was fractured. An emergency operation was performed.

Body in Potomac Is Seen in Dream

Drowned Man Found After Brother-in-Law's Vision in Sleep.

Special to The Washington Post.

Great Cacapon, W. Va., April 17.—Dreaming that he saw the body of Clarence Unger, 25, drowned early on the morning of March 22 in the Potomac, lying in some brush near dam No. 6 on the Potomac River near here, Harry Smith, his brother-in-law, went at about 8 o'clock this morning to the river and found the body near the West Virginia shore, a short distance below the dam, much as pictured in the dream. Authorities held an inquest was unnecessary and burial will be made here immediately.

Unger was drowned with William Mort, 45, of Pearre, Md., when their boat, in which they were crossing the Potomac, was overturned. Mort's body was found Tuesday near the place where the Unger body was found today.

Unger's watch had stopped shortly before 8 a. m. His wife, one child, parents and several sisters survive.

Rum Raids Held In Cumberland

Three Women Included Among Arrests Made by Dry Agents, Sheriff.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 17.—A series of raids was conducted in Cumberland and vicinity today by agents from the Cumberland office of the Prohibition Bureau, headed by George T. Danforth, agent in charge, and Sheriff William R. Harvey.

Those taken in custody were Mrs. Nellie Fogle who, Sheriff Harvey said, is a previous offender; James "Hambone" Wilson, William A. Jolly, Raymond Campbell, James Palmer, and Burt Lease, Cresaptown. They are charged with resisting arrest and interfering with an officer.

Other arrests were William F. Albright, sale, manufacture and possession; William E. Shultz, sale and possession; James M. Nicholson, sale and possession; Mrs. Carrie M. Harden, sale and possession, and George H. and Sarah F. Zinc, sale, manufacture and possession. The officers say they found a complete still and 51 gallons of finished whisky at the Zinc premises.

$10,000,000 BRIDGE FOR BAY DISCUSSED

ROAD SPEECH IS HEARD

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., April 17.—Though the general subject of the proposed $10,000,000 Chesapeake Bay Bridge, from a point near Baltimore to a point on the bay near this town, came in for considerable discussion at the semiannual meeting of the Association of County Commissioners of the Eastern Shore here today, no change was registered in the sentiment of assembled officials since their last meeting, and the organization took no official action nor were any recommendations made to Gov. Ritchie's Bay Bridge Commission, which is holding weekly meetings and hearings in Baltimore.

At the morning session, before 100 commissioners, county road engineers and attorneys, as well as visiting road experts from Baltimore and other nearby cities, A. G. Bruce, in charge of Federal Aid Plans for the Bureau of Public Roads, in Washington, spoke on the kinds of roads other States are building under the post and lateral road act. He followed Charles Pence, member of the Maryland Legislature from Dorchester County and secretary of the Eastern Shore Association, who replied to the address of welcome by Herbert E. Perkins, attorney to the Kent County Board of Commissioners.

John W. Mumford, president of the Worcester County Board and president of the Eastern Shore group, presided over the proceedings, which were concluded this afternoon by a report of the progress of the Eastern Shore Home for the Aged. Alan Goldsborough, representative from the Eastern Shore, who was scheduled to speak, was unable to be present.

Increase in Tobacco Acreage Not Advised

Richmond, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—Tobacco farmers have been warned by the Federal Farm Board in a telegram sent from Washington to extension directors that a "serious condition" will result if tobacco acreage this year is increased by as much as 15 per cent.

Reports to the Department of Agriculture, said the board's warning, indicates an intended average increase in burley tobacco of 15 per cent, which with average yields would result in a crop about 75,000,000 pounds larger than the 1929 crop, which was about 50,000,000 pounds above the demand.

BIG LABOR PROGRAM PLANNED IN VIRGINIA

NEWPORT NEWS LEADS

Richmond, Va., April 17 (A.P.).—New major industrial developments projected in Virginia during the last two weeks of March reached a total of $27,950,000 in the report made by William Boncer, field representative, to John Hopkins Hall, jr., commissioner of labor and industry.

The greatest amount of invested capital was reported from Newport News, reaching a total there of more than $5,000,000.

Other major projects were listed as follows:

Petersburg, Sturdy Electric Tool Co., Inc., new tool plant, $500,000; Williamsburg, new infirmary at William and Mary College, $69,630; Blacksburg, new dairy husbandry building at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, $150,000; Winchester, Bruceton Woolen Mill, Inc., to rebuild mill at a cost of $50,000.

Coal Mine Situation.
